Farewell, 'wor Jackie'...

Thousands turn out to bid adieu to World Cup hero Charlton

Thousands of people lined the streets of football great Jack Charlton's hometown this week to pay their respects ahead of his funeral.

Former Republic of Ireland boss Charlton, who won the World Cup playing for England, died on 10 July aged 85.

He was born in Ashington, Northumberland, and often returned to the former mining town.

Well-wishers applauded and cheered as the cortege passed through the streets, with many waving flags and banners.

His family said they had been "overwhelmed" by the support shown and added "he would have been thrilled by the outpouring of kindness".

People threw flowers on the hearse as it passed slowly through the town where he and his younger brother Sir Bobby honed their football skills.

The procession slowed as it passed close to the terraced house on Beatrice Street where the Charltons once lived and played in the back lane.

Floral tributes in the hearse included a football and a red England shirt with "Jackie 5" on it.

The cortege then made its way to a private service at a crematorium in Newcastle, where just a small number of relatives attended due to coronavirus restrictions.

The family said Sir Bobby had not been well enough to be there.

In a eulogy at the service, his grandchildren, Emma, Kate and Tom Wilkinson, paid tribute to "a proud Englishman, a proud northerner and a proud honorary Irishman".

"The footballer, the friend, the family man we all knew was forged in Ashington - during a happy childhood with the parents and three brothers he always loved dearly.

'bloody knackered'

"As they whiled away hours kicking a ball around Hirst Park, Grandad could never have imagined how remarkable his life would go on to be."

Referencing him dropping to his knees at the end of the World Cup final in 1966, they added: "Many have often wondered what he was thinking - was it pure elation? Was it the gravity of the achievement?"

"Was it relief that the hopes of a nation had been realised? Well he always told us he was just bloody knackered."

The former Leeds United defender had been diagnosed with lymphoma in recent years and was suffering from dementia.

In more than 20 seasons with the club, he made 773 appearances and won the 1969 league title and the 1972 FA Cup.

He later found success managing the Republic of Ireland, but his family said while his achievements brought him recognition "he always had his feet firmly on the ground".

"It's clear that the many fleeting moments of kindness he showed to strangers had a lasting impact, and we're extremely proud to be able to say that the man everyone met is the man we knew.

"A man who struck the balance so perfectly between football icon, fan favourite and loving family man."

Speaking before the funeral, his son John said: "Many will know now that, as a family, we wanted to give local people the opportunity to say goodbye to Jack, and pay their respects before he's laid to rest.

"Jack was incredibly proud of his hometown, which is why we made the decision to take the cont. on page 4, col. 1

Tories probed over links to big Russian donors

The Conservative Party's finances came under renewed scrutiny this week as it emerged that two of its MPs on the intelligence watchdog committee and 14 ministers had accepted donations linked to Russia.

Electoral Commission records show that six members of the cabinet and eight junior ministers received tens of thousands of pounds from individuals or businesses with links to Russia. The donations were made either to them or their constituency parties.

The disclosures came 24 hours after the intelligence and security committee (ISC) published its long-delayed Russia report and questioned whether the government "took its eye off the ball" by allowing oligarchs to invest billions of pounds in Britain and make high-level political connections.

Theresa Villiers and Mark Pritchard are facing calls to return the money that they had accepted in donations to their constituency parties or resign from the committee.

The donations came from Lubov Chernukhin and Alexander Temerko, or companies in which Mr Temerko is involved.

Mrs Villiers, the former environment secretary, received £2,000 through her local Chipping Barnet party in October last year from Mrs Chernukhin, who has given more than £1.7 million to the Conservatives since 2012. Mr Pritchard, MP for The Wrekin in Shropshire, received £5,000 from the energy firm Aquind for his constituency in June last year. Mr Temerko, the former chief of a Russian state arms company, is a director of the energy company.

'racist'

Both MPs received the money before they became members of the committee this month. Neither Mrs Villiers nor Mr Pritchard was involved in the evidence sessions for the report, held during the previous parliament.

On Thursday Brandon Lewis, the Northern Ireland secretary, defended the right of Tory MPs to accept donations from Russian individuals.

