"Our destiny is in our own hands", says Boris

'The spirit of togetherness will pull us through six months of fighting an invisible enemy'

THE country needs to summon "discipline, resolve and the spirit of togetherness" to save lives this winter, the Prime Minister has told the nation.

In a heartfelt television appeal, Boris Johnson warned of "difficult months to come" with virus infections soaring.

But he insisted there are "great days ahead" if Britons can rally to defeat the disease and avoid the devastation of a second lockdown.

The PM said: "Never in our history has our collective destiny and our collective health depended so completely on our individual behaviour."

He spoke out after unveiling new restrictions in England aimed at curbing a second wave including a 10pm curfew for pubs, bars and restaurants and an appeal for people to work from home if they can.

Mr Johnson warned that tougher measures were in the pipeline if the package failed to reverse the surge in infections.

He said: "If we follow these simple rules together, we will get through this winter together."

"If we were forced into a new national lockdown that would threaten not just jobs and livelihoods but the loving human contact on which we all depend."

Admitting his own hesitation to restrict our lives, the PM said: "I am deeply, spiritually reluctant to make any of these impositions or infringe anyone's freedom."

new restrictions

"But unless we take action the risk is that we will have to go for tougher measures later, when the deaths have already mounted and we have a huge caseload of infection such as we had in the spring."

The address followed meetings of his Cabinet and emergency planning committee Cobra to endorse his new restrictions.

Firms will face £10,000 fines for failing to enforce Covid safety rules while the penalty for flouting the ban on social gatherings of more than six people or failing to wear a mask when necessary will double to £200.

Retail workers and cabbies will now have to wear face coverings and moves to bring back spectators to sports stadiums are on hold.

poll this week showed 78 per cent of people quizzed backed the new measures.

'biggest crisis'

Mr Johnson described the struggle against coronavirus as "the single biggest crisis the world has faced in my lifetime".

He said: "In less than a year this disease has killed almost a million people and caused havoc

Coronavirus: UK infection rates soar as second wave hits

The UK has seen its coronavirus case tally rise by 6,634 across the space of 24 hours – the highest figure ever reported by the Department for Health and Social Care.

Wednesday's new high brings the total number of cases reported in the UK to 416,363.

Experts have previously suggested that despite numbers reaching higher than confirmed figures from March, the lack of community testing available at that time could make direct comparisons between the first and second coronavirus spike in the UK "misleading".

Yvonne Doyle, medical director at Public Health England, said: "This is the highest number recorded and a stark warning for us all. The signals are clear. Positivity rates are rising across all age groups and we're continuing to see spikes in rates of admission to hospital and critical care.

"We must all follow the new measures that have been bought in to help control the virus and download the new NHS Covid-19 App which is the fastest way of knowing when you're at risk."

The government also said a further 40 people had died within 28 days of testing positive for Covid-19 as of Wednesday. This brings the UK total to 41,902.

Separate figures published by the UK's statistics agencies show there have now been 57,600 deaths registered in the UK where Covid-19 was mentioned on the death certificate.

University of Oxford

professor James Naismith said: "The rise in cases is yet further confirmation that the virus is spreading rapidly.

"This will result in increased pressure on hospitals, more serious illness and a rise in deaths that will bring tragedy. Scientific and medical advances will lower the toll. We all need to do our part."

Commenting on the surge in case numbers he added: "The pattern of daily numbers suggests oddities on testing and reporting. Yesterday saw a much larger increase. This means identifying a trend based on simply taking two daily numbers is unreliable.

"This is to be regretted. Trends in the seven day averages may be a more reliable guide to trends. The ONS sampling series is a very reliable guide but has a lag."

BAD NEWS AHEAD: Wednesday's new infection rate is the highest on record

Doyle had earlier told reporters: "New measures have been brought in to stop the spread of the virus and it is essential you follow them.

"You should work from home if you can, wear a face covering in retail and hospitality settings, unless you are eating or drinking, and not be in a group larger than six people.

