Hard times are here...many will lose jobs, says Rishi

Worse to come, says Chancellor as jobless numbers soar

RISHI Sunak has warned that "hard times are here" and "many more people" will lose their jobs after new figures showed a surge in unemployment.

Since March – when lockdown began – 695,000 UK workers have been removed from the payrolls of British companies.

Unemployment rose by 62,000 to 1.4 million in the three months to July, according to the Office for National Statistics (ONS).

Cabinet ministers, who met on Tuesday under the leadership of Boris Johnson, were told that the increase – from 3.9 per cent to 4.1 per cent of all working-age people – was in line with analysts' expectations.

Young workers have been hardest hit, with 13.4 per cent of "economically active" people aged 16 to 24 now out of work. This is a rise of 76,000 since this time last year.

And companies continue to announce redundancies due to the pandemic. The latest was London City Airport, which announced on Monday that 239 jobs are to go.

Responding to the gloomy figures, Mr Sunak said: "I've said before that hard times were ahead, and today's figures confirm that hard times are here."

'Jobs crisis'

"Hundreds of thousands of people have already lost their jobs, and sadly in the coming months many more will."

But he added: "I can assure people that nobody will be left without hope or opportunity."

The ONS also confirmed that the UK was suffering its first recession since the financial crisis of 2008/9. Its figures showed the economy shrank by 20.4 per cent between April and June this year.

Separately, estimates from the Centre for Retail Research found more than 125,000 jobs had been lost in the shopping sector alone.

But Mr Sunak told Sky News he was confident the economy would recover as people adjusted to a "new normal" after the easing of lockdown restrictions.

He added: "As people get back to going shopping, or going out for a meal, or indeed getting back to their office, they will see that it's a new normal, it's a safe normal."

Asked why the UK had been hit harder than other G7 economies, he said: "Social activities – for example going out for a meal, going to the cinema, shopping – comprise a much larger share of our economy."

However, Labour's shadow chancellor Anneliese Dodds blamed the Government for failing to take enough action to prevent mass unemployment.

She said: "A downturn was inevitable after cont. on page 2, col. 4

Britain 'to quit human rights act'

■ Opt-out likely to ease migrant deportation

BRITAIN is poised to withdraw from European human rights laws, making it easier to deport migrants and more difficult to sue UK soldiers overseas.

Ministers are considering opt-outs from the Human Rights Act in areas the Government believes European judges have "overreached".

The legislation was originally signed into British law in November 1998.

An opt-out would prevent a significant number of migrants using the legislation to avoid deportation from the UK.

More than 6,000 people this year have already made the treacherous journey across the English Channel from Northern France.

Details of a Government review will be announced in the coming weeks.

Patel vows to act as migrant crossings reach new high

A DOZEN migrants crammed into a small inflatable dinghy stepped on to a beach near Dover on Monday – watched by an astonished fisherman.

It is understood at least four boats made the treacherous crossing the same day as sunshine and calm seas provided perfect conditions.

Home Secretary Priti Patel is under growing pressure and considering a draconian clampdown on asylum rights in a bid to halt the flow of Channel migrants.

Record numbers of illegal crossings have been made in recent weeks.

Among the ideas being considered is a "nuclear option" to ban people from claiming asylum if they arrive in the UK from a safe country such as France.

Ministers are also looking at curbing the right of failed asylum seekers to fight deportation in the courts.

Both moves would breach the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR), which is implemented in the UK via the Human Rights Act.

Intensifying

More than 6,100 migrants have crossed the English Channel on small boats this year, with the crisis intensifying in recent weeks and months.

On Monday the 12 pictured – all without lifejackets – landed at Kingsdown beach, seven miles from Dover.

The asylum seekers – it is believed all males – were shouting as the tiny vessel approached the shingle beach.

Once landed, they leapt out and ran toward nearby trees. Many wore hoodies and one was carrying a backpack.

Later, the dinghy was seen being towed back out to sea and taken on board the Border Force cutter Seeker, which arrived in the area soon after the landings.

In Kingsdown village, Kent Police and Coastguard officials were seen talking to residents following the landing.