He said it would be "racist" to refuse donations because of a person's nationality.

He earlier told Sky News: "The reason you know who I've had donations from is they are published as part of the register of declarations. They are British citizens and have the right to play a full part in the democratic process."

"My personal experience as [former] chairman of the party and as an MP who's received donations is that they've never asked for anything. They've done it because they support the Conservative Party."

Mr Temerko, 53, and Mrs Chernukhin, 48, are British citizens although both were born in the former Soviet Union. Their donations are legal and were properly declared. In 2007 they overlapped briefly as directors of an engineering company, part of which later became Aquind. The new company, which is planning to build a subsea power cable from Britain to France, has close links to the Tory party.

Alok Sharma, the business secretary, received £10,000 from Aquind in January via his constituency party. Mr Sharma has recused himself from determining whether the Aquind interconnector should get the go-ahead. Stewart McDonald, the SNP defence spokesman, said that Mrs Villiers and Mr Pritchard should return the donations or stand down from the committee. Mr Pritchard said: "All donations to the Conservative Party and its MPs are received in good faith, after appropriate due diligence, from permissible sources. Donations are properly and transparently declared to the Electoral Commission and parliament, and comply fully with the law".

Old soldier Philip shines at regimental hand-over

PRINCE Philip showed he had lost none of his trademark rapier wit as he ribbed an Army bugler about his role and weight this week.

The 99-year-old Duke (above) was on sparkling form when he broke off his retirement to fulfill a military engagement. He appeared at Windsor Castle on Wednesday to take part in the official handover of his role as Colonel-in-Chief of The Rifles, ending a connection which stretches back almost 70 years.

Afterwards he spoke to Lance Corporal Colin Streetin, 33, who said:

"He asked me if that was all I did, the bugling, and I told him we were assault pioneers as well."

"He said, 'Obviously keeping up your fitness then?' and looked me up and down and I was thinking, 'Are you trying to say I am fat?!' That's what we were laughing about. He's a very fit man himself for 99. Just incredible."

The Duke, immaculately attired with a regimental tie and gleaming brogues, participated in a three-minute socially-distanced ceremony to say goodbye to the regiment.

Its Assistant Colonel

Commandant, Major General Tom Copinger-Symes, offered the salute and thanked him for his "continuous service, support and leadership" over 67 years.

The Rifles were only formed in 2007 but Philip has been connected with units that preceded it since 1953. A similar service to the one at Windsor was held at the same time at Highgrove House for the Duchess of Cornwall, who is officially taking Philip's place as the Colonel-in-Chief. ## Surprise royal wedding: Princess Beatrice marries in private ceremony at Windsor Princess Beatrice has got married in a private ceremony, with her grandmother Queen Elizabeth II in attendance.

Beatrice married Edoardo Mapelli Mozzi Friday last week at The Royal Chapel of All Saints at Royal Lodge, Windsor.

The Duke of Edinburgh and other close family members also attended.

Guidelines in place to stop the spread of COVID-19 were followed, the palace said.

Beatrice, the daughter of Prince Andrew and his former wife Sarah Ferguson, had originally planned to marry the property tycoon on May 29 in the Chapel Royal at St James's Palace. The ceremony was postponed because of the pandemic.

The families of the newlyweds have known one another for many years. The pair are said to have started a relationship after meeting again at the wedding of Beatrice's sister, Princess Eugenie.

Andrew and Sarah, who remain on very good terms despite their 1996 divorce, said at the time of Beatrice's engagement that they were "thrilled" with the news.

Their younger daughter, Eugenie, married Jack Brooksbank in 2018.

The groom later posted pictures from their nuptials on his Instagram account. One romantic image captures the newlyweds wandering the grounds of the Royal Lodge, Beatrice's childhood home.

In the caption, Mozzi spelled out the E.E. Cummings poem "[i carry your heart with me (i carry it in)," which reads:

"I carry your heart with me (i carry it in my heart) i am never without it (anywhere i go you go, my dear; and whatever is done by only me is your doing, my darling) i fear no fate (for you are my fate, my sweet) i want no world (for beautiful you are my world, my true) and it's you are whatever a moon has always meant and whatever a sun will always sing is you.

