He has been identified as Usman Khan, a 28-year-old man who was jailed for terrorism offenses in 2012 after pleading guilty to involvement in the 2010 Stock Exchange Plot.

Khan was wearing what is thought to have been a hoax explosive device.

Scotland Yard teams up with FBI to aid in Epstein probe

■ Prince Andrew still under scrutinty despite repeated denials

Scotland Yard is assisting the FBI with a wideranging investigation into sex trafficking by the Duke of York's paedophile friend Jeffrey Epstein and his associates.

The Metropolitan Police has confirmed for the first time that its officers have had discussions with the FBI in connection with an investigation into coconspirators who are suspected of assisting Epstein to traffic and abuse women, an inquiry that is continuing despite his prison-cell suicide in August.

In a lengthy statement will cause discomfort for further Buckingham Palace, the Met set out details involvement inquiries into the in paedophile billionaire and former friend of the duke, as well as his British associate Ghislaine Maxwell.

criminal investigation

One of those who claims she was abused by Epstein is Virginia Roberts (now Giuffre), who says that she was trafficked to London in March 2001 and made to have sex with Prince Andrew.

The duke, 59, who was pictured with Ms Giuffre at Ms Maxwell's

London house in 2001, has consistently denied having sex with her. The Met did not disclose details of information it might have shared with the FBI, or whether the exchanges had included any discussion of Prince Andrew, who visited Epstein's homes across the US and invited Ms Maxwell and him to Windsor Castle and Sandringham.

As well as confirming that it was assisting the FBI, the force sought to explain why it had failed to start a full criminal investigation into Ms Giuffre's claims in 2015. The Met said that despite receiving a criminal complaint against Epstein and Ms Maxwell, made in July that year by Ms Giuffre, it did not open a full investigation because the alleged illegal conduct mainly took place overseas.

Scotland Yard said that it had spent more than a year examining the complaint by Ms Giuffre, including obtaining permission to travel to the US to interview her, before deciding in November 2016 not to proceed with a full British inquiry. It is understood that the complaint did not include any criminal allegations against the prince.

Ms Giuffre will repeat her allegations in her first big British television interview, to be broadcast by Panorama on BBC One on Monday. She says in a clip released this week: "It was a really scary time in my life. He knows what happened; I know what happened. And there's only one of us telling the truth."

sexual exploitation

The Met's statement came after speculation about its decision not to investigate the incident, following Andrew's own television interview this month and his subsequent removal from public duties.

The 2015 decision was taken by Dean Haydon, now a deputy assistant commissioner in charge of counter-terrorism, after advice from the Crown Prosecution Service. In its explanation the force said that it had received "an allegation of non-recent trafficking for sexual exploitation" in July 2015 "against a US national, Jeffrey Epstein, and a British woman".

Commander Alex
Murray, of the Met's specialist crime unit, added that the complaint to central London in March 2001. Officers assessed the available evidence, interviewed the complainant and obtained early investigative advice from the Crown Prosecution Service.

"Following the legal advice, it was clear that any investigation into human trafficking would be largely focused on activities and relationships outside the UK. We concluded that the MPS was not the appropriate authority to conduct inquiries in these circumstances and, in November 2016, a decision was made that this matter would not proceed to a full criminal investigation."

THE Queen has cancelled plans to host a 60th birthday party for Prince Andrew after she and Prince Charles sacked him from representing the monarchy on official duties.

She had intended to host a party with all his charities to mark the date on February 19 but has acknowledged there is little point now, following his disgrace over his links with the paedophile billionaire Jeffrey Epstein. Instead, the 93-year-old monarch, who has supported her second son all the way until now, is expected to host a small private family dinner.

Earlier this week it was reported that the Duke was "standing back from all his patronages" around 230 charities and organizations. More than 20 charities had already secured his resignation as their patron. Buckingham Palace has insisted his honorary positions and patronages in the Armed Forces will remain but there are reports of growing unrest in the military too.

However, according to senior sources she did support her son's decision Ms Maitlis also said Andrew told the BBC he had sought "approval from higher up", which could only mean the monarch. 'Wildly gifted' writer and wit Clive James dies at 80

■ Australian transplant enjoyed long career as critic, journalist, author and TV presenter

AUSTRALIAN writer, critic and broadcaster Clive James has died at the age of 80.

The star, who had leukaemia, kidney failure and lung disease diagnosed almost 10 years ago, died at home in Cambridge on Sunday, his agent said on Monday. A private funeral for family and close friends took place in the chapel at Pembroke College, Cambridge, where James studied English literature in the Sixties.