Down the coast, more migrants were taken into the port of Dover.

People wearing blankets and lifejackets were seen on board Border Force patrol boat Hunter before being escorted up a gangway.

So far in September, 1,145 migrants have arrived on UK shores. That includes a single-day record of 416 on 28 boats on September 2.

The Government has limited scope for action until the Brexit transition lockdown – Boris Johnson's jobs crisis wasn't."

Meanwhile separate data from the ONS showed that more than half of furloughed workers had returned to work by mid-August. At the scheme's peak, in May, 30 per cent of the British workforce was furloughed – falling to 11 per cent by mid-August.

And it is expected that more people will have gone back to work in the last month.

The figures were compounded by the fact we are currently restricted in our response by EU regulations."

On Monday the Prime Minister's official spokesman said: "We have been working with the French authorities published after the Chancellor visited ceramics company Emma Bridgewater in Stoke-on-Trent. Nearly all of its workforce recently went back after being furloughed.

During the visit, Mr Sunak raised awareness of the Job Retention Bonus that will support companies returning staff to work.

They will get £1,000 for everyone they take back, as long as those employees are kept on until at least the end of January.

Mr Sunak said: "The furlough scheme has done what it was designed to do – save close on seeking to stop people from making these dangerous, life-threatening journeys, and the Government has also been taking strong action to deal with the criminal gangs who are facilitating this travel."

jobs and help people back to work, where they want to be.

"We were clear at the start of the pandemic that we couldn't save every job, but the furlough scheme has supported millions of workers – and we want to help employers keep people on. Our Job Retention Bonus will do exactly that."

But Nye Cominetti, senior economist at the Resolution Foundation think tank, warned of an "extremely challenging" autumn ahead.

He said: "All the evidence points to a mounting jobs crisis across Britain."

New restrictions in north-east

New restrictions to halt a rise in coronavirus cases have come into force in north-east England, affecting almost two million people.

The temporary measures, which started at midnight on Thursday, are to tackle "concerning rates of infection" in the region.

The rules affect Newcastle, Gateshead, Sunderland, Northumberland, South Tyneside, North Tyneside and the County Durham council area.

Pubs and restaurants must shut early and household-mixing has been limited.

Responding to the rise in infections, Newcastle City Council leader Nick Forbes said: "The evidence we've found from local testing is that it's spreading in three main areas - in pubs, in people's homes and in grassroots sports."

Meanwhile, new local lockdown restrictions are to be introduced in most of Lancashire, with the exception of Blackpool.

An announcement on measures in parts of north-west England was expected from the government after press time on Friday.

Liverpool Mayor Joe Anderson told the Liverpool Echo "we fully expect" additional restrictions as infection rates in the city have risen above 100 per 100,000 of population.

Clunes to retire Doc Martin after 17 years

HE'S said it before – but Martin Clunes has revealed that TV's Doc Martin really is going to hang up his stethoscope after the next series.

The 58-year-old, (pictured) who makes the ITV drama with his producer wife Philippa Braithwaite, said it will end for good after filming finishes next year.

He added: "When we launched the series in 2004 we could never have imagined how much our loyal viewers would take to the grumpy Doc like they have. The series has avid fans both in the UK and throughout the world and we are thrilled that Doc Martin has topped the ratings every time.

"However, after 16 years we now feel that the time has come to say goodbye to Portwenn.

"We will be making the tenth and final series in 2021 and we are very much looking forward to returning to Cornwall to film it."

Clunes has tried to retire the Doc before. In 2017 he said: "In 2019 we'll do season nine, and that – as far as we know – is it.

"We may have to retire the doctor. He'll probably be of retirement age by then."

In the drama, made by the couple's production company Buffalo Pictures, Clunes plays a curmudgeonly GP with a fear of blood who eventually marries his on-off girlfriend Louisa, played by Caroline Catz, 50.

Fury at huge rises for BBC stars as over-75s lose free TV licences

BBC chief Tim Davie was accused of "warped priorities" this week after praising high-earning stars while defending plans to axe free TV licences for over-75s.

The incoming director general confirmed that some pensioners will have to pay the £157 fee.