"Here is the deepest secret nobody knows (here is the root of the root and the bud of the bud and the sky of the sky of a tree called life; which grows higher than the soul can hope or mind can hide) and this is the wonder that's keeping the stars apart."

The poem is one of the couple's favorites, and it was incorporated into their marriage ceremony. Per Buckingham Palace, "The service included two of the couple's favourite poems, read by their Mothers, and a biblical reading."

no Andrew

In addition to Cummings's stanzas, Shakespeare's Sonnet 116, which begins "Let me not to the marriage of true minds" and St. Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, chapter 13, verses 1-13, were also read. Conspicuously absent from the pictures was the bride's father, Prince Andrew, 60, who has quit royal duties over his friendship with the late US paedophile Jeffrey Epstein, although he did attend the service Battalion, was officially welcomed to her new role by Colonel Commandant General Sir Patrick Sanders.

Wednesday was Salamanca Day, the anniversary of a battle in Spain in 1812 in which regiments which were later merged to form The Rifles fought with great distinction. The anniversary was remarked upon by Major General Copinger-Symes as he wished Prince Philip all the best.

The officer hoped for "fair wind and following seas" – a salute to Philip's service with the Royal Navy – and handed charge to the Bugle Major. Four buglers then sounded The Rifles Assembly call, followed by the No More Parades call. When they finished the Major General asked Philip if he would like to speak to the buglers personally. The Duke, who had a hip replacement in 2018, appeared to momentarily hesitate but then carefully navigated stone steps to walk across the gravel quadrangle. He spoke to all four buglers before making his way back inside the castle.

with his ex-wife Sarah, 60, and walked his daughter down the aisle. Edoardo's parents and Wolfie did not feature in the official photos either. Buckingham Palace said: "The couple decided to hold a small private ceremony with their parents and siblings following the postponement of their wedding in May.

"The service was in keeping with the unique circumstances while enabling them to celebrate with their closest family."

The Queen lent Beatrice a vintage diamond encrusted Norman Hartnell peau de soie taffeta dress in shades of ivory and trimmed with duchess satin. Also on loan from the Queen was her Queen Mary diamond fringe tiara, which the monarch wore on her wedding day. Pressure on Andrew has intensified following the US arrest of his close friend, Epstein's ex-girlfriend Ghislaine Maxwell. The FBI wants to question Andrew over his friendship with Epstein. The billionaire killed himself in prison last summer while awaiting trial on further charges.

Bojo blasts Begum ruling

BORIS Johnson has vowed to review the "odd and perverse" legal aid rules after a court ruled that Shamima Begum could return to the UK.

The Prime Minister revealed ministers are looking at who qualifies for the support after the Court of Appeal ruled she could return to fight the decision to strip her of British citizenship. Ms Begum was one of three east London schoolgirls who travelled to Syria to join Islamic State. She will be monitored around the clock by police and security services on her return if she does not face immediate custody.

Mr Johnson said: "It seems to me to be at least odd and perverse that somebody can be entitled to legal aid when they are not only outside the country, but have had their citizenship deprived for the protection of national security.

"What we are looking at is whether there are some ways in which judicial review does indeed go too far or have perverse consequences."

funeral cortege around Ashington."

The funeral procession left the Charlton family home in Dalton, Northumberland, and was met by a police escort in Ashington before going along Newbiggin Road into the town centre.

It stopped outside Hirst Welfare Centre, where Charlton and Sir Bobby played football as children, before travelling to the crematorium.

Loophole that helped Harry's 'killer' is closed

BRITAIN and the US have agreed to end the "anomaly" that allowed Harry Dunn's alleged killer to leave the UK, claiming diplomatic immunity.

A court heard last month that the "secret agreement" allowed US diplomat's wife Anne Sacoolas, 42, to return after a road crash which killed Harry, 19, near RAF Croughton, Northamptonshire, last August. Foreign Secretary Dominic Raab said on Monday that families of US diplomats at the base will no longer have immunity. Harry's mother Charlotte Charles praised the "huge step forward".