"Clive died almost 10 years after his first terminal diagnosis, and one month after he laid down his pen for the last time," said a spokesman for United Artists. "He endured his ever-multiplying illnesses with patience and good humour, knowing until the last moment that he had experienced more than his fair share of this 'great, good world'."

He said that James had been grateful to Addenbrooke's Hospital staff for their care and kindness, "which unexpectedly allowed him so much extra time". His family also thanked the Arthur Rank Hospice at Home team for their help "which allowed him to die peacefully, surrounded by his family and his books".

Tributes poured in for the star who leaves behind a wife, author Prue Shaw, and two children. On Twitter, Stephen Fry wrote that James and theatre director Jonathan Miller, whose death was also announced on Monday, were "two heroes of mine growing up".

"Each so wildly and profusely gifted in so many directions," he said. "Very sorry to think they're not in this world any more."

BBC director general Tony Hall, said the "irreplaceable" James "was a clever, witty and thought provoking broadcaster". Good Morning Britain presenter Piers Morgan tweeted: "RIP CliveJames, 80. Abrilliantly funny man."

TV presenter Gaby Roslin said: "Clive James you were unique. You were incredibly kind to me and there will never be anyone quite like you. A very sad loss of a brilliant man." Pop star turned vicar, the Rev Richard Coles described James as "the best telly critic that ever there was, who once described Barbara Cartland's face as looking like two crows that had crashed into the white cliffs of Dover."

Born Vivian James in Kogarah, south of Sydney, in 1939, James moved to England in 1961 and rose to prominence as a literary critic and TV columnist. But not before he changed his name because "after Vivien Leigh played O'Hara [it] became irrevocably a girl's name, no matter how you spelt it," he said in a memoir.

He went on to deliver wry commentary in shows including Clive James On Television which saw him introduce TV clips from around the world, most famously Japanese game show Endurance. He also became a regular voice on BBC Radio 4 and also recorded six albums with music producer Pete Atkin in the Seventies.

An atheist by conviction, James famously described religion as "an advertising agency for a product that does not exist".

James first revealed news of his chronic illness in May 2011 when he wrote to The Australian Literary Review to explain why he could not write for them. In recent years he even penned his own obituary. His final memoirs will be published next year.

Net migration to UK falls again

NET MIGRATION to the UK is continuing to fall, according to official figures this week.

Overall the difference between how many people came to the UK for at least 12 months and the number of those who left was 212,000 in the year to June. Figures showed 609,000 people arrived, while 397,000 left. Net migration from the EU fell to its lowest level in 16 years of just 48,000 people, according to the Office for National Statistics. Experts say record numbers of people are returning home to EU countries, while fewer are moving to Britain to work. They point towards the falling value in the pound and Brexit uncertainty.

An ONS spokesman said: "While there are still more EU citizens moving to the UK than leaving, EU net migration has fallen since 2016, driven by fewer EU arrivals for work.

"In contrast, non-EU net migration has gradually increased for the past six years, largely as more non-EU citizens came to study."

Madeleine Sumption, director of Migration Observatory at Oxford University, said: "EU net migration has fallen dramatically since before referendum, and is now at its lowest level since before EU enlargement. "The reasons for this will include things like the lower value of the pound, improving economic prospects in EU countries and potentially the political uncertainty of the prolonged process."

Polymath director Jonathan Miller dead at 85

Sir Jonathan Miller, the distinguished theatre and opera director who famously starred in the Beyond the Fringe satirical revue, has died aged 85.

In a statement, his family said he had died "peacefully at home... following a long battle with Alzheimer's".

A man of many parts, Miller was also an author, a photographer, a sculptor, a broadcaster and a qualified doctor.

Born in London in 1934, Miller studied medicine at Cambridge before embarking on a career in the arts.

The catalyst was Beyond the Fringe, in which he appeared with Peter Cook, Dudley Moore and Alan Bennett.

The groundbreaking revue premiered at the 1960 Edinburgh Festival before transferring to the West End and Broadway.

Its success led to Miller becoming editor and presenter of BBC arts programme Monitor and a director of plays at the National Theatre.

His productions included a modern-dress staging of The Merchant of Venice, with Laurence Olivier as Shylock.

He went on to direct six of the BBC's 1980s Shakespeare productions, among them The Taming of the Shrew with John Cleese and Othello with Anthony Hopkins.