"We are testing much more than we were earlier on in the outbreak and our local health protection teams are working with local councils and directors of public health to manage the increase."

to economies everywhere.

"Here in the UK we mourn every person we have lost, and we grieve with their families. And yet I am more certain than ever that this is a struggle we will win."

Mr Johnson said the country had "pulled together in a spirit of national sacrifice and community" during lockdown earlier this year.

However he added: "But we have to acknowledge that while the vast majority have complied with the rules there have been too many breaches, too many opportunities for our invisible enemy to slip through undetected.

"The virus has started to spread again in an exponential way. Infections are up, hospital admissions are climbing."

'tragic reality'

Mr Johnson insisted his Government was working "night and day" to protect people.

He added: "And yet the single greatest weapon we bring to this fight is the common sense of the people themselves – the joint resolve of this country to work together to suppress Covid now."

In a swipe at his critics, he said: "To those who say we don't need this stuff, and we should leave people to take their own risks, I say these risks are not our own.

"The tragic reality of having Covid is that your mild cough can be someone else's death knell."

He argued it was unrealistic to try to "lock up" the elderly to protect them while leaving the rest of the population free of restrictions.

Urging the nation to pull together, he said: "There are unquestionably difficult months to come and the fight against Covid is by no means over.

"I have no doubt, however, that there are great days ahead. But now is the time for us all to summon the discipline, and the resolve, and the spirit of togetherness that will carry us through."

Speaking to MPs in the Commons earlier, Mr Johnson warned that the country was facing a "perilous turning point".

The infection rate in the UK has increased from around 1,000 a day a month ago to 6,000 or more a day now.

Daily hospital admissions have more than doubled over the last fortnight.

The PM said: "Tens of thousands of daily infections in October would lead to hundreds of daily deaths in November and those numbers would continue to grow unless we act."

Mr Johnson said the new restrictions in England had been "carefully judged" to reduce the infection rate while minimising the damage to lives and livelihoods.

Apologizing to pubs, bars and restaurants for the new restrictions, he said: "I am sorry this will hurt many businesses just getting back on their feet, but we must act to stop the virus from being transmitted in bars and restaurants. No British government would wish to stifle our freedoms in the ways that we have found necessary this year.

"Yet even now we can draw some comfort from the fact that schools and universities and places of worship are staying open, shops can serve their customers, construction workers can go to building sites, and the vast majority of the UK economy can continue moving forwards."

Under questioning from MPs, he insisted the 10pm pub curfew was designed to reduce drinking that could make people less likely to observe social distancing rules.

Sunak launches emergency jobs plan

Under new scheme workers will receive 75% of their salary for three months

RISHI SUNAK has unveiled emergency measures to help avoid an Covid led unemployment crisis in the UK.

The Job Support Scheme, which was announced on Thursday, will replace the furlough scheme, will see workers get three quarters of their normal salaries for six months.

It aims to stop mass job cuts after the government introduced new measures to tackle a rise in coronavirus cases.

The Chancellor said it was part of a wider "winter economy plan".

Nearly three million workers - or 12% of the UK's workforce - are currently on partial or full furlough leave, according

THE JOB SUPPORT SCHEME: the key details

- Employers will pay staff for the hours they do work
- For the hours employees can't work, the government and the employer will each cover one third of the lost pay
- The grant will be capped at £697.92 per month
- All small and medium sized businesses will be eligible for the scheme
- Larger business will be eligible if their turnover has fallen during the crisis
- It will be open to employers across the UK even if they have not previously used the furlough scheme
- The scheme will run for six months starting in November to official figures. The current furlough scheme ends on 31 October.

Mr Sunak said the new scheme would "support only viable jobs" as opposed to jobs that only exist because the government is continuing to subsidise the wages.

"The primary goal of our economic policy remains unchanged - to support people's jobs - but the way we achieve that must evolve," Mr Sunak said.

At a press conference, Mr Sunak declined to comment on what defines a job as "viable".