Mr Davie also told how big-money celebrity presenters represented good value for TV viewers and radio listeners.

Gary Lineker was top of the BBC's earnings league table last year with a salary of £1.75million.

The Match Of The Day host has now signed a five-year deal which will cut his annual pay by £400,000. He will be overtaken as the top earner by Radio 2 presenter Zoe Ball, 49, on £1.36million.

Former England striker Lineker, 59, should end up earning £1.35million a year when his contract runs its course.

Other big earners in the salary list published with the BBC's annual report included Graham Norton, 57, on £725,000 and Fiona Bruce, 56, on £450,000.

Newsreader Huw Edwards, 59, was listed on £465,000 after also taking a pay cut.

The salary of radio host Lauren Laverne, 42, has gone up by £90,000 to £395,000.

But despite the huge salaries, the director general said he would not overturn the broadcaster's plan to limit free TV licences to over-75s who are on pension credit benefits.

Mr Davie defended the total 2019-20 salary bill of £145million – up £1million on last year.

'fair solution'

He said: "We will invest in particular markets to ensure we have got the best talent. There will be some particular instances where we have exceptional talent where we make those investments.

"Zoe is absolutely a broadcaster at the top of her game."

Mr Davie called the BBC's controversial move to cut free licences for over-75s a "fair solution". He added: "It has been a really tough decision for us. It was not of our asking.

"That is why we have gone for what we see as a properly balanced proposal and are implementing with pensioners on pension credit not paying.

"I have no plans to reverse that decision and support where we are at

THAT'S RICH: even with a £400,000 pay cut, Match of the Day host Gary Lineker will still trouser £1.35m next year the moment."

The BBC also came under fire after it published accounts showing that staff pay overall had soared 3.5 per cent to £1.5billion.

Dennis Reed, director of the Silver Voices pressure group, said: "The new director general appears to be sticking to the discredited policies of his predecessor.

"We see it all the time in the warped priorities of the BBC.

"Our members point out the contradiction between the high salaries of individuals at the BBC, when we have got hundreds of thousands of pensioners struggling to pay the licence fee."

John O'Connell, chief executive of the TaxPayers' Alliance, said: "These bumper Beeb pay packets are picked from the pockets of pensioners and poor taxpayers, who are fed up of forking out for the licence fee."

Lineker mocks 'haters' after BBC deal

GARY Lineker broke the news of his pay cut and new five-year BBC deal by taking a swipe at his "haters".

The football presenter, well-known for social media rows, tweeted: "Oh dear. Thoughts are with the haters at this difficult time."

Former England striker Gary, the long-time host of Match Of The Day, said: "I love working with the BBC, and am very proud to continue to be a part of their outstanding football team.

"I'm looking forward to the next five years, with a European Championship and World Cup on the horizon. It's exciting times for me and the team."

BBC chief Tim Davie said Gary would have to abide by his new ban on stars using social media to promote their political views.

Sturgeon: I can't save Halloween

Nicola Sturgeon has not ruled out a ban on guising – what the Scots call trick or treating – in Scotland this Halloween.

The first minister said she did not want to stop children trick-or-treating but that she would do what was necessary to keep them safe from rising coronavirus infections.

New rules allow no more than six people from two households from gather indoors or outside.

At her daily briefing on Thursday, Nicola Sturgeon was asked if new restrictions would affect Halloween celebrations next month.

She said: "I don't know. I wish I had a crystal ball sitting next to my magic wand and we would be in a different position.

"I don't want to be the person standing here telling children they can't go guising, but if it is necessary because of where we are then it's better than allowing children to be at risk."

Barbados to remove Queen Elizabeth as head of state

Barbados has announced its intention to remove Queen Elizabeth as its head of state and become a republic.

"The time has come to fully leave our colonial past behind," the Caribbean island nation's government said this week.

It aims to complete the process in time for the 55th anniversary of independence from Britain, in November 2021.

A speech written by Prime Minister Mia Mottley said Barbadians wanted a Barbadian head of state.

"This is the ultimate statement of confidence in who we are and what we are capable of achieving," the speech read.