He served as artistic director of London's Old Vic theatre from 1987-90. Despite being unable to read music, he also directed operas for the ENO, Glyndebourne and the Met in New York. Who's Who listed his only recreation as "deep sleep".

In a tribute, the Royal Opera House's director of opera Oliver Mears said Miller was "one of the most important figures in British theatre and opera of the past half century".

'Creative genius'

He continued: "Combining a supreme intellect with a consistently irreverent perspective, formed from his experiences in both comedy and medicine, Miller shone a unique light on our art form.

"His intolerance of inauthenticity and laziness on stage was matched by the urgency and rigour of his search for the composer's vision, historical accuracy and psychological truth resulting in so many productions which have stood the test of time."

Jonathan Miller: "a creative genius whose imagination knew no bounds... he brought arts and culture to millions on the BBC"

The English National Opera added on Twitter: "His contribution to comedy, theatre and ENO in particular was immeasurable. For over four decades Jonathan created some of ENO's most celebrated and popular opera productions."

And the National Theatre described him as "a legendary figure across theatre and opera".

Miller, who was knighted in 2002 for services to music and the arts, was witty and erudite but could be cantankerous.

"I've got this, I think, unjustified reputation for being grumpy," he once said, insisting he only objected to "people who are 30 years younger than I am and know 100% less than I do".

Tony Hall, the BBC's director general, said Miller was "a creative genius whose imagination knew no bounds... he brought arts and culture to millions on the BBC".

Monty Python star Eric Idle paid tribute to "the beloved hilarious genius Jonathan Miller", adding that Miller had "dramatically changed my life three times".

He was also remembered by BBC Radio 3 broadcaster Petroc Trelawny as "a polymath and cultural giant" whose "contribution to British cultural life was as varied as it was vast".

Lady in the red...

■ Victoria's fashion firm £36m in debt

VICTORIA Beckham's fashion business has plunged almost £36million into the red after running up losses of £12.5million last year, figures reveal.

The former Spice Girl's firm Victoria Beckham Holdings Limited has just filed accounts for 2018 that show she failed to turn round the troubled empire, which has made losses every year since 2013. Revenue went down from £42.5million in 2017 to £35.8million last year as the business restructured. was Overall losses for the company have risen from £23.5million to £36million.

Documents also reveal the company breached the terms of a £10million HSBC loan "several times" but that the bank has "remained supportive by allowing time to explore the options available to the group and shareholders". The report also insisted that changes were being made to turn the company round.

The accounts said: "Whilst revenues and profits were down in 2018, the business performed in line with shareholders' expectations by cutting costs, focusing on its digital channels and refining its product to more closely reflect Victoria Beckham's aesthetics and values." It also said that the company had £30million new investment which had gone into the appointment of a "world class leadership team". The report said the investment was targeted at digital marketing and other strategies to allow greater distribution. It said the strategy was paying off and sales were increasing in 2019 in "certain segments" as well as there being a reduction in losses.

Brits in LA

Meet A Member: Luca Malacrino

Meet Luca Malacrino from Cardiff, Wales who moved to LA five years ago to pursue a career in the film industry.

Luca has worked on over 30 projects, including Distant Vision, Criminal Minds: Beyond Borders, Grey's Anatomy, Jim Carrey's I'm Dying Up Here and has recently returned from the U.K. after securing a recurring guest-star role on Coronation Street. He is the founder of the awardwinning production company, The Chameleon Effect with co-producer/ writer Alex Hanno. Luca has been named this year's Rising Star at the Westfield International Film Festival and is a proud member of the BAFTA Newcomer's Academy.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

Yes! Before making the move into acting/ producing I used to own two nightclubs back in Cardiff. I knew that in order to make it in this industry, I would have to dedicate and fully immerse myself without any distractions. Tall palm trees, beautiful oceans, and a city filled with big dreamers? I was sold! I worked harder than when I started the nightclubs at the age of 19, and got a scholarship to the American Musical & Dramatic Academy in Los Angeles. I knew this way my old days of hospitality wouldn't distract me and I was ready to take on the world with my newfound obsession.

What do you miss most from home?

Ahhhh... This is a tough one! I come from a big crazy 'Welsh-Italian' family and I most definitely miss being able to surprise them with a big hug and demanding a cuppa! (milk and two sugars). Aside from that, I miss the magical views of Wales. Casually driving through the country lanes to see an ancient castle that has been watching the people around it for hundreds of years. I also definitely miss a good old cheeky Nandos. Double chicken wrap, medium spice with peri chips, please!

