Fallout from Epstein scandal continues to grow after disastrous TV interview Prince says controversy "a major disruption" to the work of the royal family

The Duke of York has stepped down from public duties after crisis talks with the Queen and the Prince of Wales following his television interview over his relationship with the sex offender Jeffrey Epstein.

Prince Andrew said that he was withdrawing from his official life because the controversy had become "a major disruption" to the work of the royal family.

The duke's decision to become the first member of the royal family to in effect resign from duty because of his growing unpopularity came after he talked with the Queen, Prince Charles, who is on tour in New Zealand, and other family members.

Buckingham Palace said that it had been his "personal decision" days following of discussion with senior members of the family, culminating in a face-toface meeting with the Queen at the Palace on Tuesday.

The Queen and the rest of the royal family are said to support the duke's decision.

Robert the Lacey, royal biographer, said: "Nobody will imagine that he has done this of his own free will. Everybody will assume that there has been pressure from above."

The duke's move followed days of highly critical headlines after the interview with the BBC's Emily Maitlis was broadcast in a Newsnight special on Saturday. Andrew, 59, was criticised for failing to express any sympathy for Epstein's victims and for defending his friendship with the billionaire.

'deeply sympathize'

He will now step back from all of his more than 200 charity patronages - temporarily, according to the Palace - and will take no part in public life for the foreseeable future. However, he will still be a member of the royal family and will be seen on the balcony of Buckingham Palace on occasions such as Trooping the Colour.

In a statement released on Wednesday - the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh's 72nd wedding anniversary -

Prince Andrew said: "It has become clear to me over the last few days that the circumstances relating to my former association with Jeffrey Epstein has become a major disruption to my family's work and the valuable work going on in the many organisations and charities that I am proud to support.

"Therefore, I have asked Her Majesty if I may step back from public duties for the foreseeable future, and she has given her permission. I continue to ill-judged association with Jeffrey Epstein. His suicide has left many unanswered questions, particularly for his victims, and I deeply sympathise with everyone who has been affected and wants some form of closure. I can only hope that, in time, they will be able to rebuild their lives. Of course, I am willing to help any appropriate law enforcement agency with their investigations, if required."

Honors even as Bojo and Corbyn go head to head

BORIS Johnson and Jeremy Corbyn met for their first head-tohead televised debate this week - and the initial response from viewers was that neither man came out on top.

The key takeway for Tories was that Labour leader the refused repeatedly to say how he would campaign in another EU referendum fact seized on – a by Mr Johnson, who said Corbyn's prevariciation was the "void" at the heart of Labour's Brexit policy. But Corbyn had some good moments of his own, landing a series of blows on the prime minister, including on the NHS after recent A&E performance figures which were the worst on record.

'in despair'

YouGov A snap poll after the ITV debate handed victory to Mr Johnson by the narrowest of margins, with 51 per cent saying that he was the better performer against 49 per cent for Mr Corbyn. YouGov also found that 54 per cent thought Mr Johnson came across as more prime ministerial, compared with 29 per cent for Mr Corbyn. Fifty-nine per cent said, however, that the Labour leader was more in touch with ordinary voters, compared with 25 per cent for Mr Johnson.

Both leaders faced open mockery from the studio audience in Salford. A questioner who said that Britain was looking on "in despair" was cheered. Mr Johnson repeatedly was reprimanded by the host, Julie Etchingham, for overrunning his alloted time as he drove home his claim that he could "get Brexit done" while Mr Corbyn's policy of a renegotiated EU deal and referendum offered only more delay.

The Labour leader was jeered as he refused to say eight whether he times would campaign for Leave or Remain in that vote.

Dawn Butler, shadow equalities minister, claimed today that Mr Corbyn's own views on Brexit were not important. She BBC Breakfast: told "As prime minister he's not there to implement what he wants but what the public wants. What's

For his part Mr Corbyn confronted the prime minister with official documents that he said showed the US government was demanding "full market access" for American products to public services. Mr Corbyn said that the prime minister would 'sell out the NHS to the United States" in a post-Brexit trade deal.

That drew a furious denial. Mr Johnson "There said: are circumstances no whatever in which this government would put the NHS on the table."