Buckingham Palace said that it was a matter for the government and people of Barbados.

A source at Buckingham Palace said that the idea "was not out of the blue" and "has been mooted and publicly talked about many times".

The statement was part of the Throne Speech, which outlines the government's policies and programmes ahead of the new session of parliament.

While it is read out by the governor-general, it is written by the country's prime minister.

The speech also quoted a warning from Errol Barrow, Barbados's first prime minister after it gained independence, who said that the country should not "loiter on colonial premises".

His is not the only voice in Barbados that has been suggesting a move away from the monarchy. A constitutional review commission recommended republican status for Barbados in 1998.

'Sex predator' ex-MP jailed for two years

A FORMER Conservative MP who boasted of being a "naughty Tory" after he sexually assaulted a woman and chased her around his home was jailed for two years this week.

Disgraced Charlie Elphicke, 49, was branded a "sexual predator" and a "bully" who assaulted two victims and made their ordeal worse by insisting they give evidence against him in a monthlong trial.

Elphicke dubbed himself a "naughty Tory" during a 2007 attack at his family home, fondling the woman's breast and attempting to kiss her before chasing her – Benny Hill-style – until she barricaded herself into a room.

A decade later Elphicke the MP struck again, carrying out two sexual assaults on a young woman at Westminster.

Jailing him at Southwark Crown Court Mrs Justice Whipple said he had used his power and position to target his victims.

She said: "You are a sexual predator who used your success and respectability as a cover."

She said Elphicke's offending was a "gross abuse of power" as he had "lured them into a false sense of security", adding: "You then treated 'what you did as a joke, saying you were a 'naughty Tory' in an attempt to trivialise your actions."

The court heard that Elphicke, a trained lawyer, had lied to police, senior Tories, and his spouse about the assaults.

Following his conviction last month his wife Natalie, 49, his successor as MP for Dover, ended their 25-year marriage on Twitter.

But having loaned him £100,000 to pay his legal fees she continued to defend him as it emerged he is appealing his conviction.

She said: "There is no doubt that Charlie behaved badly. However, everyone, Charlie included, has the right to a fair trial, and I don't believe that he has had one."

After being jailed Elphicke added: "I know that I am innocent of any criminal wrongdoing and will continue to fight to clear my name."

The couple's £1.4million marital home in Dover, Kent, is now up for sale.

The case also raises embarrassing questions for the Conservative Party, as Elphicke had been handed back the whip while facing a criminal investigation in order to back former PM Theresa May in a confidence vote.

The first offence was committed at Elphicke's family home while his wife was away and his children slept upstairs.

The second complainant, in her early 20s, said Elphicke also tried to kiss her and then groped her when they met for a drink in Westminster in April 2016.

The following month he attacked her again by running his hand up her thigh towards her groin.

Ian Winter QC, mitigating, told the court: "Shortly Mr Elphicke's descent into total disgrace will be complete. He has, through his conduct, lost an extremely successful career as a barrister, he has destroyed what was a very successful Parliamentary career. He has lost his wife."

Elphicke's daughter, 20, is now estranged from him and his teenage

Tennant: wife hated killer role obsession

DAVID Tennant has revealed his wife "had enough" of his obsession with playing serial killer Dennis Nilsen.

The 49-year-old said he became so "psychologically enthralled" for the ITV drama Des, his wife Georgia, 35, told him she was getting fed up.

The critically acclaimed three part thriller debuted this week to rave reviews in the UK. The show is not yet available to view in the USA unless you access the ITV Hub service via a VPN (Virtual Private Network).

Coleen: show me your texts, Rebekah

COLEEN Rooney has hit back in her legal "Wagatha Christie" row by demanding access to Rebekah Vardy's email, phone records and texts.

Coleen is preparing to head to the High Court to take on her fellow WAG after Rebekah sued her for libel.

Rebekah, 38, married to Leicester City striker Jamie, denied leaking Coleen's private life details to the media and said such public claims were libellous.

Now in response to being brought to court, Coleen, 34, and her lawyers allegedly want access to Rebekah's electronics for "forensic analysis". A source said: "She needs to prove that Becky was directly responsible for the leaks or, at the very least, that the information came from her social media account."