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression of LA was MAGICAL! I felt like I had a new take on life and waking up to the beautiful Cali sun made it hard to have a bad day. I felt the people were 'usually' very polite and welcoming, but there is always one.... I am still just as excited and feel the city has a clear blend of fast-paced individuals who are on a mission, as well as the more relaxed hippie types who live for the sunsets.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Cardiff?

This for me has to be quality of life in general. In particular, experiences and things to do. There is ALWAYS something fun and exciting happening! Musical improv nights, live theatre productions, movie premieres, launch nights, etc... Not just that, but since it is such an iconic city, the chances of the event being jaw-

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Ahhhhh this is a risky resident band.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

HOROSCOPE/PUZZLES

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: With the sun and moon all visiting your cousin Sagittarius there's a lot of powerful energy in your life now. While this can appear to some as power trips it is up to you to figure it all out. You have a golden opportunity to manifest good stuff.

TAURUS: Your boss planet Venus is going into Sagittarius and could bring up powerful emotions in and around you. With this knowledge be ready to take a deep breath if confronted with any negative feedback. It's only the others' opinion.

GEMINI: You are coming to the end of a period which has been a roller-coaster in many ways. These next couple of weeks will bring resolutions and you will come to terms with an outstanding emotional situation - much to your benefit.

CANCER: You will gradually start to feel much more in control of your life this coming week or so. It's time for you to let go of what you need to from the past. Venus is visiting Sagittarius and is lightening up your feelings and you will feel mellow and can help you relax and enjoy life.

LEO: You will be feeling very upbeat and ready to do anything you want. You have three heavenly bodies – Mars, the Sun and the moon all assisting you. However in any personal area you would be wise to keep your words (or thoughts) to yourself.

VIRGO: Starting this week ahead you will not be lacking in motivation to complete (or indeed start) anything productive. This is a perfect time also for 'out with the old' thinking, so you can free up space for better things to come to you.

LIBRA: Your boss Venus is visiting your area of foreign affairs. This can bring up thoughts and people from the past. The fact that Venus is in a water sign is also important as this can be a sensitive time for you also. Be positive in thought and action.

SCORPIO: Mars and the sun and Mercury are all in the area of your finances. So this is the time to put anything not connected with this on a back burner. Before next week is over life will be moving forward in a positive path. While you still have unfinished business in relationships this soon will be resolved.

SAGITTARIUS: You could be offered some new work or other opportunity this coming month. Jupiter in your financial area now means nothing can really stop you, only you! With this in mind you can bring any unfinished area to the fore of your life, to finally be resolved.

CAPRICORN: Foreign affairs and distant places are calling you. This is all well and good if you can afford to follow the call. If like most of your sign you currently are not able to for various reasons, bear in mind that this is only on hold. Jupiter is finally heading your way.

AQUARIUS: You are may be struggling with relationship problems with someone in your life. This is not as it appears to you. It is entirely possible you have not been privy to the whole truth of the situation. If you are holding secrets it is best to own up.

PISCES: With Venus in your cousin sign now is the time to learn to leave the past few weeks behind and any confusion. Now it's time to be seen out and about socially and not be a wallflower. Your health should always be a priority, so be sure to look after YOU for a change.

In Pod We Trust

By Guest columnist SANDRO MONETTI

I'm at that age now when all my friends are having podcasts.

So I decided to join the trend, and it's proving one of the best decisions ever.

If you haven't done so already, please consider stepping into this fun medium yourself, not just as a listener but as a broadcaster too.

Create content in whatever areas interest you most and I'm sure you'll find plenty of listeners who love it as well – that's certainly been my experience.

The show I host, Who's the Best?, was inspired by lively conversations my friends and I have about TV, movie and music icons and so I decided to turn those debates into a weekly podcast and, using contacts from my day job as a celebrity interviewer, recruited many of my favourite stars as panelists.

Among those gracious enough to take part so far have been Doctor Who and Broadchurch star David Tennant, Burt Ward, who was Robin in the original TV Batman series, actress Michelle Collins, musician Matt Goss, Whose Line Is It Anyway funnyman Greg Proops and many more - and each episode has been a joy.

Especially this week's pod, Who's the Best 80's Pop Star, where the guests debating Madonna vs Michael Jackson and Prince or George Michael include Chesney Hawkes, of 'The One and Only' fame, Carol Decker of T'Pau, Wet Wet Wet's Graeme Clark and Denise Pearson of Five Star. Icons all.

