Covid: Vaccine will 'not return life to normal in spring'

"...the history of vaccine development is littered with lots of failures."

Even an effective coronavirus vaccine will not return life to normal in spring, a group of leading scientists has warned.

A vaccine is often seen as the holy grail that will end the pandemic. But a report, from researchers brought together by the Royal Society, said we needed to be "realistic" about what a vaccine could achieve and when.

They said restrictions may need to be "gradually relaxed" as it could take up to a year to roll the vaccine out.

More than 200 vaccines to protect against the virus are being developed by scientists around the world in a process that is taking place at unprecedented speed.

long process

"A vaccine offers great hope for potentially ending the pandemic, but we do know that the history of vaccine development is littered with lots of failures," said Dr Fiona Culley, from the National Heart and Lung Institute at Imperial College London.

There is optimism, including from the UK government's scientific advisers, that some people may get a vaccine this year and mass vaccination may start early next year.

However, the Royal Society report warns it will be a long process.

"Even when the vaccine is available it doesn't mean within a month everybody is going to be vaccinated, we're talking about six months, nine months... a year," said Prof Nilay Shah, head of chemical engineering at Imperial College London.

"There's not a question of life suddenly returning to normal in March."

The report said there were still "enormous" challenges ahead.

Some of the experimental approaches being taken - such as RNA vaccines - have never been mass produced before.

There are questions around raw materials - both for the vaccine and glass vials - and

NOT THERE YET: "We simply don't know when an effective vaccine will be available, how effective it will be and of course, crucially, how quickly it can be distributed."

refrigerator capacity, with some vaccines needing storage at minus 80C.

Prof Shah estimates vaccinating people would have to take place at a pace, 10 times faster than the annual flu campaign and would be a full-time job for up to 30,000 trained staff.

immune response

"I do worry, is enough thinking going into the whole system?" he says.

Early trial data has suggested that vaccines are triggering an immune response, but studies have not yet shown if this is enough to either offer complete protection or lessen the symptoms of Covid.

Prof Charles Bangham, chair of immunology of Imperial College London, said: "We simply don't know when an effective vaccine will be available, how effective it will be and of course, crucially, how quickly it can be distributed."

"Even if it is effective, it is unlikely that we will be able to get back completely to normal, so there's going to be a sliding scale, even after the introduction of a vaccine that we know to be effective.

"We will have to gradually relax some of the other interventions."

And many questions that will dictate the vaccination strategy remain unanswered, such as: will one shot be enough or will boosters be required? Will the vaccine work well enough in older people with aged immune systems?

The researchers warn the issue of long-term immunity will still take some time to answer, and we still do not know if people need vaccinating every couple of years or if one shot will do.

'vaccine passports'

Commenting on the study, Dr Andrew Preston from the University of Bath, said: "Clearly the vaccine has been portrayed as a silver bullet and ultimately it will be our salvation, but it may not be an immediate process."

He said there would need to be discussion

News From Britain

PM urges Britons to 'stick together' to avoid national lockdown

BORIS Johnson is urging Britons to "stick together" to halt a second Covid wave and avoid another national lockdown.

He called for forbearance as he warned the country was at a "critical moment" with coronavirus cases increasing.

But the Prime Minister also said he would order more "costly" curbs if infections continued to rise.

He told a Downing Street news briefing on Tuesday: "No matter how impatient we may be, how fed up we may become, there is only one way of doing this.

"And that's by showing a collective forbearance, common sense and willingness to make sacrifices for the safety of others."

Insisting people did not want to surrender in the fight, he said: "I know some people will think we should give up and let the virus take its course, despite the huge loss of life that would potentially entail.

"I have to say I profoundly disagree.

And I don't think it's what the British people want, I don't think they want to throw in the sponge.

They want to fight and defeat this virus and that is what we are going to do.

"We now have to stick to it together – and we should stick to it with confidence because there are many ways in which we are far better prepared than we were in March."

Mr Johnson delivered the rallying cry in a return to regular coronavirus updates from No10.

His chief scientific adviser Sir Patrick Vallance said: "It is very clear that rates are still going up.

And so we don't have this under control at the moment."