"It is not for me to sit here and make pronouncements on every individual job," he said. "What I want to be able to do is to provide as much support as possible given the constraints we operate in. We obviously can't sustain the same level of things that we were doing at the beginning of this crisis."

The government's contribution to workers' pay will fall sharply compared with the furlough scheme. Under furlough, it initially paid 80% of a monthly wage up to £2,500 - under the new scheme this will drop to 22%.

"The primary goal of our economic policy remains unchanged - to support people's jobs - but the way we achieve that must evolve," Mr Sunak said.

"I cannot save every business, I cannot save every job."

The new scheme begins on 1 November and will cost the government an estimated £300m a month. Companies who use it can also still claim the Job Retention Bonus, where the government pays £1,000 for every furloughed employee who comes back to work until at least the end of January. Mr Sunak said a similar scheme for the self-employed would be available.

The government and firms will continue to top up wages of workers who have not been able to return to the workplace full time due to the coronavirus.

Business lobby group the CBI welcomed the government's plan.

"It is right to target help on jobs with a future, but can only be part-time while demand remains flat. This is how skills and jobs can be preserved to enable a fast recovery," said CBI director-general Dame Carolyn Fairbairn.

One million sign up for contact-tracing app

Users will be told to self-isolate if the app determines they are at high risk of infection

More than one million people have downloaded the government's contact-tracing app for England and Wales within its first day of release.

NHS Covid-19 instructs users to self-isolate for 14 days if it detects they were nearby someone who has the virus.

It also has a check-in scanner to alert owners if a venue they have visited is found to be an outbreak hotspot.

Anyone aged 16 and over is being asked to install it. The government plans to give its own download tally on Monday.

Health Secretary Matt Hancock said the app "helps us to find more people who are at risk of having the virus" that human contact tracers are unable to find.

"Everybody who downloads the app will be helping to protect themselves, helping to protect their loved ones, helping to protect their community because the more people who download it, the more effective it will be," he told BBC Radio 4's Today programme.

The app keeps secret who receives a self-isolation alert.

The Department of Health said that users must obey the command and would in theory be liable for fines of £1,000 or more if they did not, while acknowledging it had no way to check.

Plan to give flu jab to 22 million people

HEALTH OFFICIALS this week launched the largest flu vaccination program in UK history amid concerns that catching both the flu and coronavirus could be deadly.

Figures have shown that catching both bugs has proved fatal to a staggering 43 per cent of patients, compared to 27 per cent of those with just Covid-19.

The findings caused alarm among health officials who hope to give jabs to at least 75 per cent of those eligible in England – around 22 million people.

The Public Health England study looked at records from more than 19,000 people tested for both influenza and Covid-19 in England between January and April. Most were hospital patients.

Around 4,400 were positive for coronavirus alone, 992 for flu alone, and 58 people had both.

Researchers calculated that for patients with both viruses, their odds of dying was almost six times higher than people who tested negative for both.

'in serious trouble'

Patients with only Covid were 2.6 times more likely to die compared to those without either virus, meaning co-infection with flu increased the risk of death by 2.3 times.

Most cases of co-infection were in older people and more than half of those aged over 60 died.

PHE's medical director Dr Yvonne Doyle said: "If you have both flu and Covid-19, you certainly have a higher risk of death but also of severe illness and that includes hospitalisation, ventilation and longer effects from having the two.

"This reinforces the importance of getting a flu vaccination."

The study also found people who tested positive for flu were almost 70 per cent less likely to test positive for Covid-19, possibly due to a short window of heightened immunity.

But Dr Doyle said this was not a reason to avoid getting the jab as people who do catch both viruses will be "in serious trouble".

Deputy chief medical officer Professor Jonathan Van Tam said there had not yet been any problems with delivering the larger than usual quantity of jabs.

He said: "We will have enough vaccine this year for 30 million people in total.

"This obviously is very important in a year where we face the possibility that flu and Covid-19 may at some point this winter circulate together.

"I'm in high risk group, as soon as I'm called for my flu vaccine, I'm off to get it because I recognise the data on the bad outcomes that may be associated with having flu and Covid at the same time.