Mr Raab said: "It's important that we have now agreed with the US new arrangements that have closed the anomaly that led to the denial of justice in the heartbreaking case of Harry Dunn.

"The new arrangements mean it could not happen again."

Reds star's home burgled

Fabinho's home was burgled as the Liverpool footballer celebrated the team's "momentous" Premier League win, police have said.

Thieves broke in to the Brazilian midfielder's home on the day the Reds were presented with their first top flight trophy in 30 years.

Items of jewellery and an Audi RS6 were stolen during the raid, in Formby, Sefton, Merseyside Police said. The car was later recovered in Wigan.

Liverpool FC declined to comment.

Police said thieves targeted the footballer's home sometime between 15:00 BST on Wednesday and 04:00 on Thursday.

Sir Elton's ex-wife seeking £3m damages over 'broken' divorce deal

■ Renate Blauel says singer's memoir and biopic violated agreement

Sir Elton John's ex-wife, Renate Blauel, is seeking an estimated £3m in damages amid claims the singer broke the terms of their divorce deal.

The sound engineer, who was married to the star for four years, is suing over passages in Sir Elton's 2019 memoir Me, and the hit movie Rocketman.

mental health

Ms Blauel claims these revealed details of the marriage, breaking an agreement they made when they divorced in 1988.

The disclosures triggered long-standing mental health problems, her claim said.

In response, Sir Elton's defence acknowledged the existence of the divorce agreement, which both parties signed, but denied any breaches or causing "psychological harm".

According to papers filed at the High Court in London, Sir Elton agreed to remove certain passages from his autobiography before it was published last year, and in the final draft, Ms Blauel only appears on eight pages.

'dignified'

Sir Elton describes her in positive terms throughout the book, calling her "dignified", "decent" and "someone I couldn't fault in any way".

However, Ms Blauel claims some of the remaining passages "seriously misrepresented the nature of their relationship".

For instance, Sir Elton claimed in his book that he did not enter their marriage with the intention of starting a family. Ms Blauel

Ms Blauel has never spoken publicly about her marriage to Sir Elton contests that they "did attempt to have children during their relationship but were unable to do so".

A request to have this passage removed was rejected, according to court documents.

She also claimed not to have been consulted about her appearance in Rocketman, in which she was played by Celine Schoenmaker - although the marriage took up less than five minutes of screentime.

'great anxiety'

Ms Blauel also said that, following the release of the movie and the memoir, a journalist had "been trying to locate her in her local village", causing her "great anxiety".

Her lawyer, Yisrael Hiller, claimed that Sir Elton had "ignored" his promise to keep the details of their marriage private.

"Renate is particularly upset by the film," he added.

"In her mind, the film seeks to portray their marriage as a sham, which she wholeheartedly disputes and considers a false and disrespectful portrayal of their time together.

"Renate wants the privacy that was promised to her - that is why she is seeking an injunction. Any claim for monetary relief is secondary, and would just cover damages and future expenses caused by Elton's breaches."

'respectful'

Her court filing does not suggest a figure for the damages, but the £3m sum is referred to in Sir Elton's defence, as a figure that had been disclosed in previous correspondence between the two parties.

A source close to the singer told the BBC: "Elton is shocked and saddened by Renate's claim after 30 years of a mutually amicable and respectful divorce, especially as he has only ever praised her publicly."

The pair met in 1983, as Sir Elton recorded his comeback album Two Low For Zero at London's Air Studios, where Ms Blauel worked as an engineer.

The couple married the following year in Australia, with Ms Blauel telling United Press International:

"He's the nicest guy I've ever met".

'huge guilt'

However, they divorced four years later. Sir Elton, who had told Rolling Stone magazine in 1976 that he was bisexual, subsequently told the same publication he was "quite comfortable being gay".

The star went on to marry filmmaker David Furnish in 2005, and the couple have two children.

Ms Blauel has kept a low profile since the divorce, but Sir Elton has previously spoken of his "huge guilt and regret" over the hurt he caused her.