'wrong direction'

The Government's chief medical officer Chris Whitty warned the number of Covid patients in hospitals and intensive care was increasing "quite rapidly" in some areas. He said there was a "significant rise" in people testing positive in the North-east, Northwest and Yorkshire and Humber.

Professor Whitty admitted figures were at a much lower level than in April but warned: "The direction of travel for both hospitals and intensive care is going in the wrong direction, particularly in these areas that have seen rapid increases in cases."

Mr Johnson said he wanted to "pay tribute" to students who were experiencing a first term back at university "unlike anything they could have imagined".

He added: "I can assure everybody at university that plans are being put in place to allow students home safely for Christmas."

The latest restrictions include a 10pm pub and restaurant curfew and the rule of six limit on social gatherings.

Seventy-one people died of coronavirus on Monday and Tuesday.

Mr Johnson said the Government was on track to hit 500,000 tests a day by the end of this month.

He said seven Nightingale NHS hospitals had more than 2,000 beds for virus patients and there was a four-month stockpile of essentials.

The Prime Minister said: "The best way forwards, to protect the NHS, save lives, to keep our children in school and the economy moving, is to follow the rules wherever we live.

"So I want to thank everyone for the fantastic national effort that we are seeing, continuing to see."

However, he warned: "I have to be clear that if the evidence requires it, we will not hesitate to take further measures that would, I'm afraid, be more costly than the ones we have put into effect now.

"But if we put in the work together now, then we give ourselves the best possible chance of avoiding that outcome and avoiding further measures."

Insisting he wanted to avoid another national lockdown, Mr Johnson said: "I really don't want to do this. I don't want to go back to a national lockdown where the overall guidance is stay at home, that is not what we are saying.

"We want to keep the economy moving. We want to keep young people, pupils in education.

"But the only way we can do that is if we all follow the guidance and depress the virus."

Britain inks fresh fishing deal

BRITAIN signed its first fishing deal as an independent coastal state in 40 years this week.

The agreement sees the UK and Norway agree to fix quotas and access to each other's fishing waters annually.

Brexit negotiator Lord Frost called the move a "crucial step forward" as Britain throws off the shackles of the EU's Common Fisheries Policy in three months.

UK fishing fleets land around £32million worth of fish from Norwegian waters each year.

It comes as Brexit negotiators offered Brussels a three-year transition period on fishing rights in an attempt to secure a breakthrough in trade talks.

The EU's demands for the same level of access to UK waters post-Brexit have been one of the main stumbling blocks in the talks.

24 years later, British beef back on its way to American dinner tables

The first shipments of UK beef exported to the USA in 24 years took place on Wednesday.

The longstanding ban on EU beef by the States – introduced in the wake of the BSE outbreak, also known as mad cow disease, in 1996 – was lifted for the UK in March 2020 following a three-week inspection during summer 2019.

UK beef producers now have access to the US market for the first time in more than two decades.

The industry is estimated to be worth £66m ($85bn) over the next five years.

The first shipment of beef originating from Foyle Food Group, Foyle Campsie in Northern

The 1996 ban on British beef was lifted in March

Ireland was dispatched to America, with further shipments from across the UK expected in the coming weeks.

Environment secretary George Eustice said: "Our beef is renowned as some of the best in the world for its high quality, food safety and welfare standards, and this landmark milestone means more people around the globe can enjoy our produce."

International trade secretary Liz Truss said today marked a "historic moment" for British farming which could be just the "tip of the iceberg."

Venables: child abuser

Bulger killer loses parole bid

ONE of James Bulger's killers has been told he must stay behind bars after losing a parole bid.

Jon Venables, 38, is serving time over child-abuse images.

Together with Robert Thompson he murdered two-year-old James in Liverpool in 1993.

And on Tuesday James's father Ralph Bulger said he could "rest easy" knowing Venables will not be freed.

He added: "This is the first time ever that the right decision has been made regarding my son's killers.

"I am so relieved because I was convinced he was getting out – just as he has done before.

"He may not stay in jail for ever, but just knowing he is still behind bars means that children are safe from him for at least another two years. I have always said that Venables is a dangerous predatory paedophile and should never be freed from prison, but no one has listened until now.