Mr Corbyn paid tribute to his friend Jayne Rae, a lifelong Labour campaigner who recently died from cancer, as he called for more investment in the NHS. At the weekend Mr Corbyn shared a video in which Ms Rae told of arriving for hospital treatment to find a scene that "looked like Beirut".

if the Asked monarchy was "fit for purpose" Mr Corbyn said there was "room for improvement"; Mr Johnson said that the "institution" was "beyond reproach". Both expressed sympathy for Jeffrey Epstein's victims and avoided direct criticism of the Duke of York after his BBC interview last weekend.

The snap YouGov survey was conducted among 1,000 likely voters and was weighted to reflect the 2017 general election result and 2016 EU referendum. Tory officials sought to put the best gloss on the result, saying that Mr Corbyn had failed to put in a game-changing performance.

A second debate, to be hosted by the BBC, will take place on December 6.

Tories enjoy healthy poll lead

TORY hopes of a General Election triumph were boosted this week by a string of opinion polls showing the party extending its double-digit lead over Labour.

One survey gave Boris Johnson's party a 17-point advantage over Jeremy Corbyn's Labour, enough for the Tories to win at least an 80-seat majority in the Commons. Four other polls put the Prime Minister's party significantly ahead of their rivals.

On Tuesday night a Survation poll for ITV's Good Morning Britain gave the Tories a 42% share, with 28% for Labour, 13% for the Lib Dems and 5% for the Brexit Party.

Mr Johnson was backed by 47% as the best choice to be prime minister. Only 17% preferred Mr Corbyn.

review

Police began an investigation following a Scottish government inquiry into complaints of sexual harassment against Mr Salmond.

Mr Salmond launched a judicial review against the government over how it had handled its inquiry, saying he had been treated unfairly.

The government later conceded its procedures had been flawed and paid out more than £500,000 in Mr Salmond's legal expenses.

No restriction on migrant movement under Labour, pledges Corbyn

JEREMY Corbyn did little to allay fears of increased migrant movement to the UK when he said this week "there will be a great deal" of it under a Labour government.

In contrast, Foreign Secretary Dominic Raab spelled out Tory plans to toughen border controls with an Australianstyle points based immigration system after Britain leaves the European Union.

He said businesses must not rely on "cheap labour from abroad" and should instead focus on "innovation".

The Conservatives warned Labour's plans for maintaining free movement with the EU will see more than 15,000 criminals enter the UK in the next 10 years.

The Tories also said that under their system the majority of migrants would need a job offer to move to the UK to work.

Currently, EU citizens have preferential access to benefits, but under Tory plans they will have the same rights as the rest of the world. Migrants will no longer be able to send child benefits abroad to support children outside the UK.

Mr Raab told BBC's The Andrew Marr Show:

"It's not just the volume, which, yes, we're committed to bringing down, but it's also the kind of immigration you've got coming into the country.

"We want people coming here who want to contribute, whether it is to our economy or whether it is to our public services.

"We want to make sure the best and the brightest can come here to contribute to the innovation, creating the jobs of the future for the people of this country.

"We want to be able to plug gaps in specific sectors, whether it is in the NHS, or whether it's elsewhere." But he added: "What you don't want to do is encourage over-reliance on cheap labour from abroad, which has a depressing effect on wages in this country.

"Actually, the way to deal with those sectors that are concerned is to invest in innovation, to drive up the productivity of those sectors, rather than just engage in this rather artificial reliance on cheap labour from abroad.

"That's better for this country, for both businesses and workers." Mr Raab added.

insisted Labour's policies were fully costed and "popular". Mr Corbyn said it was a "manifesto of hope", adding: "Over the next three weeks, the most powerful people in Britain and their supporters are going to tell you that everything in this manifesto is impossible.

"That it's too much for you. Because they don't want real change. Why would they? The system is working just fine for them. It's rigged in their favour."

Colman and Tennant named UK's hardest working actors

BROADCHURCH costars Olivia Colman and David Tennant have been crowned Britain's hardest-working actress and actor.