Coleen's team will need to get a court order to gain such access.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Time now to get ready for putting your financial goals for winter on the top of your to-do list. While your boss Mars is trailing backwards it's not a time for starting new projects in any area of life.

TAURUS: You could be feeling worried about your future direction in life. This is due to your boss planet Venus in Leo setting you challenges. Do not be tempted to challenge back. Just stay low-key.

GEMINI: This is a good time to catch up with distant friends and unfinished business of every kind. Now Mars is moving backwards he is assisting you to that end.

CANCER: Your current situation can be draining your energy and your finances. Do not give in to worry. Venus is in your money area and by month's end you will be flush again.

LEO: You should be starting to feel more upbeat and ready to take the world on. It's not been a settled time in your life of late. However as you should know nothing lasts forever. Venus visiting you helps a lot.

VIRGO: Your life may feel like it's not going forward in the expected direction. This is due in part to fiery Mars moving backwards somewhat sluggishly. Do not push too hard; it's better to chill out now.

LIBRA: You have to have patience currently as Mars your opposite sign is going backwards. You can still make plans and Venus and the Sun next week in your sign will greatly help. Happy Birthday.

SCORPIO: Life is not the same currently and you should be realistic. While your boss Mars is going backwards in his other sign Aries most things are in slow motion. Do what you can and rest a lot.

SAGITTARIUS: It's not currently a time to be overspending or to give resources to others. This is only for a short while and by month's end you will have more energy and be ready to move forward.

CAPRICORN: Life has been throwing you some curveballs this past month. For some it's time to take a break away from family and friends. If you are not able to right now just keep a low profile.

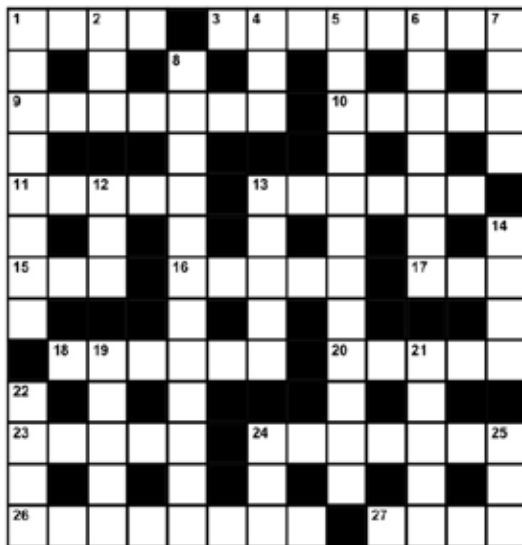

AQUARIUS: Be honest - as only you can be - to yourself and ponder how you can make your life more peaceful. Your boss in Taurus currently wants you to be more relaxed and less stubborn.

PISCES: Don't look down, just look up at what you can do in the future. You are one of the most sensitive souls and this is a time to be low-key, not stressing over what you cannot change.

Well, it's still here isn't it?

I have to admit, I didn't think it would be around this long to be honest. I thought one of the so-called 'superpowers' would have created a vaccine by now. I also thought that if there were tough restrictions laid down by the powers that be it would have got under control quickly and the numbers would drop. Naïve much? Or hopeful that our leaders would do things properly and that people would practise common sense? There's no coincidence that the countries who are dealing with it better than others are those that have better people in positions of power.

It's that simple. (I'm not going to go into detail here. Just Google it).

I began my Covid 19 journey in Santa Monica, USA and I'm now in Yorkshire, England and have been for three months. Personal reasons brought me here and it looks like I'll be here for the foreseeable. Not just due to those personal reasons, I just can't bear thought of returning to California, even the States, right now. Along with the natural environment burning away the beautiful California landscape and devastating homes and lives, the political climate is also a raging fireball, after the fire that was ignited four years ago. That scares me more than everything else. The injustice, the stupidity, the lies that are fed to the public day after day after day. It's true that here in the UK it's no bowl of political cherries either....the to-ing and fro-ing regarding Covid restrictions is laughable. However, I physically feel safer in UK than US. Maybe it's because I'm a citizen I don't have

Countryside Covid

GREEN, GREEN GRASS OF HOME: former LA resident Annie McQueen has moved to Yorkshire to ride out the pandemic that immigrant fear here that I think I have in US. (only during the last four years I must add). Also, there's just so much more space. The thought of being in an overpopulated Los Angeles with everyone on top of one another quite literally in apartments crammed in next to each other, street after street, fills me with dread and makes me feel anxious.

