General Election set for December 12th

Tories enjoy large lead in the polls but Corbyn pledges Labour will wage 'ambitious and radical campaign'

BRITAIN will go to the polls in a General Election on December 12.

Boris Johnson finally won Commons approval this week to put his Brexit deal to the voters. At the fourth attempt, the Prime Minister was given the go-ahead for the early poll after Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn dropped his resistance. Voters now face the first December election in nearly a century.

After finally overcoming the opposition to the poll, Mr Johnson said: "I think it's time for the country to come together, get Brexit done and go forward. It'll be a tough election and we are going to do the best we can." He now heads into the campaign as favourite to win after recent opinion polls gave the Tories a lead of up to 16 points over Labour. Government sources say that if Mr Johnson does gain an outright majority he will bring back his Brexit deal, hoping to pass it through Parliament soon after the Christmas break, ensuring the country leaves the EU on January 31.

On yet another night of high drama at Westminster on Tuesday, MPs voted by 438 to 20, a majority of 418, for a slimmed-down Bill setting the December 12 date. Amid angry exchanges in the Commons in the run up to the key vote, the Prime Minister insisted the "long period of dither and delay" in Parliament had left him no alternative but to call an election.

'frankly miraculous'

"We are left with no choice but to go to the country to break free of this impasse and to allow us all to submit as we must in all humility to the judgment of the electorate, to allow us to make our case and above all to allow a new and revitalized Parliament with a new mandate to deliver on the will of the people and get Brexit done," he said.

He accused Jeremy Corbyn of "unrelenting Parliamentary obstructionism" in blocking Brexit and claimed his Labour MPs were determined to drag out the process indefinitely.

He added: "I think this delay is becoming seriously damaging to the national interest because families can't plan, businesses can't plan and the climate of uncertainty is not only corroding trust in politics is beginning to hold everybody back from making vital everyday decisions that are vital for the health of our economy - buying new homes, hiring new staff, making new investments.

"The performance of the UK economy is frankly miraculous considering the stasis in Parliament."

Mr Johnson switched to

BORIS JOHNSON: "I think it's time for the country to come together, get Brexit done and go forward."

using simple legislation to trigger a General Election after three failed attempts under the Fixed Term Parliament Act.

His hopes of a poll were dramatically transformed when Mr Corbyn reversed his position on the election, after the prospect of a no-deal Brexit was taken off the table. But his U-turn sparked a furious war within the parliamentary party, with one MP branding it "sheer madness" while frontbenchers sent out messages declaring, "Bring it on".

The Labour leader's office was forced to deny claims by some of the party's MPs that there was not even a majority for an early election at the shadow cabinet meeting which approved the shift.

Mr Corbyn promised the "most ambitious and radical campaign for real change that our country has ever seen" to try to oust the Tories.

He said: "This election is a once-in-a-generation chance to transform our country. The choice could not be clearer. A Labour government will be on your side, while Boris Johnson's Conservatives - who think they're born to rule - will only look after the privileged few."

Lib Dem leader Jo Swinson vowed: "The Liberal Democrats are the strongest party of Remain and will be standing on a manifesto to stop Brexit by revoking Article 50."

Brexit Party leader Nigel Farage said: "At last the deadlock in Parliament is broken, Brexit now has a chance to succeed."

Upbeat Corbyn pledges to 'transform Britain'

■ NHS 'not for sale' vows Labour leader

Jeremy Corbyn vowed to "transform" Britain by taking on "the few who run a corrupt system" as he kicked off Labour's election campaign.

The party leader promised to "rebuild" public services and hit out at "tax dodgers, dodgy landlords, bad bosses and big polluters".

In a speech, Mr Corbyn called the 12 December poll a "once-in-a-generation chance to transform our country".

But Prime Minister Boris Johnson blamed Mr Corbyn for the delay to Brexit.

Both leaders, and those of other parties, are beginning six weeks of campaigning.

In a speech at Battersea Arts Centre, south London, Mr Corbyn received loud cheers from supporters when he said Labour would launch "the biggest people-powered campaign in history".

Flanked by members of the shadow cabinet, he said: "You know what really scares the elite? What they're actually afraid of is paying their taxes. So in this election they'll fight harder and dirtier than ever before. They'll throw everything at us because they know we're not afraid to take them on.

"So we're going after the tax dodgers. We're going after the dodgy landlords. We're going after the bad bosses. We're going after the big polluters. Because we know whose side we're on."

The December election was called for by the prime minister and is taking place after Mr Corbyn agreed to it, following the EU's decision to delay Brexit.

The Labour leader told the audience that, if elected prime minister, he would "open negotiations with the EU about a sensible relationship with Europe".