Oscar-winner Olivia and former Doctor Who Time Lord Tennant who were police officers on hit ITV crime drama Broadchurch – were named the most prolific male and female British acting talent of 2019. A hundred TV and film stars who have won or been nominated for a Bafta or National Television Award in the past decade were analysed in the study. Statistician Geoff Ellis rated them on factors such as versatility in acting genres and number of appearances. Tennant topped the list followed by Martin Clunes, Sir David Jason, Olivia Colman and Dame Julie Walters.

Rounding off the top 10 are Sir Derek Jacobi, Dame Judi Dench, James Nesbitt, Steve Coogan and Sean Bean. Bean – who famously lost his head in HBO hit Game Of Thrones – was the actor most Doc Martin's Clunes and Catherine The Great lead Dame Helen Mirren were declared the most versatile actors.

The poll was conducted for BritBox which streams content from the BBC, ITV, Channel 4 and Channel 5. Reemah Sakaan, group director for ITV subscription video on-demand, said: "We're excited that our fans can enjoy many of the actors' classics and more recent work on the service."

Killer freed despite refusal to reveal victim's body location

The mother of a murder victim is "horrified" her daughter's killer will be freed despite never revealing where her body is.

Ian Simms, 63, was jailed in 1989 for murdering Helen McCourt who disappeared in February 1988 aged 22.

He was originally sentenced to a minimum of 16 years.

The killer was considered for parole for the seventh time on 8 November and officials said he "met the test for release".

Simms killed Ms McCourt as she walked home from work in Liverpool.

Her mother Marie said she was left shaking with anger after receiving a call earlier from her victim liaison officer at the parole board confirming Simms' release.

"I'm just in a state of shock to be honest," Mrs McCourt said, from the family home in Billinge near St Helens, Merseyside.

"I've just had some forms come through, I think that's on what grounds the parole board has granted him release on licence, but I don't know all the conditions.

"I was just in shock. I'm still trying to deal with it. I'm horrified by it, I'm horrified by it. This man is a danger."

She has urged the next government to introduce Helen's Law, legislation that would deny parole to killers who do not disclose their victims' remains.

The bill recently ran out of time, when the general election was called.

Simms was denied release at a hearing in 2016, but was subsequently transferred to an open prison "due to progress made", where he has "followed the rules" when granted temporary release. The Parole Board said it had "carefully considered" Simms' failure to reveal where he concealed Ms McCourt's body and concluded there is "no prospect of Simms ever disclosing the whereabouts of his victim even if he were kept in prison until he died".

The board added the refusal continues to cause understandable distress and misery to the victim's family and the panel concluded this demonstrated a lack of empathy.

But it said denial was not a "necessarilydetermining factor" and also considered evidence from two psychologists who recommended release.

Black Wetherspoon's customer boycotts pub over banana order

A customer who had a banana sent to his table at a Wetherspoon's pub in an act of racial abuse is boycotting the popular British pub chain.

Mark D'arcy-Smith was drinking with a friend at The Richmal Crompton in Bromley, south-east London, on 8 November, when the fruit arrived on a plate with a receipt.

of weeks, but don't forget Thanksgiving is coming up and most businesses close for a day or two for the holiday.

Fun in Beverly Hills I decided to celebrate

SPOT THE COLUMNIST: Eileen having fun at The Scenario Studio

Regular readers will be aware that it is 'open enrollment' season. which means we have a brief window to sign up or change our health insurance plans.

This year I am feeling rather pleased with myself as I haven't left it until the last minute for once! I heeded our advice and went over my options with Christine at Beach Financial Group, which I highly recommend you do too if you still struggle with remembering the difference between your co-pays and deductibles, which are known as your 'excess' in the UK. BFG don't charge for the consultations and it won't inflate your premiums either. I was delighted to learn that my plan has actually decreased by $100 per month! The deadline to sign up is December 15th so you still have a couple

It's Time For Tea... Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm ín our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily

'windfall' with mv lunch and a wander in the shopping district of Beverly Hills. They already have their Christmas decorations up along the iconic Rodeo Drive and have a diverse range of festive performances and entertainment lined up for the next few weeks - from strolling carolers, to acrobatics and dance at popular crosswalks on Rodeo, and the Paley Center is hosting free screenings of holiday classics from their archives along with hot cocoa!