Details of their legal dispute first emerged last month, when Ms Blauel filed for an injunction at London's High Court. Further details emerged after Sir Elton's team filed a response this week.

Brits in LA

Getting back to work the safe way

In March of this year I was producing on "The World According To Jeff Goldblum".

We already had one episode of the second season in the can. And I was scouting for the upcoming episode.

While waiting in the departure lounge of Burbank Airport I remember how funny it was to see someone on the TV demonstrating how to wash your hands correctly and as I stepped on to my 10th flight of the year...it was suddenly the very first week of what we now know as a pandemic.

Onboard I was the only one wearing a mask and was receiving strange looks as I took out my disinfectant and wiped down the back side of the seat in front of me, the seat belt buckle, the screen and the drop down table, the arm-rests and the window and it's shutter. "Isn't that a little extreme" laughed the elderly lady seated next to me. "You never can be too careful." I replied and offered her a wipe. She refused. That was my last flight for awhile and sorry lady, who's laughing now?

At the time of writing this we just crossed over 4 million cases and have lost 145,000 lives in the US alone. Let that sink in for a minute. Remember March. March 17 to be exact I took a screenshot of all the confirmed cases of coronavirus it stood at 4,476 with only 81 deceased. In just four months.

So during the last 18 weeks I decided to start to learn more, educate myself I took classes and courses and dived into medical websites, to absorb as much information as possible. I also realized if we in the entertainment industry were to get back to work anytime soon, we'd need to do it as carefully and safely as possible. The unions banded together and came out with a guide called "the safe way forward" and AMPTP came out with "The White Papers" and of course every state and county have their guidelines too on how to do this the best way possible. My good friend Liz Sterling a Brits in LA member and great Scottish lass is also in the biz and had started taking courses on Covid-19 compliance and so I asked her about it. I jumped on one called I-safe C19Co and it piqued my interest.

More courses followed and I came up with a system based upon the guidelines that I thought could work really well. And of course as we know this plan and the guidance are not foolproof as we have to rely upon the cast and crew to be competent, reliable and mindful, on and off set. I set out to let a few people know about my company plan and how I planned to implement about testing and epidemiologists about the disease itself. I booked a few small jobs as a Covid-19 compliance officer to test out my new model and staying well within the guidelines, I was happy to report that it worked.

During this time I've had lots of enquiries from friends looking to get into this type of work. My response is that it's not for the faint of heart. It's a lot of hard work, you have to have at least five years of onset experience, in my opinion, you need a producer's mind, dealing with logistics, you have to have the respect of your peers, you have to be inspiring but steadfast, authoritative but caring. People are going to want you to be in ten different places at the same time. You are the first on set and the last on set.

I truly think people miss being on sets and everyone is eager to get back to work. But I have to tell you sets aren't going to be a fun place for a while. There's no chit-chatting at the craft service tables or high-five-ing your colleagues when you get "the shot". And absolutely no martinis after wrap. The masks are very uncomfortable, itchy hot and tight. It's very hard to communicate. The face shields constantly fog up. It's not pretty.

We are so wired to work a certain way and now you have to learn it all anew with these added safety protocols. You are constantly thinking 'did I sanitize that tool before handing it off?' 'Should I have handed it off?' Wishing that one person wouldn't keep standing so close to you. Needing to wash your hands but you're too busy. Stressing, worrying, second guessing yourself....

Complacency is the biggest enemy. People tend to fall back into their old routine. It's easy to do, trust me... but on my last job, a four day 75-person commercial for Chevy, we started out with a set full of nervous first-timers trying to navigate these "New Rules" and a few anti-maskers with some defiant people crossing social distancing zones.

It was a challenge but over time it became a joyful and thankful set. The crew really started to listen and take it in and realize that they have a responsibility to each other. They learned that it's better to have a conversation six feet apart than wind up six feet under. People could take a break to get some fresh air if they needed to. The crew would start musing about which hand-sanitizer smelled the best. The directors were respectful if someone felt uncomfortable. In the end people were non-combative and compliant. They had found their new rhythm. We all slowed down and took time to do it the safe way.