'real change'

Mr Corbyn also said: "The prime minister wants you to believe that we're having this election because Brexit is being blocked by an establishment elite.

"People aren't fooled so easily. They know the Conservatives are the establishment elite."

Mr Corbyn also said the NHS was "not for sale" and that any future trade deal with the US should not involve giving American firms greater access to it.

The audience, made up of Labour supporters, then repeatedly chanted: "Not for sale."

Several times he asked the audience: "Whose side are you on?" They replied: "Yours."

Mr Corbyn said the prime minister had thought he was being "smart" in calling for an election in December, and thought that Labour supporters "won't go out to vote".

"Even if the rivers freeze over, we're going out to bring about real change for the many, not the few," he added.

The prime minister visited Addenbroke's Hospital, Cambridge, where he said: "I'm incredibly frustrated that we haven't been able to get Brexit done today. We had a fantastic deal on the table."

He said he would deliver Brexit and "bring the country together", adding: "If you vote for us, and we get our programme through - which we will, because it's oven-ready - then we can be out, at the very latest, by January next year."

Mr Johnson promised to "stimulate the wealth-creating sector" if the Conservatives win the election, saying the contest was not about "background" but a "vision for the country".

"People aren't fooled so easily. They know the Conservatives are the establishment elite." - Jeremy Corbyn

OLD BUDDIES: Trump was speaking on Nigel Farage's LBC show

Trump blasts Boris Brexit deal

Donald Trump has criticised Boris Johnson's Brexit deal with the EU, saying it restricts the US's ability to do future trade with the UK.

Speaking to LBC radio, he said that, without the deal, the two countries could "do many times the numbers" than now.

The US president also took a swipe at Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn, saying he would be "so bad" as prime minister.

Mr Corbyn accused him of "trying to interfere" in the UK general election to boost "his friend Boris Johnson".

The UK is officially going to the polls on 12 December after the early election bill became law when it was given royal assent on Thursday.

It follows a further delay to the UK's departure from the EU, to 31 January 2020.

In August, Mr Trump promised a "very big trade deal" with the UK and predicted that leaving the EU would be like losing "an anchor round the ankle".

But speaking to friend and supporter Nigel Farage on LBC, Mr Trump was critical of the withdrawal agreement Mr Johnson recently reached with EU leaders. Mr Trump told LBC: "We want to do trade with UK and they want to do trade with us."

"To be honest with you... this deal... under certain aspects of the (Brexit) deal... you can't do it, you can't do it, you can't trade."

"We can't make a trade deal with the UK because I think we can do many times the numbers that we're doing right now and certainly much bigger numbers than you are doing under the European Union."

However, Mr Trump also praised Mr Johnson as "the exact right guy for the times".

In response, a Downing Street spokesman said Mr Johnson's Brexit deal with the EU "ensures that we take back control of our laws, trade, borders and money".

"Under this new deal, the whole of the UK will leave the EU customs union, which means we can strike our own free trade deals around the world from which every part of the UK will benefit."

UK police interview suspect in Harry death

Police investigating the death of 19-year-old Harry Dunn have interviewed crash suspect Anne Sacoolas in the US.

Mr Dunn died in hospital after the collision outside RAF Croughton in Northamptonshire in August.

His parents have been campaigning for justice after Mrs Sacoolas, 42, the wife of a US diplomat, returned to the US claiming diplomatic immunity.

Northamptonshire Police said details of the interview would be passed to the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS).

Supt Sarah Johnson said: "We can confirm that we have completed an interview of the suspect in connection with the death of Harry Dunn, the details of which will be provided to the CPS for consideration alongside the rest of the evidential file already submitted."

However, family spokesman Radd Seiger said the news "does not constitute an update" and the Dunn family "continue to feel frustrated and exasperated".

"No timeline has been given as to where we are going and when," he said.

Mr Dunn's stepsister, Larna Harber, told reporters that developments "leave us with more questions than answers".

Mr Dunn was on his motorbike when the collision with a car owned by US citizen Mrs Sacoolas happened outside the Northamptonshire airbase on 27 August.

His parents, Charlotte Charles and Tim Dunn, travelled to the US as part of their campaign and have been calling for Mrs Sacoolas to answer questions over their son's death.

Chief Constable Nick Adderley said last week that Mrs Sacoolas wanted "to be personally interviewed by officers from Northamptonshire Police in order for them to see her and the devastation this has caused her and her family".

Mr Dunn's family has

Harry Dunn died after his motorbike was involved in a crash outside RAF Croughton announced plans to sue Mrs Sacoolas, and said lawyers would also look at "lawless misconduct" of the US administration.

US President Donald Trump said Mrs Sacoolas had a "compelling story to tell", when he met her at the White House.