I was especially impressed by Chesney. So many former teen idols have fallen victim to the darker side of the music business as they despair over lost stardom, obsess over a big comeback or follow a self- destructive path. But he's at peace with his place in pop history, lives a happy life with his wife and kids in LA, makes brilliant new music and loves heading back to Britain now and again to play the old songs which bring smiles to so many faces.

He understands the value of nostalgia and that's largely what this show is about – looking back fondly on the work of legends whose work brought, and continues to bring, joy to so many.

But, as with any successful project, Who's the Best wouldn't be possible without a talented and equally passionate team around me, including several friends from the rich talent pool that is Brits in LA. They include Dave King, who produced the series, Elizabeth Rossi who composed the catchy theme tune, along with comedienne Emma Pyne and actor Harry Van Gorkum who co-host with me on several episodes. I also have British-based Right Angles, the best PR company in the world in my view, promoting and distributing the show and I urge you to involve your friends and contacts to help make any podcast you create the best it can be too.

You can listen to Who's the Best via the show's website, www. whosthebest.fm, or on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Get ready for a new episode of the #podcast! Tomorrow

We no longer have to wait for James Corden,

Jimmy Kimmel or Lilly Singh to give up their shows to get on air ourselves. The airwaves are open to everyone now thanks to the wonderful world of podcasts. So grab some friends and a microphone and go make something magic. The world is waiting for you!

David Pemsel: leaving before he arrived...

New Premier League boss red cards himself

Newly-appointed Premier League chief executive David Pemsel has resigned before starting the job.

Pemsel appointed in October, and was due to start in February, but has stood down following newspaper allegations about his private life.

The Premier League said Richard Masters will stay as interim chief executive.

Pemsel was the third person to be offered the job following the departure of ex-chief executive Richard Scudamore, who left in November 2018.

Susanna Dinnage was originally named Scudamore's successor but later declined the role to remain at media organisation Discovery.

Tim Davie also turned down the chance to take up the post.

The Premier League said in a statement: "Following media disclosures earlier this week and discussions with David Pemsel, the Premier League has today accepted David's resignation and he will no longer be joining as chief executive."

P e m s e 1 's appointment unanimously approved at a special Premier League shareholders' meeting in October.

At the time, Chelsea chairman Bruce Buck, who is also chairman of the Premier League nominations committee, said Pemsel: "His straightforward style and personal integrity make him an ideal person to lead the business."

Prem duo eye Moyes to replace duds clubs gathers pace.

The Scotsman finds himself in the box seat for both jobs, with the futures of Marco Silva at Everton and Manuel Pellegrini at West Ham far from certain. Silva is feeling the heat after Everton's alarming 2-0 home loss to Norwich on Saturday, while Pellegrini is under pressure at the London Stadium after his fifth defeat in six Premier League games on Saturday. Both boards are keen to support their managers but the two clubs have free agent Moyes, 56, at the top of their lists if their current bosses are unable to stop the rot.

Sources close to the former United manager claim the Scot is interested in listening to the West Ham board and is hungry for a way back into football.

after the Portuguese won in Switzerland to prevent Rangers sealing a knockout place for the first time since 2011.

After falling behind in Rotterdam to Jens Toornstra's opener, two brilliant second-half Alfredo Morelos headers had Rangers ahead before Luis Sinisterra's solo effort levelled the score.

In scoring his 23rd and 24th goals of the season, Morelos becomes the first Rangers player to net in four consecutive matches in a major European competition.

He nodded in Ryan Kent's swerving ball to haul his side level after Feyenoord had dominated the first half, striking a post through Leroy Fer and drawing several big saves from Allan McGregor.

Then the Colombia striker flicked a Borna Barisic cross delicately into the net before the Dutch roared back to claim a point.

CELTIC confirmed top spot in Europa League Group E with one game to spare after a comfortable 3-1 win over Rennes.

avoid Champions League dropouts in February's last 32.

Lewis Morgan's second Celtic goal and a Ryan Christie effort had the hosts in control, and Mikey Johnston added to the tally with a superb one-two finish.

Adrien Hunou's glancing header provided a late consolation for the French side.

Celtic will conclude their campaign in Romania against Cluj in two weeks in a game that is now a dead rubber.

Olivier Ntcham and Scott Brown were impressively influential in the middle of the park, Christie was his usual buzz-bomb in attack and Morgan - playing in alien territory as Edouard's replacement - was excellent. When James Forrest came off, Johnston went on and his goal was the pick of the bunch. All three goalscorers were young Scottish players,

Reds blow as Fabinho crocked until New Year

BAD NEWS: the Brazilian has been a key figure for Liverpool this term

Liverpool midfielder Fabinho will be out until next year with the ankle injury he suffered against Napoli.