My personal favorite attraction was The Scenario Studio: "A Photomusement Experience" at the bottom of Rodeo Drive. It's an array of interactive photo sets designed by the photographer John Ganun. We got to dress up in winter coats dusted with fake snow, for a traditional Christmassy shot, but I think the definite winner was the camouflage set, which is right by the door as you walk in. They provide all of the costumes and props and have staff on hand to take photos for you on your cameras. It is really silly but tons of calendar, it's well worth fun. Best of all, it is again all FREE!. Visit www. thescenariostudio. com for more details . And LoveBeverlyHills. com for their winter a trip and I do think it actually made me think that it is actually starting to feel a bit like Christmas... I think next on my list is the Winter

Market at Yamashiro and then Craig and I are considering organizing an ice skating night down at Pershing Square, so we will keep you posted in CONT:/

case you want to join us. Before I go I must give a special mention and big thank you to fellow Brit Christine Peake. She organized a fantastic gathering earlier this week at Crustacean in Beverly Hills (again!) to honor one of our founding members Kerstin Alm, who many of you know as 'Mamarazzi' . Kerstin is moving off to an 'old people's place', (her words not mine) in San Pedro, so she won't be too far away, but we saw it as a good opportunity to show her how much we all love and care for her. Massive thank yous to everyone who came along and made such a lovely fuss of her.

Lastly, we have a competition for you! The LA Phil have given us a pair of tickets to give away to A Tribute to Oliver Knussen at the Walt Disney Concert Hall on December 10th. Email us at at info@britsin.la to put your name in the hat. Winner will be selected at random and notified via email on December 4th. Make sure to include your name on your photo ID!

That's also the email address to use if you have any comments, questions or suggestions, please do get in touch as we always enjoy hearing from you.

Happy Thanksgiving to all...

Meet A Member: Sera Golding-Young

Golding-Meet Sera Young from the UK who moved to LA five years ago to pursue music

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

It was all such a magical experience. I'd never thought about moving here but I remember going on holiday to Brazil and as I watched the plane map, we began to go south and I had the strangest feeling like I was flying in the wrong direction and wanted to head to the US. A little later down the line I had a psychic reading that talked about me making an album in America. Then one day a few years later, my wife and I were making our way through a bottle of wine or two and received a sales email about SYNC CON, a conference in Hollywood focused on placing music in films/ TV/commercials. There and then we decided to book to go, woke up the next morning and remembered we were on our way to LA! The minute we got here we knew it was the place we were meant to be and so we moved here and never looked back.

Obviously people most importantly. I love the food here but there are certain things that I can't wait to get back to when we go back to England - proper sausages, roast dinners, and good chocolate! And I also really miss how green it is at home, that is so refreshing.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

The first three days we spent inside the Hollywood Roosevelt hotel performing at the conference and didn't see daylight. When we finally got outside all we saw was Hollywood Boulevard which is perhaps not the best part of LA! But there's a magic to this place that we immediately felt. Since we've spent more time here, for me it's all about the incredible nature spots - the hiking, the beach, driving out to spots like Idylwild and Palm Springs - we're so lucky to have such a range of dramatic scenery that is like nothing I'd ever seen before. I think

What do you miss most forever inspiring.

What do you find the biggest difference living is here versus Guildford?

I love that there's always something (usually something weird and wonderful) to do. I love the music scene and how you can walk into a bar and see some of the greatest musicians ever. There's also something very cutting edge about California in terms of evolutionary thought leaders and teachers it's an inspirational place to be.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? Honestly my favourite place is at the top of any of the hiking spots! That's where I'd always take anyone visiting, even after five years I still find it so mind-blowing that there's such incredible hiking and nature in the middle of a city. One of my favourites is where we shot the music video to our song 'Fly' in Topanga. Its just the most beautiful spot and the video came out absolutely stunning. What would vou suggest to others who

thinking about are making the move here? If it feels right, do it. It's not an easy town though - only do it if you feel called to. Especially as a music artiste, whilst it feels like the obvious spot to go, there's a lot of competition and everyone is incredible at what they do!