Asked in an interview with LBC if there were circumstances where Mrs Sacoolas could come back to the UK to face charges, Mr Trump said he would "have to see what the final facts are".

Legal action has also been launched against the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the family intends to refer Northamptonshire Police to the Independent Office for Police Conduct over its handling of the investigation.

Mr Adderley is facing fresh calls to resign after he commented on the family's potential legal action against Mrs Sacoolas by posting on Twitter: "How sad but how predictable."

The chief constable has since deleted the tweet, saying he "meant no offence" and apologised if his tweet had been "misconstrued or misinterpreted".

Mr Seiger said the tweet "displayed a staggering degree of unprofessionalism".

McDonald's apologises for 'Sundae Bloody Sundaes'

McDonald's has apologised for a Halloween marketing campaign which promoted a dessert in Portugal with the words: "Sundae Bloody Sundaes".

The term Bloody Sunday is used to refer to one of the worst days of the Troubles in Northern Ireland, when 13 people were shot dead by the Army.

The adverts sparked outrage when photos were shared on social media.

McDonald's said the marketing campaign was not intended to be an "insensitive reference to any historical event".

"We sincerely apologise for any offence or distress this may have caused," a spokeswoman for McDonald's Portugal said.

She explained the "Bloody" sundae adverts were designed as a Halloween celebration but the promotion has since been cancelled.

Bloody Sunday made headlines around the world when soldiers opened fire on a civil rights march in Londonderry on Sunday 30 January 1972.

A photo of the advert, with McDonald's branding, was shared online by an Irish Twitter user, who commented: "Portugal is cancelled."

It is not the first time a company has apologised for promoting products with the phrase.

In 2013, a bar in London's Covent Garden apologised for serving a "Sundae Bloody Sundaes cocktail".

The drink caused outrage among Irish customers as it was served with a plastic toy soldier.

At the time, the cocktail promotion was also condemned by campaigner Kate Nash, whose brother William Nash was among the 13 people who died on Bloody Sunday.

However, when contacted by reporters on Thursday, Ms Nash said: "I am aware of the McDonalds ad campaign.

"I have to say, it is not that offensive to me."

She added: "This is in Portugal and highly unlikely that people there have sat down with the intention to offend about the events here in Ireland.

"Perhaps just in their innocence that they have settled on this slogan, without making any connection to Bloody Sunday."

In a statement, the McDonald's spokeswoman confirmed that all related promotion material had since been removed from its Portuguese restaurants.

"When promoting its Halloween Sundae ice cream, McDonald's Portugal developed a local market activation for a small number of its restaurants in Portugal," she explained.

"The campaign was intended as a celebration of Halloween, not as an insensitive reference to any historical event or to upset or insult anyone in any way."

Labour MP Vaz suspended after sex and drugs inquiry

■ MP's "conduct during inquiry shows he is not fit to represent anywhere in Parliament," says watchdog

LABOUR MP Keith Vaz has been suspended from the Commons for six months after offering to buy cocaine during an encounter with male prostitutes.

The former minister paid for sex and was willing to procure and pay for illegal drugs, a sleaze watchdog found. After a three-year investigation, dragged out by Mr Vaz's refusal to co-operate fully, he was found to have seriously breached standards guidelines and damaged the reputation of the Commons.

The inquiry was launched by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Standards after a newspaper carried claims Mr Vaz had met two men at his London flat in 2016 for paid-for sex. In the course of the encounter – which was covertly audio-recorded by one of the men – Mr Vaz, who was chairman of the Home Affairs committee at the time, offered to buy illegal drugs for a third person to use. The blistering report into his conduct said Mr Vaz's claims that he had invited the men to his flat to discuss interior decoration were "ludicrous".

Other explanations he offered, including that he could not remember the evening because he had amnesia, that the original newspaper story bore no relation to the evening and that he had been given a spiked drink, were dismissed.

The Committee on Standards said: "It is difficult, to put it mildly, to see how all these separate defences could simultaneously be true."

The committee dismissed claims by Mr Vaz, who is married with two children, that the recording of the meeting may have been doctored. It said that no "reasonable person" who heard it could believe his claim that the men were there to discuss interior decoration.

"Not only was that subject not mentioned at any point in the conversation, but Mr Vaz adopted an assumed name and claimed not to be the owner of the flat but merely the friend of the owner," the report said.

MPs must agree to the six-month suspension, which would trigger a petition in Mr Vaz's Leicester East constituency allowing voters to say if they want a by-election to be held.

Conservative MP Andrew Bridgen, who made a formal complaint about Mr Vaz after the reports first emerged, said: "His conduct during the inquiry shows he is not fit to represent anywhere in Parliament."