The Brazilian went off after 19 minutes of Wednesday's Champions League group game, which the Reds drew 1-1, after he fell awkwardly making a challenge.

Liverpool said the 26-year-old had "suffered ankle ligament damage" and will be out "until the new year".

"Losing a player of the quality of Fabinho is big. Really bad," said Reds manager Jurgen Klopp.

"It is bad news. Timeframe - we are not sure 100% but looks pretty sure he will not be involved in Christmas fixtures. "We have to replace him and we can replace him. Now it's important that he does the right things and is back as soon as possible.

"Until then, we have to find solutions. We are not the only team with injured players and that's what we have to deal with, and we will."

The Reds have 11 games over the next 34 days in the Premier League, Champions League, Carabao Cup and Club World Cup.

Fabinho has started 12 out 13 league games this season and all five European fixtures.

Liverpool are eight points clear at the top of the Premier League and host Brighton - a game Fabinho would have been suspended for anyway - on Saturday at 15:00 GMT.

■ Old boy Ljungberg takes over at Emirates Europa league reverse final straw for Arsenal

Unai Emery has been sacked Arsenal as manager after 18 months in charge.

The Spaniard, who previously led Paris St-Germain to the French league title and won three Europa Leagues with Sevilla, was appointed Gunners boss in May 2018, succeeding Arsene Wenger.

He has been replaced on a temporary basis by assistant and former midfielder Arsenal Freddie Ljungberg.

Arsenal said had decision been "taken due to results and performances not being at the level required".

The Gunners have not won in seven games and lost 2-1 at home to Eintracht Frankfurt in the Europa League on Thursday.

It is their worst run without a victory since February 1992, which was eight games under George Graham.

They are without a Premier League victory since 6 October and eight points off the top four.

Ljungberg took training on Friday and the Arsenal statement added: "We have full confidence in Freddie to take us forward.

"The search for a new head coach is under way and we will make a further announcement when that process is complete."

Ljungberg posted on social media: "However long I oversee Arsenal for I will give everything I have to put smiles on faces again. We have a busy few weeks ahead and the team needs your support. Let's get to work."

Arsenal's head of football Raul Sanllehi and technical director Edu informed Emery at about 09:00 on Friday and the players were told at 10:00 as they arrived for a recovery session.

Ljungberg addressed the players and Emery also had the chance to say goodbye.

Several reports claimed the club had identified Wolves boss Nuno Espirito Santo as a potential replacement for Emery.

names linked Other with the post include former Tottenham manager Mauricio Pochettino, Manchester City assistant coach Mikel Arteta, ex-Juventus boss Massimiliano Allegri and Bournemouth Eddie Howe.

The Arsenal Supporters' Trust (AST) said Emery's dismissal "unfortunate but was inevitable" and "more difficult challenge is to recruit a suitable successor".

It added: "We are far from certain that Arsenal has the right personnel to lead this process.

"The AST has long been advocating that the most important changes needed at Arsenal are in the boardroom where Arsenal need better governance."

Arsenal finished fifth in 48-year-old Emery's first season in charge at Emirates Stadium after he replaced Wenger.

They went into this season having spent more than £130m in the summer after signing winger Nicolas Pepe, centre-back David Luiz, left-back Kieran Tierney, striker Gabriel Martinelli and defender William Saliba, who will join next

Europa eague Round-l

Wolves qualified for the knockout stages of the Europa League after playing out a thrilling draw with Braga in Portugal on Thursday.

Nuno Espirito Santo's side arrived at the Estadio Municipal de Braga a point behind the hosts and Group K leaders, needing a point to progress with a game to spare.

And they claimed the point they needed from an exciting encounter that saw them fall behind early on and race into a 3-1 lead before being pegged back.

Andre Horta's deflected effort off Ruben Neves gave the hosts an early advantage.

But the visitors responded in emphatic fashion, scoring three first-half goals, with Raul Jimenez's headed equaliser the catalyst for the turnaround.

After nodding Jonny's cross to level, the Mexican's delivery enabled Matt Doherty to put Wolves ahead, with Adama Traore's low effort a minute later, from another Jimenez pass, doubling Wolves' lead.

However, Braga are now unbeaten in 12 European matches after they fought back in the second half.