LA also can be such a transient town so at times it's hard to truly connect with people. However it's also full of magic and everyone you meet seems to lead to something wonderful, so that alone makes it worth it to me.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice vou've been given?

I saw a piece of street art on Fountain Avenue the other day that said... 'Johnny Carson asked Bette Davis "what is the best way an aspiring actress could get into Hollywood?" Ms Davis said, "Take Fountain". It made me giggle, and is so true. Route planning is probably the most important aspect of keeping your sanity here!!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you ? Are you working on anything at the moment? My wife and I create epic and soulful power pop music together.

Our band is Unsung Lilly. We have a new single coming out called 'Demons' on Nov 21 and have a celebratory gig that evening at the Peppermint Club in West Hollywood. We'd love to see you there!

You can find us on all social media and streaming sites as @ unsunglilly

Lottery Thistle fan completes takeover

A SCOTTISH man who scooped a £161m EuroMillions lottery win has completed a takeover at Partick Thistle and plans to gift ownership to fans next year.

Colin Weir, 71, has purchased a majority shareholding and a holding in land at the club's Firhill Stadium.

The lifelong supporter will immediately give the land back to the Scottish Championship club.

His 55% shareholding will then go to a fan group being developed, based on the Well Society model at Motherwell.

The free transfer of shares will happen "no later than the 30 March 2020".

Weir has already invested around $\pounds 2.5m$ of his $\pounds 161m$ lottery win from 2011 in the Glasgow club and previously set aside £6m for a new training ground.

But he withdrew his support in August citing "uncertainties" about a mooted takeover by a foreign consortium.

An interim board will be established "comprising of a mix of experienced business people and fan representatives", while a working group is to be set up jointly by the PTFC Trust and Thistle for Ever organisations to create the body that will receive the shareholding.

The land purchased from Firhill Developments is the south terrace area and main stand and it will revert back to full Thistle ownership after 10 years under the terms of the deal.

"Thistle for Ever planted the thought of fan ownership as a real option in my mind," said Weir in a statement.

"But this has all happened quicker than anyone might have anticipated. That's why I have offered a three to four month window for fans to get everything in place before handing over shares.

"They want to get it right and I want to be sure that when the new entity is operational, there is a structure that will allow for a smooth transfer of ownership. This is a major financial commitment on my part as fan owners will not need to repay a penny - but I believe this gives fan ownership the best possible start."

No one to fear in playoffs, says McCarthy

Mick McCarthy says the Republic of Ireland have no-one to fear in the play-offs after his side fell agonisingly short of automatic Euro 2020 qualification following a draw with Denmark at the Aviva Stadium.

The Irish created plenty of chances with one of their best performances in recent years, but Matt Doherty's 85th-minute equaliser came too late as they chased the win they needed.

Martin Braithwaite got in behind Doherty to stab home Henrik Dalsgaard's cross and open the scoring from Denmark's first shot on target - one of only two they had in the game. The point means the Republic of Ireland finished third in Group D and will meet Slovakia in the play-offs, which take place next March.

"The players will go back to their clubs and we don't have a game until March. I'll be getting round them and reminding them it has been a good campaign and that we can play like that, so why not play like that in March?" The Irish will rue their finishing against Denmark, with Conor Hourihane missing a glorious chance in the first half.

Doherty's header from Enda Stevens' cross set up a thrilling finale in a deafening atmosphere but they could not create that one last chance they needed.

The Irish players collapsed to the ground at the final whistle knowing they had given everything - as their fans gave them a standing ovation despite falling just short in the end.

"I am immensely proud of the players," McCarthy added on Sky Sports. "They pushed them right to the limit. If my players and my team leave everything on the pitch I will take the result as it comes so I will have to take the defeat.

"You just need that bit of luck. We had opportunities but I am not going to criticise the lads - they have been brilliant. We lost one game out of eight. I'm very proud of them."

England stroll to Kosovo win

England concluded their successful Euro 2020 qualifying campaign with a 4-0 victory over Kosovo this week that ensures they will be among the top six seeds in next summer's tournament.