The inquiry said: "Much of the welter of documentation and procedural challenges which has emanated from Mr Vaz has been designed, in our opinion, to 'throw dust in the eyes' of the commissioner and the committee". It added that although the core issues facing the inquiry were relatively simple, "Mr Vaz has done his best to complicate, obfuscate and confuse

Mr Vaz's claims that he had invited the male prostitutes to his flat to discuss interior decoration were dismissed as 'ludicrous' the inquiry through arguments of little merit and documentation of dubious relevance".

A statement on Mr Vaz's website said he had been treated for a "serious mental-health condition" for the past three years as a result of the events of August 2016.

Culture Secretary quits Commons, saying abuse is too much to bear CULTURE Secretary Nicky Morgan sensationally quit the Commons on Monday night while slamming Parliament for not "respecting the votes of the electorate".

Ms Morgan, who has been a Conservative MP since 2010, joined Amber Rudd and Sir David Lidington in announcing that they would not stand at the upcoming General Election. Despite describing her time in the Commons as "the greatest privilege of my life", Ms Morgan hit out at "abuse" received by MPs in a letter to Loughborough Conservatives chairman Trevor Ranson.

She said: "I have always believed that it is through politics that real and positive change can be made to our communities and country.

"But the clear impact on my family and the other sacrifices involved in, and the abuse for, doing the job of a modern MP can only be justified if, ultimately, Parliament does what it is supposed to do – represent those we serve in all areas of policy, respect votes cast by the electorate and make decisions in the overall national interest."

Ms Morgan also wrote on Twitter: "For the first time in 18 years I won't be a candidate in the next General Election. I look forward to supporting the PM, Government, Conservative Party and my successor in the future."

Earlier, Ms Rudd sparked an extraordinary row with Downing Street after revealing she would quit despite having made peace with Boris Johnson. The former

... "the abuse for doing the job of a modern MP can only be justified if, ultimately, Parliament does what it is supposed to do – Nicky Morgan home secretary gave up the Tory whip in solidarity with 21 Remain rebels who were expelled by the Prime Minister last month. Ten have been brought back into the fold. Ms Rudd made clear she had hoped to have the whip restored. However, in a brutal letter, chief whip Mark

Spencer refused her plea to be let back in. He said: "You were clear that you did not support the approach of the PM and did not have confidence in him. I take the view that the receipt of the whip is an honour, not a right, and as such it cannot be discarded or returned at will if it is to have any meaning."

Ms Rudd shot back: "Funny thing really, as just last week the PM asked me to stand in the General Election."

She also delivered a thinly veiled swipe at Downing Street strategist Dominic Cummings, saying the chief whip had been briefed by the "wrong No 10 sources".

Touts cash in as rugby fever grips the nation

■ Demand for flights to Japan spikes as England roar into World Cup Final TOUTS are cashing-in on England reaching the Rugby World Cup final with tickets being sold for up to £10,000.

The scramble for seats in Yokohama was triggered by the side's 19-7 semi-final victory over holders New Zealand on Saturday. Since then airlines have also seen a surge in demand for flights to Japan – with 20,000 England fans expected to arrive for Saturday's showdown with South Africa.

Google reported two spikes in searches for tickets over the weekend. The first coincided with England's victory on Saturday morning and the other came in the moments before Wales' semi-final match kicked off on Sunday.

British Airways has also pledged to try to help England fans to get to the game after it saw a 184 per cent surge in demand for flights to Tokyo.

A spokesman said: "As it stands, we only have a tiny number of seats left on our twice-daily flights to the Japanese capital this coming week, but we're exploring a number of options to help fans get there."

Saturday's game will be a repeat of the 2007 final, after Wales fell agonisingly close to making it an all-British showdown. They lost 19-16 to South Africa – but many of the 15,000 fans who roared them remained in Japan for the third place play-off against New Zealand, in Tokyo on Friday.

Prince William tweeted to express his support for the Welsh side after the defeat. He said: "A heroic performance. Unfortunately this time it wasn't meant to be."

He added: "You can all hold your heads

Catching the fever: Prince William (above) tweeted to express his support for Wales after their defeat in Sunday's semi-final and (below) Welsh fans in Yokohama high from an incredible tournament, we're all so proud of you."

Despite the defeat,

Wales fans partied the night away in Yokohama. Fan Cathy Thomas, 53, from Swansea said: "We are so proud of the team. "We were so close but just couldn't get over the line."

20 years on, sailor who killed pregnant wife is jailed for life

A BULLYING husband has been jailed for life for murdering his pregnant wife and burying her body at sea 20 years ago.