This is a new world, a crazy one at that. But we can all do our part in keeping ourselves, each other and our communities safe.

To that end I wish you all keep safe out there, keep wearing your masks, wash your hands regularly and if someone is your space it's okay to tell them to keep their distance.

Stokes and Broad combine as hosts win second Test

Ben Stokes and Stuart Broad again provided the inspiration for England to complete a series-levelling 113-run victory over West Indies in the second Test at Emirates Old Trafford on Monday.

Stokes cracked 78 not out from 57 balls to allow England to declare on 129-3, setting West Indies 312 to win or 85 overs to survive.

Broad took 3-1 on the fourth evening and tore through the top order with three more wickets on Monday to leave West Indies 37-4.

Their recovery came in the shape of a century partnership between Jermaine Blackwood and Shamarh Brooks, who both made fifties.

Stokes produced the breakthrough, having the tangled Blackwood top-edge a pull to a diving Jos Buttler in a sustained spell of short bowling.

Further resistance came from West Indies captain Jason Holder but, when he was bowled by Dom Bess, England could scent victory.

The win was completed with nearly 15 overs to spare, Bess having Kemar Roach caught at short leg to leave West Indies 198 all out and the series level at 1-1.

The only concern for England was the sight of Stokes pulling up mid-over, appearing to hold his groin, late in the day, but he said there are no concerns over his availability for the third and final Test which began on Friday at the same ground.

KEY MAN: Stokes cracked 78 not out for England this victory one match after Stokes, as stand-in captain, was part of the decision to omit Broad for the first Test, leaving the pace bowler "angry, frustrated and gutted".

While Broad responded with a reminder of his enduring quality, Stokes produced another sensational all-round display.

With England resuming on 37-2 and looking for quick runs on the final morning, Stokes - on 16 after opening the batting - signalled his intent with a glorious loft over long-off for six off pace bowler Roach in the first over.

Let off on 29 when John Campbell dropped a simple chance at deep cover, Stokes moved to 50 from 36 balls - the fastest half-century in Tests by an England opener - and took his match tally to 254 runs after his careful 176 in the first innings.

Broad's burst revived England on Sunday, and he picked up where he left off, nipping the ball in to the right-handers from a full length, endangering pads and stumps.

held up, Stokes produced another Herculean spell of 11 overs to open the door, and the hosts chipped away from there.

West Indies have been determined with the bat throughout the series, and their spirit almost ensured they escaped this match with a draw.

After 15 overs, they were in disarray. Campbell played an awful drive to be caught behind, Shai Hope was bowled by one that nipped back and Roston Chase was lbw shouldering arms, all to Broad. Kraigg Brathwaite was stuck on the crease to be leg before to Woakes.

However, Blackwood rescued West Indies from 27-3 in Southampton and he counter-attacked here. Brooks was more circumspect, but also hit Bess for two straight sixes. They were parted when Blackwood flapped at Stokes, Buttler taking a wonderful catch, and after Shane Dowrich and Brooks were leg before to Woakes and Curran respectively, only Holder and the tail remained.

Bess had endured a frustrating afternoon, but two balls after he was launched for a straight six by Holder, he fizzed a quicker ball through the captain's defence.

Stokes had Alzarri Joseph held at point by Bess before hobbling to his fielding position in the slips midway through an over, leaving Bess to take the final wicket.

Leeds confirm top flight return in style

LEEDS LIFTED the Championship title trophy with a swagger on Monday - and dumped old boy Lee Bowyer out of the Championship.

As a party kicked off inside and outside of Elland Road, with players jubilantly hoisting the trophy and dancing on the pitch, there was also a Charlton relegation wake.

Bowyer was among the stars who experienced the last glory days at Leeds, including Champions League football two decades ago. Now a manager, on his first return to the Yorkshire club, he ended up ruthlessly dispatched back to League One.

For the first time since lockdown it felt like a normal match day around Elland Road - fireworks launched during the match over the South Stand as many supporters ignored the pandemic and the advice of the club and council to be near to their title winners.

They clinched the title with an unstoppable run since February, losing just once and winning 12 of 15 games - including their past six.