"They let him out twice before and he has always re-offended. Now the parole officers have seen the light.

"I've always believed that Venables will kill another child again if he is allowed back into the community."

It is understood it will be two years before he can apply again.

Venables is serving a 40-month sentence.

Wills: I'll speak for young to save planet

Prince urges humanity to 'speed the pace up' to combat climate change

PRINCE William has vowed to speak for the younger generation and urge older politicians to avoid environmental catastrophe.

The Duke of Cambridge suggests he expects to be criticised but says: "Someone has to put their head above the parapet and say, 'I care about this'."

In ITV documentary Prince William: A Planet For Us All, the prince, 38, urges humanity to "speed the pace up" to combat climate change and other threats.

Seen with Kate, 38, learning about melting glaciers in Pakistan's Hindu Kush mountains, William says: "I think the young are really getting it. And the younger generation are really wanting more and more people to do stuff and want more action.

"And we've got to speed the pace up. We've got to get on top of it and we need to be more vocal and more educational about what's going on."

Duty

In another excerpt in this week's Radio Times, William says: "That generational gap has to be bridged so that the older political leaders understand that the younger generation means business, I owe it to them to help their voices be heard."

The father of Prince George, seven, Princess Charlotte, five, and Prince Louis, two, adds: "I feel it is my duty and our collective responsibility to leave our planet in a stronger position for our children.

"My grandfather, my father, have been in environmental work for many years. My grandfather's well ahead of his time. My father's ahead of his time.

"And I really want to make sure that, in 20 years, George doesn't turn round and say, 'Are you ahead of your time?'. Because if he does we're too late."

The documentary also shows William in Tanzania where he feeds a rhino called Deborah.

Meanwhile, veteran naturalist Sir David Attenborough, 94, warned militant group Extinction Rebellion this week that it could end up "disenchanted" the very people it is trying to appeal to, urging it to treat the community "with respect".

Wally, Cad, Bonk, Trollop: the young just don't get it

WORDS such as bonk, sozzled, wally and randy could die out within a generation, says a poll.

They are among a long list which leave younger Brits scratching their heads.

As many as 40 per cent of 18-30 year olds have never heard the word sozzled, for someone who is drunk, while 37 per cent were unfamiliar with referring to a man who behaves dishonourably as a cad. Researchers provided a list to a panel of 2,000 respondents and asked them to identify ones they had never heard before.

And the word bonk to describe having sex is outdated, according to 37 per cent of under 30s. And 36 per cent said

THE 10 MOST BAFFLING

1. Sozzled Very drunk
2. Cad A man who is dishonest
3. Bonk Have sexual intercourse
4. Wally A stupid person
5. Betrothed Engaged
6. Nincompoop Stupid person
7. Boogie Dance to pop music
8. Trollop A woman who has many casual sexual encounters
9. Bounder Dishonourable man
10. Balderdash Nonsense

the same about wally, in relation to someone silly.

Overall, 40 per cent of all age groups believe it is right for some words to be consigned to history, if they are insulting or old-fashioned.

And more than a quarter feel the English language is constantly evolving, which is a good thing.

However, 32 per cent of the over 50s felt it was sad that some words are dying out.

of whether "vaccine passports" are needed to ensure people coming into the country are immunised.

And Dr Preston warned that vaccine hesitancy seemed to be a growing problem that had become embroiled in anti-mask, anti-lockdown ideologies.

"If cohorts of people refuse to have the vaccine, do we leave them to fend for themselves or have mandatory vaccination for children to go to schools, or for staff in care homes? There are lots of difficult questions."

Migrants using paddling pools to cross Channel

DESPERATE migrants are using children's paddling pools, kayaks and even a pedalo in attempts to cross the English Channel.

Four men in an inflatable pool, with shovels as oars and a road sign as a rudder, were rescued this summer 14 miles off France.

They were among poverty stricken asylum seekers who cannot afford to pay up to £4,000 to gangs of people smugglers.

Illegal trafficking by small boats surged during lockdown as the emergency curbed the movement of HGV lorries.

But the National Crime Agency and Home Office Immigration Enforcement officials are cracking down on the "hard core" of these gangs, officials said this week.