Andrew Griggs killed mother-to-be Debbie, 34, at their home and is believed to have dumped her in the English Channel. He lived a lie for two decades insisting she had walked out of their home in Kent after a row, leaving him to look after their three sons. Shortly after she vanished in May 1999, Griggs was arrested on suspicion of murder but he was not charged due to lack of evidence.

However, after a cold case review by police, the Crown Prosecution Service reversed the decision earlier this year. Griggs, now 57, was convicted at Canterbury Crown Court on Monday – the same day taxi driver Ben Lacombe was found guilty of killing his ex-partner, beautician Sarah Wellgreen. No trace of either woman has ever been found, piling pressure on MPs to pass a new law which will keep killers behind bars if they fail to reveal the whereabouts of their victims' remains.

Judge Robin Spencer jailed Griggs for life with a minimum of 20 years before he can be considered for parole. Just what happened to Debbie is a mystery but the judge said it was likely Griggs, a keen sailor, dumped her at sea as he knew the coast like the back of his hand. The couple had a stormy marriage with Debbie believing Griggs, who she described as a "bombastic bully", was having a relationship with a 15-year-old girl.

The verdict marked the end of a 20-year campaign for justice by Debbie's family. Her mother Pat Cameron died "of a broken heart" just weeks before Griggs was charged. Debbie's brother Derek Cameron called the verdict an "immense day for us".

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It will be best if you don't make any long-term plans as you will find yourself frustrated over delays. Then by midweek it will be time to enjoy and relax what your ruler Mars brings you. Just go with flow for now.

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler Venus just might be slowing things down while she goes into Scorpio for a few days. The big change you could be waiting for will come next week - especially in finances.

GEMINI: Events recently have likely had you feeling unsure of what you should make a priority in your life. You are being prepared to make decisions in key areas, however Mercury is totally slowing down so it's not time for action until later in the month.

CANCER: It's time to make peace (or amends) with anyone or anything that has caused you upset. Chances are you did not really understand the facts. Getting anything achieved in other areas will not be as fast as you would wish as Mercury moving backwards now and going slow until the end of this month.

LEO: The good news is that whatever has been dragging on for a while in your overall life is getting ready for change. The good vibes from Mars moving in a positive direction will assist you to take positive action. You should make a conscious effort to make nice with a family member.

VIRGO: If you find yourself feeling somewhat confused these next few it's due to your boss Mercury moving backwards. Put your mind in a positive mode and try very hard not to worry. By the end of next week you will see a clearer way ahead. All can be resolved with a little patience.

LIBRA: This week is not a good time to be stubborn just so you can prove your point. If you do, rest assured you will drag out any situation way longer than is necessary. If you are patient while your boss Venus is in your money house your finances will improve.

SCORPIO: You should be looking after yourself somewhat better now you are in your new year, Attending to any social gathering will be good for you overall and it will be a busy time so be sure to rest up in between, make your own needs a priority as you often put others first. Happy Birthday!

SAGITTARIUS: All that has been happening lately will be an advantage for you overall, even if it does not seem so currently. The best news is that your boss Jupiter will be at your service for a full month ahead. You will have advantages in all areas pertaining to finances. It will bring you peace of mind overall.

CAPRICORN: Stress in several areas may be much on your mind this next week. If it is a new situation or something already in motion better be ready and willing to move on it immediately. By the end of the next week or so you will be feeling better about it all.

AQUARIUS: Working towards security in your life overall is highlighted for you these next few weeks. With your boss Uranus very much settled in Taurus you can relax and have fun. This is not however a time to ignore anyone in your life who needs some kind of attention.

PISCES: Best take time out now and make time for you as by mid-month life gets hectic in some areas. Money that is due may take a while longer than expected, be patient. News regarding a family member will be better than you expect.

TAP INTO THIS: Derek Smalls is coming to the Wiltern

Instead of me talking about politics or the places you should visit; this week I thought I'd interview a visitor to our side of the pond.

Some of you whom are old enough will remember the legendary rock band Spinal Tap, well, ladies and gentleman I'm very proud to give you very rare interview with the band's bassist, none of than Derek Smalls. (Editor's note: Any resemblance to the writer, musician and humorist Harry Shearer is completely coincidental).

Where abouts are you from in the UK? Nilford, in the West Midlands. It's located on the River Null. It was a trading town in the old days, although I never met anyone who actually remembered the old days.

Tell us a little about your childhood in the UK

My mum left the family when I was four years old. I thought at the time it was something I said, but I learned later she split to join an all-women swing band, the Hotten Totties. My dad, Donald (Duff) Smalls, was a hero to me, and to all the folks in town whose telephone handsets he sanitized each week.

What brings you to LA?

I'm here to rehearse, and then perform in, and then dehearse from, Lukewarm Water Live, my big rockstravaganza at the Wiltern theater on Nov 6th. It's our one-night-only West Coast tour, with lots of special guests, and two symphony orchestras.