'reduce transmission'

"Since one is vaccine preventable at the moment, I don't want to take that risk. It's as simple as that." This year's vaccine drive will be supported by the 'Just' The Flu campaign with TV and radio adverts and posters emphasising the seriousness of flu.

Dr Doyle added: "It is dangerous to dismiss influenza as 'just' the

SHARP END: the UK will has capacity to vaccinate 30m people this year flu – it can be extremely serious and can lead to hospitalisation, permanent disability or even death.

"The flu vaccine is more important than ever, to help reduce transmission of flu and protect the nation from the double threat of flu and Covid-19.

"You may be offered it for the first time this year – it is important that you take up the offer to protect yourself and others."

Dr Nikita Kanani, a London GP and NHS medical director for primary care, said: "My frontline NHS colleagues across England are working harder than ever to prepare for winter, including expanding and adapting services to ensure people can get the care and vaccinations they need safely and conveniently.

"So if you are eligible, please help us help you, and get your free flu vaccine as soon as possible.

"It could save your life, or someone you love."

Both flu and Covid-19 share some common symptoms including a fever of over 37.8C and a dry cough but many coronavirus sufferers also report a loss of smell or taste, which is uncommon with sufferers of flu.

ACTOR Jim Broadbent revealed that he was offered the part of Del Boy in Only Fools And Horses but was too tall for the role and did not think it suited him.

The 71 year old, who is 6ft 2in, said he thought the "Jack the Lad character" was not quite his style.

Broadbent instead played bent copper Roy Slater in the BBC sitcom, saying David Jason, at Speaking in Berkshire Life magazine, Oscar winner Broadbent said: "I was offered the part of Del Boy but I didn't feel that it was quite right for me.

"For me it was an honour to have been part of one of the most successful comedy shows in television history and work alongside David Jason and Nicholas Lyndhurst [who played Rodney Trotter]; a fantastic experience and a lot of fun. Whenever I went back it was like visiting the family again. There was always a great atmosphere."

Brits in LA

HOMELESSNESS has long been a problem, both back home in the UK and here in our beautiful Golden State. It can't be fun being homeless anywhere, but given the choice I think it's probably better to suffer through a Southern California winter than one in say, Chicago.

Like most people I'm a member of a neighborhood app called Nextdoor where popular topics of conversation usually go along the lines of "have you seen my missing cat?" "there goes the mountain lion" or "anyone know of a good handyman?" But this week the main topic is how many homeless encampments have popped up all over Hollywood, where I make my home. Driving through the Gower tunnel pretty much every day it saddens me to see people living in such squalor. We had one of the hottest summers on record and these folks are suffering with barely enough drinking water and almost zero sanitation. And to top it all off we are in the still in the middle of a deadly airborne virus.

So the question remains - how did we get here?

Let's talk statistics: homelessness in California increased by more than 22% over the last decade. In our great state 72% of people experiencing homelessness are unsheltered, which is the highest share of of any state. To the uninitiated in homeless-speak, this means they are not living in shelters, or motels with government assistance vouchers, or transitional housing of any sort. In short, they are on the street. And nationwide, more than half of the people experiencing unsheltered homelessness reside in California.

Now let's get even more specific and look at LA county: on top of high rents and a shortage of affordable housing, the Homeless Services Authority points to stagnant wages and systemic racism that affect housing, health care, justice and economic policies as major contributors to the crisis. The agency reports that black people make up only 8% of the total population but 34% of people experiencing homelessness. Proving yet again that to some, black lives don't matter.

Homelessness: the crisis we all live amongst

There are many reasons one becomes homeless, and it's so easy for us to judge and blame it on idleness, drugs, alcoholism or just "bad choices" But seriously it's so much more complicated, it's truly a hard decision to live life on the streets. Back in London I once met a homeless man who was needing 20p to call his daughter to pretend he was doing well in the 'Big Smoke' (ask your parents to explain) so she wouldn't worry about him. He started to well up when he told me this story. It was in that moment I understood that the narrative out there... the smelly tramps (bums to you Americans) begging on the street to go drink or use, wasn't always the case or true. Everyone has their own unique story of how they ended up there.