Anyway, I don't want this whole article to be moaning about the pandemic. There have been a lot of positive things to come out of this strange period in our lives. As I said before, my first couple of months during lockdown I was still in LA and I have to say, it was nice to have downtime. To be able to take the dog for a walk three times a day and spend time baking. (That's a lie. I was actually eating my husband's baking. I made cupcakes, once). To be able to slow down and enjoy the simple things in life, all with a little more space due to social distancing. I really appreciated all that, especially while there were so many other people suffering. Either from Covid or the many knock-on effects. I had it reeeeaalllly good. Then I had to fly to England. Not gonna lie (this time) I was nervous to fly. But I was lucky enough to be one of just four people in the cabin and we were all sat apart. Heaven! Masks on the whole way, with gentle reminders from the captain to do so. After a safe flight to London, I went straight to a test site and received a negative result within 12 hours. I then hot-footed it to my parents' house for massive hugs. As I said, I feel safe here. Even though there are still masses of people flouting the rules, not caring, not wearing masks, there's just something in the air here, literally, that calms and soothes me. Maybe because I'm lucky enough to be in the countryside. Taking walks across the moors with its breathtaking scenery looking for Highland Cows (they are there, I keep seeing big clumps of ginger hair and cow pats). Whatever the reason, I'm so grateful for what I do have. Life is obviously on hold for now and for some, has changed completely. Oh but wait! This just in; Trump said the virus will just disappear! That's that then, we're all saved! Just like that (cue a Tommy Cooper voice).....

Best of British: rower Lia sets new Transpac record

A British woman has become the fastest in the world to row from the US mainland to Hawaii.

Lia Ditton, 40, (right) completed the journey from San Francisco to the island of Oahu in 86 days, 10 hours, five minutes and 56 seconds.

The London-born rower set out on 17 June and reached the Waikiki Yacht Club on 12 September at 6.10am, breaking Roz Savage's 2008 world record of 100 days.

She overcame illness, food shortages and the tragic news her fellow rower Angela Madsen, 60, had died attempting the same route after 57 days.

The former US Marine, who later became a Paralympic shot put medallist and world rowing champion, died while carrying out underwater maintenance work on her 20ft boat in June.

But despite that and Ms Ditton's bid nearly ending just a day after it began - when the Continental Shelf left her tackling waves the size of buildings - she carried on.

Meet A Member: Johanna Besterman

Meet Johanna Besterman from Chicago who moved to LA 25 years ago to pursue her PhD in literature from UCLA.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

Yes! The weather was a major plus. I was also looking for graduate programs that matched my interests. The two came together perfectly here in LA.

What do you miss most from home?

My neighborhood. I'm from a small, artsy intellectual enclave on the South Side of Chicago called Hyde Park. The University of Chicago is there. I definitely don't miss the weather! But I do miss the down-to-earth, straightforward and multicultural community. People are authentic there and say what they mean and mean what they say. That makes relationships real and strong.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

"OMG! It's green and sunny all year round!" I do recognize that we're in a desert, but when I first moved to LA I fell in love with the foliage - particularly the night blooming jasmine. That has never changed. In fact, my backyard is full of citrus trees and various herbs that bloom throughout the year. My favorite scent is orange blossoms.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Chicago? LA is a much easier city in a lot of ways. You don't have to worry about scraping ice off your windshield, surviving a sudden rainstorm, or having clothes for every season! I also feel that LA is a place for dreamers and entrepreneurs, whereas

MMM-GOOD: one of Johanna's offerings at Orange Butter Bakery

Chicago is much more of a traditional city. Chicago has the benefit of neighborhoods with corner bars (like pubs in the UK!) and the sense of community is much stronger there. But LA has an inherent optimism. And orange blossoms!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