Despite the emphatic scoreline, it was an unconvincing performance by Gareth Southgate's side but they were still able to end as comfortable winners in a remarkable atmosphere in Pristina.

It was a celebratory occasion where the visitors' received a heroes' welcome as icons in this country and for the part the United Kingdom played in its 1999 liberation following the Kosovo war.

Needing to avoid defeat to make sure they are in the top pot when the draw is made, England took a first-half lead as Harry Winks produced a composed finish for his first international goal.

Captain Harry Kane effectively wrapped things up with his 32nd goal for England from close range late on maintaining a superb record of scoring in all eight qualifiers, before substitute Marcus Rashford got in on the act with a smooth finish.

Mason Mount rounded things off in the closing moments for his first goal for his country at senior level.

Kosovo, who were out of automatic qualifying contention but still played with great heart, had opportunities to make it even more of a gala night when trailing by a single goal but missed the chances that presented themselves, captain Amir Rrahmani headed wide of an open goal and Valon Berisha was inches off target.

England, however scrappy in spells, got the job done and can now start planning for Euro 2020.

Heavy German defeat unimportant - O'Neill

Michael O'Neill has said that Northern Ireland's heavy 6-1 defeat in Germany will have no impact on their Euro 2020 playoff against Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Serge Gnabry scored a hat-trick, Leon Goretzka got two and Julian Brandt was on target after Michael Smith had opened the scoring in Frankfurt.

Despite the score, O'Neill was pleased with how his side performed with several key players missing.

"This game will have no bearing on the playoffs whatsoever," said O'Neill.

"Ultimately, we were punished by the quality of the opposition. We are asking League One players to come and play against Champions League players."

Blackpool's Jordan Thompson and Sunderland's Tom Flanagan were handed their first competitive starts with Jonny Evans, Stuart Dallas and Jamal Lewis all missing from the matchday squad.

"I thought there were several positive aspects in the first half but ultimately we were missing five or six players," added O'Neill.

Bale should head back to Spurs, fumes former Madrid supremo Former Real Madrid president Ramon Calderon believes a return to Tottenham Hotspur would be the ideal solution to Gareth Bale's troubles in Spain.

Calderon expects Bale, 30, to be booed at the Bernabeu after he celebrated Wales' Euro 2020 qualification behind a flag saying "Wales. Golf. Madrid. In that order".

Calderon says if Bale knew what was written on the flag it was "childish".

Moving to Spurs "would be a good solution for everyone", added Calderon.

Former Real manager Jose Mourinho has succeeded Mauricio Pochettino as Spurs manager and Calderon believes Bale could go back to north London, where he spent six seasons before his thenworld record move to Madrid in 2013.

"It's true that Mourinho likes the player," Calderon told BBC Radio Wales. "He said that in 2017 when he tried to sign (him) for Manchester United and Real Madrid decided to extend the contract of Gareth Bale.

"I remember him saying 'if he is by the exit door, I will be waiting on the other side', so maybe it's a solution."

A LITTLE EXTRA? Spanish media reacted angrily to the banner displayed by Gareth Bale as Wales celebrated reaching Euro 2020

Bale has been criticised in Spain for his love of golf and for prioritising Wales over his club.

The four-time Champions League winner came close to joining Chinese side Jiangsu Suning in July only for Real to call off the transfer.

Asked whether Bale is now destined to move on, Calderon added: "The problem is there are no offers.

"It happened last summer when (Real manager Zinedine) Zidane said the sooner he leaves, the better. I think he was a bit fed up with the situation. Apparently only one club from China wanted to sign him.

"The salary is high, that's another problem. It's going to be something that the club, the agent and the player must decide."

Bale has been heavily criticised in the Spanish press over the flag celebration, which followed Wales' decisive 2-0 win over Hungary on Tuesday.

There was also consternation in Spain over Bale's return to Wales action in Azerbaijan last Saturday, as he had not played for Real since picking up an injury while with his country in the October international break.

"We don't if he knew what was on that banner," Calderon said. "If he knew, it's clear that this was something childish but maybe he didn't.