Some were low-wage workers who lost their jobs or needed expensive medical care. Others are victims of domestic violence or sexual abuse. Far too many are LGBTQ youth being turned out of their homes by their so-called loving parents. Many are veterans returning from deployment hugely damaged physically and emotionally who have precious few resources to call on to help them adjust. Then there are the mentally ill without health insurance, and recently-released felons, who have nowhere to go. There seems to be countless reasons why people wind up on the streets. But these are human beings and they deserve better.

So what is being done to help our homeless or more importantly what can we do?

If (like me) you are tired of reading comments on Nextdoor and elsewhere to just "get them out of our neighborhood" let's get involved, start by demanding our representatives do better. Call them, email them, Twitter to them.

Mayor Garcetti recently released this statement on the issue: "we are deploying unprecedented resources - thanks to dual ballot measures (Measure H and Proposition HHH) approved by an overwhelming majority of voters, and millions of dollars in new state funding - to build thousands of units of supportive housing, expand bridge housing to help Angelenos transition off the streets, and hire an army of outreach workers, housing navigators, mental health experts, anti-addiction specialists and other professionals to be the heart, brains, and muscle of the movement to end the crisis on our streets."

But do you think it's good enough? How do you think this will end? Can we "cure" homelessness all together? However this ends, I hope you will give a second thought to the shame a homeless person carries when they are begging on the side of the road, because they haven't a pot to pee in, to pay for a bottle of water to keep from dehydrating. Let's think of the story that might be behind the tired, sunburnt eyes. Let's be generous, show compassion and take pity. For all we know someday that could be someone we used to know....or even you or me.

Harry and Meghan in hot water after urging Americans to vote

■ Duke and Duchess of Sussex call on voters to 'reject hate speech and misinformation' in video

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex have urged American voters to "reject hate speech, misinformation and online negativity" in the US election, in a video which triggered accusations that it breached UK protocol demanding political neutrality from members of the royal family.

Speaking in a Time 100 video message, Meghan called the presidential race the "most important election of our lifetime", as the couple appealed to Americans to use their right to vote.

Harry tells viewers: "This election I am not able to vote in the US. But many of you may not know that I haven't been able to vote in the UK my entire life. As we approach this November, it's vital that we reject hate speech, misinformation and online negativity."

The couple did not endorse a candidate. However, their comments have been interpreted by some as backing Joe Biden over Donald Trump. Meghan, before she married into the royal family, was an outspoken critic of Trump, once describing him as "misogynistic" and "divisive".

'crossed the line'

Buckingham Palace distanced itself from Harry's comments. A palace spokesperson said: "We would not comment. The duke is not a working member of the royal family and any comments he makes are in a personal capacity." But one palace insider said Harry had "crossed the line", according to a report in the Times.

Harry remains sixth in line to the throne despite stepping down as a senior working royal, and members of the royal family traditionally do not vote or become involved in elections or political matters. The Queen, as a constitutional head of state, is politically neutral.

Joe Little, the managing editor of

Majesty magazine, said: "You can understand Meghan getting involved as an American citizen, although she is now a member of the British royal family. But I think people will struggle a lot more with Prince Harry because as a prince of the blood it's not seen as the done thing to talk about politics, be it British or American."

In the video, seemingly shot at their California home, the couple speak directly to the camera.

Meghan says: "We're just six weeks out from election day and today is National Voter Registration Day. Every four years we are told the same thing, that this is the most important election of our lifetime. But this one is."

She continues: "When we vote, our values are put into action and our

"The duke is not a working member of the royal family and any comments he makes are in a personal capacity," said a Palace spokesperson voices are heard. Your voice is a reminder that you matter, because you do and you deserve to be heard."