A new Joint Intelligence Cell of British and French enforcement officers has been involved in the arrests of nearly 100 suspect immigration gangsters since July.

The JIC has played a vital role in intercepting around 500 migrants intent on crossing the Channel.

During the Europe-wide operation, officers seized 10 boats, 152 life-jackets and 12 vehicles.

Home Secretary Priti Patel, left, said: "I'll not tolerate the illegally facilitated, dangerous crossings of the Channel. I want to send a message to people smugglers – we are coming for you."

NCA deputy director Matthew Long said: "These gangs are exploitative, putting lives of migrants secondary to profit."

Magic! Harry Potter first edition likely to fetch £50k

A DAD was stunned after a Harry Potter book he bought to help his children learn English turned out to be a rare first edition worth up to £50,000.

The hardback copy of Harry Potter And The Philosopher's Stone had sat on a bookshelf for 21 years when its owner decided to get it valued.

It is set to go under the hammer on October 13 with an estimate of £20,000 to £30,000 – but could fetch £50,000 due to its good condition.

The anonymous seller, who will use the cash to pay off his daughter's student loan, said he never thought in his "wildest dreams" the book would be worth that much.

The retired British expat bought it by mail order 18 months after it came out. He said: "I needed English books to read to my three children at bedtime.

"Their mother is Luxembourgish and they were going to state schools here in Luxembourg, so I needed to make a bit of an effort. It's just been sitting on a shelf ever since, with no special care.

"One of the children stuck Harry Potter pictures in the book when the first film came out."

There are various ways to identify a Philosopher's Stone first edition, published by Bloomsbury in 1997.

One clue is the phrase "1 wand" duplicated on page 53. Auctioneers

Hansons expert Jim Spencer said: "True first issues are seriously scarce."

Only 500 were printed, 300 of which were sent to schools and libraries. It's a cliched phrase, but they really are the holy grail for collectors."

The book sparked

Covid MP's parliament trip 'indefensible'

Scotland's first minister says the actions of an SNP MP who travelled to Westminster despite experiencing Covid symptoms are "utterly indefensible".

Margaret Ferrier said she made the journey because she was feeling "much better" - but also returned home after getting a positive test result.

The MP, who has been suspended by her party, said there was "no excuse for my actions".

Nicola Sturgeon tweeted her support for the decision to suspend the MP.

She said: "This is utterly indefensible. It's hard to express just how angry I feel on behalf of people across the country making hard sacrifices every day to help beat Covid.

"The rules apply to everyone and they're in place to keep people safe. @Ianblackford_MP is right to suspend the whip."

One of Ms Ferrier's former SNP colleagues, Glasgow East MP David Linden, has also said she "should resign" as an MP. He was speaking during the recording of tonight's BBC Question Time programme.

Court setback for Meghan

THE Duchess of Sussex has lost the latest round in her £3million legal battle with a newspaper over publication of a letter she wrote to her estranged father.

A High Court judge ruled that The Mail on Sunday could amend its defence to rely on a biography of Harry and Meghan.

It said it showed the Sussexes were happy to reveal private information, including details of the letter to Thomas, 74, to make them look good.

Meghan, 39, told a summit this week: "Don't listen to all the noise out there and just focus on living a purpose-driven life."

Royal Duels: Charles and Di center stage in The Crown

THE FAIRYTALE romance between Diana and Prince Charles will mark the upcoming series of The Crown.

Charting the courtship, the show will give viewers a glimpse of the struggles faced by Diana as she joins the Royal Family, her bouts of bulimia, the couple's separation – and divorce. And in one poignant scene, inset right, Diana meets her love rival Camilla Parker-Bowles for the first time.

A nervous Diana, played by actress Emma Corrin, is seen greeting an excitable Camilla (Emerald Fennell).

The intrusion of the paparazzi is also highlighted in Netflix's fourth season of the drama charting the decades-long reign of

Emma Corrin as Princess Diana in her early years (Netflix/AP)

Queen Elizabeth II (Olivia Colman). Teaser images released by Netflix also show Gillian Anderson as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and husband Denis (Stephen Boxer), outside 10 Downing Street. The Iron Lady endured a frosty relationship with the Queen.