The Self Realization Fellowship Lake Shrine is a beautiful place to take a quiet walk among lush gardens beside a spring-fed lake that abounds with swans, ducks, koi, turtles and lotus flowers. I don't know how hidden it is, but it's certainly a gem within the busy city.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Be prepared to have to work to build your community. Organizations like Brits in LA are a perfect way to meet people, find out about some cool places and activities and make the city feel smaller and more friendly. Also, there are so many places and "ways" to live in LA - from urban and suburban to up in the hills or down in the valley. Think carefully about things like your commute and lifestyle when choosing where to live.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given? Don't be afraid to put yourself out there and explore a variety of interests and communities. It may take awhile, but you can build a wonderful life in LA.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

I am! I've recently pivoted my event planning business into a home-based bakery. I've always enjoyed hosting, baking, creating experiences for people and building community. Recently, that's been a challenge. But I found delivering fresh baked treats directly to friends and neighbors became a great way to connect - albeit at a distance. So, a few months ago, with the help of my thirteen year-old son, Lucas, I launched Orange Butter Bakery. We specialize in artfully packaged, fresh, simple treats like fruit-filled shortbread bars, homemade preserves, clementine cakes, and lemon-lavender butter cookies. Our ingredients are all local and seasonal - some are even from our garden! I love helping others mark a special occasion, or create a fun experience for their families or celebrate loved ones with a gift of treats during these unusual times. You can find our menu, promotions and place orders on Facebook. Just search "Orange Butter Bakery" or email johanna@orangebutterbakery.com. Mention Brits in LA for 10% off your first order!

A schu-in for race record!

Lewis edges close to legend's tally

LEWIS HAMILTON kept his head while his rivals lost theirs on Sunday to move to within one win of Michael Schumacher's all-time record.

Seven days after Pierre Gasly earned a shock victory at Monza, Hamilton made no mistake at Mugello to collect his 90th career victory in a race in which there were two red flags and a dramatic four-car pile-up.

With chaos behind him at the Ferrari-owned circuit in Italy, the Briton kept out of trouble to lead home team-mate Valtteri Bottas, who completed another Mercedes one-two ahead of Red Bull's Alexander Albon.

Hamilton looks certain to surpass Schumacher's race record and to win a seventh world title to match the German's own haul.

He was as tired as you would expect after two-and-a-half hours of thrilling action in the Italian sunshine – and saluted fans who were sat in the stands for the first time this season. "It was all a bit of daze," said Hamilton. "It was like three races in one day – just incredibly tough today. This track is phenomenal and the heat and keeping Valtteri behind was not easy. With all those restarts, total focus was needed."

"My heart is racing. It is crazy to be here and to have 90 grands prix."

For the second week in a row, it was another thrilling showdown that had to be stopped twice following high-speed crashes.

Salah strike denies Leeds in thrilling top flight return

Leeds United made a dramatic return to the Premier League after a 16-year absence as they produced a magnificent display on last weekend's opening day only to lose to a late penalty in a thriller against champions Liverpool at Anfield.

Liverpool, back in action after winning their first title in 30 years, led three times but were pegged back on each occasion by Marcelo Bielsa's fearless side before this superb match was settled by hat-trick hero Mohamed Salah's spot-kick.

Leeds looked to be leaving Anfield with a fully deserved point only for new £30m striker Rodrigo, on as a substitute, to produce a shocking challenge on Fabinho in the 88th minute, leaving Salah to give Liverpool victory after a serious scare.

Salah made it a nightmare start for last season's Championship winners when he drilled home a penalty in the fourth minute after his shot was handled by another Leeds new boy, Germany defender Robin Koch.

Leeds produced the perfect response as Jack Harrison drilled a low right-foot shot past Alisson only for poor defending to allow Virgil van Dijk to restore Liverpool's advantage as he headed in Andy Robertson's corner.

Van Dijk was badly at fault when he gifted Patrick Bamford Leeds' second before a searing strike from Salah completed the scoring in a chaotic first half.