"Maybe he was involved in the celebrations with other team-mates and he did that unwittingly, not trying to offend anyone or disrespect anyone. The problem is that picture has added fuel to the fire.

"You have to bear in mind that for fans it's a bit weird. They are angry because the player has gone around 50 days without playing for Real Madrid, missing six matches, and then suddenly they have seen him playing for Wales very well by the way.

"That's been really the trouble, not just the banner but a combination of things."

Scotland 'optimistic' ahead of Euro 2020 playoffs

Scotland can be "very optimistic" as they look forward to the Euro 2020 play-offs, says manager Steve Clarke, after his side beat Kazakhstan 3-1.

John McGinn's double and a Steven Naismith goal helped Scotland come from behind to earn a fourth win in eight and finish third in the group.

Their opponents in the play offs -Bulgaria, Hungary, announced after press th time. n "They are desperate

Israel or Romania were to get to a tournament," Clarke said of his side. They are 100% committed to their country and I know what they are thinking in that dressing room.

"We can be very optimistic about this group. I've spoken a lot about positivity and I'm hoping it spreads to the supporters and the media."

Scotland failed to qualify automatically after finishing third in Group I behind Belgium and Russia. However, Clarke's men could be as little as 180 minutes away from a first major finals since 1998.

They are guaranteed home advantage for the one-off semi-final on 26 March after topping their earlier Nations League section, and Clarke is hoping to see Hampden at its best for one of the nation's biggest games in recent memory.

"The place will be full, I'm sure it will be," he said. "We've shown we can be a good team here. If we can get a good atmosphere and play on the front foot, we can be OK."

Upbeat Mourinho takes Spurs hot seat

Portuguese makes return to Premier League following sudden sacking of Pochettino

José Mourinho described himself as happy and humble in his first press conference as Tottenham Hotspur manager and promised not to make the same mistakes at the club that he did in previous roles.

The 56-year-old, who replaced Mauricio Pocchetino this week, insisted that he had learnt from his troubled spell at Manchester United but added that he did not need to be friends with his players in order to have a successful team.

The Portuguese replaced Mauricio Pochettino, who was fired by the North London club on Tuesday after five and a half years following a dismal start to the season. The news was confirmed in a Spurs club statement on Tuesday, with chairman Daniel Levy saying: "We were extremely reluctant to make this change and it is not a decision the Board has taken lightly, nor in haste. Regrettably domestic results at the end of last season and beginning of this season have been extremely disappointing."

The Argentinian departs with Spurs lying 14th in the Premier League table on 14 points after 12 games.

Since beating Leicester City 3-1 on February 10, Tottenham have won just six times in 24 matches in the English top flight, and they are currently on a five-game winless run in the league.

Pochettino led Tottenham to their first UEFA Champions League final back in June, which they lost 2-0 to Liverpool, but the club's hierarchy clearly think that was merely papering over some fundamental cracks.

Early in the 2019-20 season, there have been issues off the field as well as on, not least the seeming disinterest of players like Christian Eriksen, Vertonghen and Ian Toby Alderweireld, who have all been linked with exits. But the manager so beloved of Spurs fans zalso oversaw one of the most successful periods in Tottenham's history and established the club as Champions League regulars, securing four top four finishes in his five years in charge.

But the past was barely spoken of on Thursday as Mourinho gave his first press conference in charge. Speaking to a packed room, he said that he wanted to retain the same style he has employed at previous clubs - with tweaks and that he does not need funds for players in the January transfer window, joking that he already has the best Christmas gift he could ask for with the players at his disposal. The Portuguese head coach tried to sign several members of the squad in the past, including Eric Dier and Harry Kane.

"The best gift are the ones [players] that are here," Mourinho said. "I don't need players. I am happy with the ones that we have."

There was no pointscoring or negative comments on his return to management 11 months after being sacked by Manchester United. "I'm not going to make the same mistakes," Mourinho said. "I'm going to make new mistakes. I'm going to be stronger.

"From an emotional point of view I'm relaxed, motivated and ready and I think the players felt that these two days. I'm ready and I'm here to support them. In life you go through periods like this, where it's not about myself, it's about my