Have you been here before, if so what are some of your favorite things to do here?

Of course, Spinal Tap played the Greek earlier this century, and we must have stopped here on the Break Like the Wind Tour as well. I love the beach here. You can hear loud music everywhere you go.

Can you tell us a little about your show, what can we expect to see?

Guest stars live in person are Steve Lukather of Toto fame, Dweezil Zappa of Zappa fame, and Paul Shaffer, who needs no introduction and will get none. Live via satellite guests include Donald Fagen, Steve Vai, Rick Wakeman, and the Hungarian Studio Orchestra from Budapest. And, unless something goes wrong, when we do our big encore, "Big Bottom", we'll be launching the inflatable pink torpedo.

Spinal Tap was a real change for the comedy scene, something a lot of people had never seen before.....could you tell us how it all came to be?

Mr. DiBergi came to us and said he was a fan and wanted to follow us on our first American tour. As it turned out, he had a certain agenda. It ended up being something of a hatchet job. As one example, during that tour, we almost always found our way to the stage straightaway.

Have you considered a Spinal Tap reunion movie?

You can't make a movie out of something that will never happen.

When is your show and how can people obtain tickets?

Derek Smalls, Lukewarm Water Live is at The Wiltern on November 6 at the Wiltern. Tickets are available at wiltern.com

Thanks Derek! We are looking forward to seeing you shake your money maker on the stage.....

Meet A Member: Kate Osinska

Meet Kate Osinska from Edinburgh, who moved to LA three years ago to pursue the American Dream.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

I moved here to start a company and was choosing between NYC and LA. Although I wouldn't say that it was a hard choice, after years of sun deprivation in Scotland, LA seemed like the ideal place to settle in. Adding to that, I have big dreams, play the electric guitar, ride horses, and motorbikes, so California is really the ideal place for me.

What do you miss most from home?

I've been traveling the world ever since I was a teen. I'm a mixture of three different cultures: British, Polish, and Russian - as you've probably guessed from my surname. There are bits and pieces of each culture that I miss, and sometimes, believe it or not, I actually miss the rain and a good fish supper.

What was your first impression of LA, and has it changed since?

I visited LA before

I decided to settle here. But I guess I just immediately fell in love with the ocean, the weather and the vastness of it. And I like the people here too. I'm an extrovert who smiles a lot, so I definitely fit in. Nothing has really changed since then, but that's definitely a good thing.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus?

Edinburgh is just so beautifully green and I loved the fact that I could just walk anywhere I wanted in 15 minutes. Although in all honesty, I didn't because it rained all the time. And of course, the sunshine. I swapped walking in 80mph winds in Scotland with rain hitting my face, to walks on the beach in California. It really doesn't get better than that, at least for me. Actually, I completely forgot to mention the traffic, prior to living in LA I hardly ever experienced getting stuck in a three-hour traffic jam.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

My favorite place is Laguna Beach. Most of you have probably been there, so I wouldn't call it a hidden gem. It's just a place where I can get lost.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making a move here?

Expect to be frustrated, scared, and happy at the same time when making that move. It's a Molotov cocktail of strong emotions that come and go like the wind.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Life is what you make of it!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

Work is really my biggest passion in life because of what I'm doing. I'm fascinated by humanity and deeply driven by a desire to serve and make the world a better place for future generations.

My mission to help one million people

"Expect to be frustrated, scared, and happy at the same time when making that move," - Kate Osinska on moving to Los Angeles find Dream Careers was inspired by my childhood, watching my father being stuck in a dead-end job, and seeing the devastating effects it had on every single aspect of our lives. Vowing never to get stuck myself, I've traveled the world pursuing careers from law to finance only to realize that are billions of people like my father. I spent the last 10 years mastering the career matching process to finally get to this place. I want to give people a chance at a better life.

Threats took me to "boiling point" says Xhaka after Arsenal eruption Arsenal captain Granit Xhaka says he "reached boiling point" following repeated threats to his wife and daughter, as he explained his angry confrontation with fans on Sunday.

The Swiss midfielder was booed while he walked off the pitch at Emirates Stadium, prompting him to cup his ear.

In an emotional statement, he said he had been "hurt deeply" by comments on social media and at matches recently.

They included 'Kill your wife' and 'Wish that your daughter gets cancer'.