In a game which also contained four disallowed goals, Leeds were not to be brushed aside and were level again after 66 minutes when a perfect first touch and volley from Mateusz Klich flashed past Alisson.

Man of the match Salah had the final word, however, after that reckless late challenge from Rodrigo.

Thiago started his career at Barcelona and was heavily linked with a move to Manchester United when David Moyes replaced Sir Alex Ferguson in 2013, but went to Germany instead.

As well as the Champions League, he has won seven consecutive Bundesliga titles, four German Cups and the Club World Cup with Bayern.

Bale set for Spurs return

GARETH BALE was on the brink of a shock return to Spurs this week.

At press time on Friday, Bale was set to fly to London to complete his return to the North London club.

But despite insiders at both clubs claiming a deal was as good as done, Jose Mourinho would not be drawn on the matter.

"Until I'm told Bale is a Tottenham player, I still think and feel and respect the fact he's a Real Madrid player," said the Spurs boss.

"I'm not going to comment on a Real Madrid player," Mourinho added after his side beat Lokomotiv Plovdiv in the Europa League on Thursday.

"I tried to sign him for Real Madrid, which was not possible to do during my time there. But the president followed my instinct and my knowledge and the season I left he brought Gareth to the club. It's not a secret, even Gareth knows that."

Bale is understood to have trained on his own at Real on Thursday while awaiting the outcome of negotiations.

Bale originally joined Spurs from Southampton in 2007 before moving to the Spanish giants for a then world record £85m in 2013. He has gone on to score more than 100 goals for Real and won four Champions Leagues.

Bale's agent, Jonathan Barnett, told BBC Wales Sport on Wednesday that talks over a move were "slowly progressing".

Barnett said: "Gareth is closer to leaving Madrid than at any time in the last seven years. We are still negotiating. We shall see how it

In July 2019, Real Madrid cancelled a deal for Bale to join Chinese Super League club Jiangsu Suning, and he played 20 times for the Bernabeu club last season.

It was also anticipated Real Madrid full-back Sergio Reguilon will complete his transfer to Tottenham on Friday. The 23-year-old Spain international played last season on loan at Sevilla, winning the Europa League.

Tottenham were beaten 1-0 at home by Everton in their first game of the new Premier League campaign on Sunday.

Thiago completes Reds switch

Liverpool have agreed a deal to sign midfielder Thiago Alcantara from Bayern Munich for at least £20m, plus £5m in add-ons, on a four-year contract.

Thiago, 29, joined the German giants from Barcelona in 2013 and played in last season's Champions League final victory over Paris St-Germain.

He is set to wear the number six shirt at Anfield.

Thiago would be the Premier League champions' second summer signing, after Greece left-back Kostas Tsimikas.

The guaranteed £20m will be paid in instalments, with the maximum extra £5m depending on the Reds' success in the Premier League and Champions League.

When asked about a potential move for the Spaniard last week, Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp said: "I cannot end speculation as long as the transfer window is open.

"It is nice that we are linked with him but that is pretty much it really. It is because he is a good player and Liverpool is a big club, so that is nice."

Bayern boss Hansi Flick said at a news conference on Thursday: "Thiago is an exceptional player who had huge success here for seven years. He's a great person and an exceptional professional.

"It was very emotional

Stoke defang Wolves

Jacob Brown scored a late winner as Stoke City beat Wolves 1-0 in the Carabao Cup on Thursday to set up a third-round tie with Gillingham next week.

The summer signing from Barnsley popped up to slam home a shot which John Ruddy should have saved after a pass from fellow substitute Steven Fletcher.

The game was far from a classic with each goalkeeper making a single save.

Premier League Wolves named a strong team with £35m summer signing Fabio Silva getting a debut.

The former Porto forward, 18, shot wide from the edge of the box in the first half, had a shot blocked after the break and fired over in injury time.

Championship Stoke had chances before their winner with Harry Souttar forcing a save with a header and Fletcher having a shot deflected over.

Wolves boss Nuno Espirito Santo brought on Raul Jimenez as he looked to avoid penalties - but they fell to Brown's late strike.