In another image, Emma replicates one of Diana's visits with husband Charles (Josh O'Connor) to the Royal Opera House, dressed in a beautiful purple strapless gown.

And viewers will also be treated to Charles and Diana's 1981 wedding – with Emma in an exact replica of Diana's breathtaking dress.

The Crown Series Four will be released on Netflix on Sunday, November 15.

TAURUS: For most folks having being somewhat isolated has been a problem and while you have had your moments of frustration you got over it. However currently you should be preparing for action stations come mid-month.

GEMINI: The best way for you normally busy people is to really look at how many times you got over difficult situations. Do not put off anything that needs action now. Mars is going forward on a fast track this week ahead and it's best you are prepared.

CANCER: You should be getting plans organized for the later part of the week ahead. Just don't be worried if life is still on hold for you. Mercury in your cousin sign Scorpio brings some completion of your plans soon.

LEO: You should know by now in this present environment that the greatest gift you can give to others as well as yourself is patience. You have been buzzing around like a busy bee and making some good space in your life for new beginnings soon.

VIRGO: So just when you are ready to get going in life again along comes your boss Mercury slowly swimming into watery Scorpio. Not much you can achieve until the end of the month. This is a universal happening and you are not alone.

LIBRA: Trying to get moving through a pile of mud is the general atmosphere out there recently. Well, get on your working cap and dig yourself out. Change starts slowly beginning early next week. Happy Birthday.

SAGITTARIUS: Be sure you don't speak out in a combative way over a tense situation these next few days. It's not a bad situation, however since others are trying to control things it's best to keep silent. You will speak your word, however later next week is best.

CAPRICORN: Some easing up of the recent family or personal situation is happening (or soon will). Keep an eye on it, but keep out of it for now. Your boss Saturn is going forward next week and that brings a good deal better energy for you.

AQUARIUS: The current times are reasonably good for you due to your boss Uranus in solid earthy Taurus. However some days you could feel like you are on a roller coaster. You are getting ready for a move of sorts soon.

PISCES: You are getting a little stir crazy, which is not surprising. However, while you feel the turmoil of the recent past you also know you will always survive. Get ready, positive action is heading your way.

Brits in LA

Boy how one year can change... just over a year ago I was honored to have a piece published in The British Weekly and the Brits in LA newsletter acknowledging my eight-year anniversary in Los Angeles.

With a glass of Californian red wine, I sat in my lush backyard looking up at the bright light of the moon through the silhouetted palms trees, prompting me to write a heartfelt reflection on my time in California with a 'whimsical -nod' to an always-missed Blighty.

Here I sit in the same back yard just one year later with a strong lingering smell of smoke from the wildfires that continue to burn throughout California and on the Pacific Coast. There are no stars tonight or shining moon, just a sad feeling of what we have been living through since COVID took hold of all of our lives in March.

We just finished up a family Zoom call for Rosh Hashana, we should have all been together like every year but of course like most of us we have been on lockdown for months. This is now the norm; work, classes, doctor appointments, dinner parties all through the power of the internet, well thank goodness for that at least. We can all keep in visual contact with each other through these terribly isolating times. Tonight we recalled accounts of venturing out to the supermarket or to collect prescriptions describing the lengths we take to stay as safe as possible, with the very real and terrifying realization that we could at any time contract the virus which has destroyed so many lives.

So, I turn to my British friends, those of us who put ourselves, with everything on the line, to immigrate to the US and find a better life. Now things are now not quite like we ever imagined.

One year on: the world is a totally different place...

How do we feel about our lives now? Many of us separated from our families in the UK for the foreseeable, not being able to visit due to visa issues, self-isolating rules, expensive flights and the travel nightmare itself with the high risks of contracting COVID. Or have any of us have literally thrown the towel in and returned to be with our loved ones, realizing that our dream has become a living nightmare? We will get through this of course, most of us inherently are survivors, as risk takers it works the other way too. However, what I feel most is that people are not talking about money, how are people really coping, many losing work for the foreseeable, most industries completely affected and although some of us were lucky enough to receive some government assistance, that is not applicable to all. We are all trying to remain positive, as that is in our very core existence as self-motivators and go-getters but even this may have us slightly floored as to the best laid plans for preservation and navigation. How are our mindsets coping? There are good days and bad days and undoubtedly and for some of us the odd glass of wine and a Pilates class is helping to keep our minds focused.