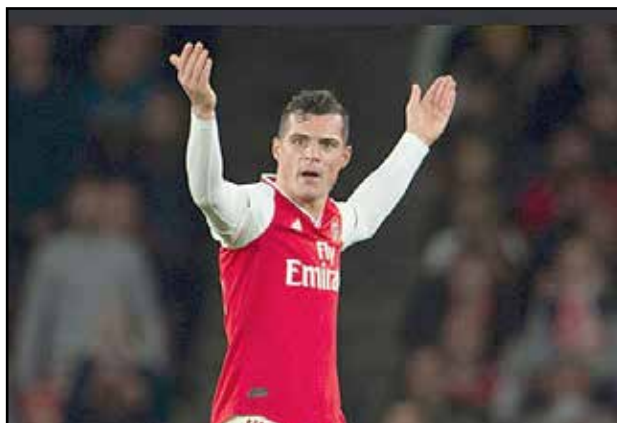

Breaking his silence for the first time since the incident, Xhaka, 27, said he got "carried away" and reacted "disrespectfully" to fans.

Arsenal manager Unai Emery had called for Xhaka to apologise for his reaction but the player instead said he was sorry if people had thought he was being disrespectful.

"The scenes that took place around my substitution have moved me deeply," Xhaka said in statement on Instagram on Thursday. "I love this club and always give 100% on and off the pitch.

"My feeling of not being understood by fans, and repeated abusive comments at matches and in social media over the last weeks and months have hurt me deeply.

"People have said things like, 'We will break your legs', 'Kill your wife' and 'Wish that your daughter gets cancer'. That has stirred me up and I reached boiling point when I felt the rejection in the stadium on Sunday.

XHAKA: booed off the field at the Emirates Sunday

"In this situation, I let myself be carried away and reacted in a way that disrespected the group of fans that support our club, our team and myself with positive energy. That has not been my intention and I'm sorry if that's what people thought.

"My wish is that we get back to a place of mutual respect, remembering why we fell in love with this game in the first place. Let's move forward positively together."

It was not the first time Xhaka had been booed by his own fans this season, with Emery publicly defending the midfielder after a game against Aston Villa last month.

That uneasy relationship with the Gunners fans did not stop Emery appointing Xhaka as club captain in September after the summer departure of Laurent Koscielny.

However, Emery has refused to confirm whether Xhaka will remain captain after Sunday's incident.

Wales fall agonizingly short - again

HANDRE POLLARD'S late penalty piled more World Cup semi-final heartache on Wales on Sunday.

Pollard's kick – his fifth from five attempts – sent South Africa through to Saturday's final against England as Wales crashed out at the penultimate hurdle for the third time, having run out of bodies, escape routes and luck.

Warren Gatland's men stayed in the fight manfully after losing prop Tomas Francis to a dislocated shoulder and wing George North to a pulled hamstring before halftime. But eventually they succumbed to the abrasive but uninspiring Boks.

The crestfallen Welsh players were inconsolable afterwards, but coach Gatland said they had no reason for regrets. "I've been more disappointed after other games in my career when we haven't given 100 per cent or haven't fronted up as a team," he said. "I can't ask any more of these players.

"We are really disappointed at not being in the final, but we have to be proud of ourselves and enjoy what we have achieved. We can hold our heads up high and leave Japan with a lot of pride."

It was Springbok forward power that eventually decided the game, with Wales forced to pull down a rumbling line-out drive and concede the penalty that stand-off Pollard drilled through the posts in the 76th minute.

"As a kicker, you try to forget all the external factors," said the matchwinner.

Cup quarter final must be moved, insists Klopp

Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp says his side will not be able to play their Carabao Cup quarter-final if the fixture cannot be rearranged to avoid a clash with the Fifa Club World Cup.

Liverpool beat Arsenal on penalties in the fourth round on Wednesday.

The quarter-finals are due to be played the week commencing 16 December but Liverpool play in the last four of the Club World Cup in Qatar on 18 December.

The EFL say they are

"We can hold our heads up high and leave Japan with a lot of pride," - Warren Gatland

"It's not easy. You're going to be nervous. You're only human. So you try to stick to your process and, luckily, I had a good day leading up to that kick so confidence was pretty high.

"Our forwards were always visible, but the way they took Wales' legs away made a big difference towards the end of the match. "Wales don't give anything away and we know that. We went in with that mindset – to try and be more patient than them, to keep putting it back on to them when they're putting it back on to us. We were patient enough."

Rashford the difference as United edge Blues

Marcus Rashford's sensational free-kick winner was like something Cristiano Ronaldo would produce, Manchester United boss Ole Gunnar Solskjaer said after his side beat Chelsea to reach the Carabao Cup quarter-finals.

The England striker gave United the lead in Wednesday night's clash with a penalty after Marcos Alonso fouled Daniel James.

Michy Batshuayi equalised for Chelsea, who had won their last seven games, with a great run from the halfway line and finish from outside the box.

But Rashford won the game with a swerving, dipping 30-yard free-kick into the top corner.