Speaking about online negativity, Harry says: "When the bad outweighs the good, for many, whether we realize it or not, it erodes our ability to have compassion and our ability to put ourselves in someone else's shoes. Because when one person buys into negativity online, the effects are felt exponentially. It's time to not only reflect, but act."

The former Liberal Democrat MP Norman Baker, author of And What Do You Do? – What the Royal Family Don't Want You to Know, said: "Any private citizen is entitled to comment on the US election. The problem with Harry is he is not a private citizen because he has retained his HRH status. What he wants to try and do is have a foot in both camps, to be a royal when it suits him and a private citizen when it doesn't.

"So if he drops the HRH, he can comment to his heart's content on whatever he wants. But as long as he's HRH he is to some extent representing the country."

A source close to Harry said the prince was not referring to Trump or any other individual. They said: "The duke was talking about the tone of the debate in the run-up to an election which is already quite febrile."

Mendy seals Blues switch

■ Senegal star expected to replace error-prone Kepa

Chelsea have signed Rennes goalkeeper Edouard Mendy on a five-year deal.

The Senegal international, 28, made 25 league appearances for the Ligue 1 side after joining from Reims in 2019.

He completed his medical on Tuesday, with manager Frank Lampard having said he wants to increase competition with club record signing Kepa Arrizabalaga, who cost £71m.

"I'm so excited to be joining Chelsea," Mendy said. "It's a dream for me to be a part of this exciting squad."

Kepa was at fault for Liverpool's second goal in the 2-0 Premier League defeat by the Reds on Sunday, which was described as "a clear mistake" by Lampard.

The Spanish international was also dropped last season after errors in games.

That included the FA Cup final, when the 25-year-old was replaced by second-choice goalkeeper Willy Caballero, who is 38.

Last season for Rennes, Mendy kept nine clean sheets in 24 Ligue 1 appearances, compared to Kepa's eight cleansheets in 33 Premier League appearances.

Mendy's save percentage was 76.3% and he conceded a goal every 114 minutes. Kepa's save percentage was 53.5%, conceding a goal every 63 minutes.

However, Kepa's passing accuracy was 79.7% compared to

Sonny shines again for Spurs

Son Heung-min scored one and set up two as Tottenham advanced to the Europa League play-off round after a scare against Shkendija in North Macedonia on Thursday.

Fresh from scoring four goals against Southampton last Sunday, Son turned provider to set up Argentine Erik Lamela to calmly score the opener.

Joe Hart, who was making his Spurs debut, was beaten by a stunning 20-yard finish by Valmir Nafiu.

But Son drilled in the second before setting up Harry Kane for the third.

It was a decent performance by Jose Mourinho's side, who meet Maccabi Haifa at Tottenham Hotspur Stadium in the play-off round next Thursday.

However, they went from dominating the tie to hanging on before two goals in the space of nine minutes put the game out of Shkendija's reach.

Soon after Nafiu's wonderful equaliser from outside the box, Besart Ibrahimovic had a chance to put the hosts ahead but headed wide.

Spurs regained control thanks mainly to another excellent performance by Son, who produced an excellent cross for Kane's headed goal, and Tottenham's third.

Having scored four of his side's five goals at Southampton last Sunday, the South Korea forward produced another classy performance to help his side advance.

Hart had little to do on his first competitive outing since strengthening Tottenham's goalkeeping options in the summer.

He was beaten by Shkendija's one and only shot on target but Nafiu's finish, early in the second half, was spectacular and there Mendy's 70.1%.

Mendy, who has eight international caps, becomes Frank Lampard's eighth signing of the transfer window.

He follows in the footsteps of former Chelsea keeper Petr Cech, who joined the Blues from Rennes in 2004 and is now the club's technical and performance advisor.

Chelsea director Marina Granovskaia said:

"As soon as Petr Cech and our technical team identified Edouard as the most suitable goalkeeper to complement our existing group, there was only one player we wanted to bring in.

"Edouard arrives following a season of real success with Rennes, he is ambitious for more, and we welcome him to our club."