"It was very Cristiano-like," said Solskjaer. "The boy has nerves of steel. He takes a penalty no problem, and then steps up and hits the ball like he did and wins us the game. Fantastic.

"He works too much on it. I've always tried to get him scoring simple tap-ins and being inside the box. He always scores great goals."

Solskjaer named a strong side, saying he wanted to "keep the momentum going" - with 19-year-old Brandon Williams the only unfamiliar youngster to start.

And it worked as they won for a third game in a row, all away from home - after a run of six games without a win.

Scott McTominay had already gone close to an opener when Rashford - who missed a penalty in Sunday's 3-1 win at Norwich in the Premier League - sent Willy Caballero the wrong way from the spot.

Chelsea made six changes from Saturday's win at Burnley and did not look their usual selves. Christian Pulisic, who scored a hat-trick at Turf Moor, failed to have much of an impact, although he did drag a shot wide in the second half.

Batshuayi's equaliser was wonderful as he flicked Caballero's long kick on with his head, before beating Harry Maguire for pace and smashing home from 25 yards.

But the headlines belong to Rashford, who settled the game with a fantastic free-kick - his fourth goal against Chelsea this season.

Chelsea boss Frank Lampard said after the match: "There weren't many chances in the first half. In the second half we showed the energy I wanted. We created chances and dominated the game.

"They got a bolt out of the blue to win the game. It's an amazing goal, you can't do anything about that. We felt like we were going on to win the game at that stage.

"[The winning run ending was] always going to happen. You can't go on forever. Even [Manchester] City and Liverpool lose at some point. We changed the team a lot today, made a lot of changes. I thought we were the better team in general play."

“We will play with no fear,’ insists Jones

■ Rugby World Cup Final: England coach expects bruising encounter with South Africa

England head coach Eddie Jones says his team are ready to produce their finest hour after naming an unchanged team for Saturday's World Cup final against South Africa.

Captain Owen Farrell, leading try-scorer Jonny May and prop Kyle Sinckler have all been passed fit after carrying knocks from the semi-final win over New Zealand.

Farrell stays at inside centre with George Ford once again picked at fly-half, while scrum-half Ben Spencer is on the bench after flying out last weekend as emergency cover following an injury to Willi Heinz.

Jones said: “We know South Africa are going to come at us, and we're going to come at them even harder.

greatest performance

“I've got no doubt that they'll play better, but we'll play better - we will play with no fear.

“We're confident in the game we have and we're confident in the way we've prepared.

“We're ready to go. Hang on to your seats, because it's the last dip of the rollercoaster.”

England produced what many critics described as the greatest performance in their history to see off three-time world champions New Zealand 19-7 last Saturday.

The form shown by the 10-12 combination of Ford and Farrell and the outstanding displays of Sinckler, Maro Itoje, Tom Curry and Sam Underhill have persuaded Jones - in his 50th game in charge of the side - to stick with the same XV for the first time all tournament, despite the direct, muscular threat posed by the Springboks.

Jones has the highest winning percentage of any coach to take charge of England, and a second World Cup triumph, 16 years after Sir Clive Woodward's team took the first, would be the ultimate valediction for his four sometimes controversial years in charge.

He said: “That was always our aim, to be here on 2 November in the Yokohama Stadium.

“So we've achieved one goal, but we know what's at stake in the final, and we're well prepared.

“South Africa are a different proposition - they're much more physical, they come through you at the front door, whereas New Zealand it's the front door and back door.

“We have to make adjustments, but we're ready for the brutality of the game.

“Our players have had the will to prepare. They've pushed themselves through some tough physical tasks.

“They've worked hard to get the right tactical game and they've worked hard to build the bonds between them.”

Despite the youth of 21-year-old Curry and 23-year-old Underhill in the back row, this is an experienced England side, with a total of 731 caps in the starting XV.

And on Thursday those players were in relaxed mood despite the biggest game of their lives being just 48 hours away.

Jones invited his entire 31-man squad and the English media together for morning coffee before the players were given time with their families and parents to go out around Shinjuku for lunch.

On Friday they will go through one last light training run at Yokohama Stadium before returning to their hotel in central Tokyo and a team meeting led by skipper Farrell.

It will be Jones' own third World Cup final after his Wallabies side were beaten by England in 2003 and the Springbok team he was helping to advise saw off England in Paris four years later.

He said: “I'll be looking back at the lessons of 2003 and 2007, and even 2011.

“You can never take anything for granted. You have to go out there and take the game.

“You might be favourites, but you have to go out there and win the game, and that's our approach on Saturday.

“I'm anxious, nervous, excited. It's always a blend of the two emotions.

I'm sure South Africa are sitting in their hotel thinking the same way.”