What an unbelievable and somewhat revolutionary 2020... COVID, BLM movement, the election, wildfires, could there be more to come...for sure this is not over yet, we will get to the other side, however one thing we can all be sure of is that time passes. Love and strength to all my fellow Brits out there, we need each other more than ever to weather this storm. I will check in with you this time next year, sitting in the same chair in the same yard with a wine in my hand and see what my 10-year anniversary in the US will look like. Please if you are able to vote.... do. X

Meet a Member: Cat Austin

Meet Cat Austin from Montebello, California.

Most of our members are not from LA, and have moved here from overseas. Have you ever considered moving to another country? If so, which one?

I have never travelled outside the U.S. but I have fantasized about living in England since I was in high school. I love all things English and one day I hope to actually visit and experience it for myself.

Seeing as you live here what drew you to becoming part of the Brits in LA community?

I am a big fan of Doctor Who and with that have been able to meet many Brits. It's great to learn more about all things British when you surround yourself with people from there. They have introduced me to many amazing things including shows, food, and always teaching me things. I hope I can offer the same back!

What do you think you would miss most about Los Angeles if you did choose to live somewhere else?

Probably just family and friends. Having lived here most of my life I have already done almost all of it. One of my favorite things is just going to a beach toward the end of the day and enjoying the sunset. Pacific Ocean is beautiful so I would miss that a lot.

What do you find is the biggest misconception LA?

That all we do is club and go out every night. Many of us do like to go out and party but we also have jobs and need to make ends meet. LA is so diverse that other misconceptions are too many to list. I love talking to people with questions about LA and Southern California because there are so many things to do and see!

What one thing would you change about Los Angeles?

Traffic. That more people should be allowed to work from home so ease a lot of the traffic. We have seen it already with the Covid crisis and hopefully it will stick with many employers. Also it would help cut back the smog. LA is definitely known for smog and traffic.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

There are some great places you can just sit and enjoy the view and one place many forget about it the Griffith Observatory. There is also lots of area up there to just walk around. But the other fun thing about LA is all the interestingly different restaurants. They do have some turn over but it's fun to find the new ones and check them out. I am hearing about a couple places that are on rooftops and I am planning on checking them out as soon as I can. LA is also one of those places you can find foods of almost any culture.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Location is important depending on your plans or job. LA is a big place. We all do a lot of driving out here in LA and it can restrict you. Network with friends that are here.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Everyone here needs a car. We really don't have great public transportation yet. And what we do have can be dangerous if you don't know where you are going or the area. I worry about people that move here not knowing some of the areas that can be dangerous and accidentally getting off the freeway and ending up somewhere not great. I personally love giving people personal tours and showing them the lay of the land.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

I love to sew and make and create so my little side hustle is making pillows and other items like tote bags, cloth coasters, and other fun useful things. I really enjoy doing custom work for people where I can create something unique. One of my specialties is turning a t-shirt into a quilted pillow! Check out my webpage: www.pillowsbycat.com

DECL the star as Carlo's boys rout Hammers

Carabao Cup 4th Rd
Everton.....4
West Ham....1

Dominic Calvert-Lewin's scintillating early season form for Everton continued Wednesday night as the Everton striker netted three times against an outgunned West Ham side as he helped send the Toffees into the Carabao Cup quarter-finals.

His eight goals in five games were rewarded Thursday with his first England call up for next week's clashes with Wales, Belgium and then Denmark.

Richarlison was also on the scoresheet after Robert Snodgrass had given the Hammers a glimmer of hope by drawing them level after Calvert-Lewin's opener.

And the goal-hungry Toffees striker secured a place in the League Cup last-eight with two more late on for Carlo Ancelotti's men.

It is the first time Everton have won their first six games of the season since the 1938-39 campaign.

Calvert-Lewin opened the scoring in fine style when Michael Kean's ball over the top floated just over his shoulder before he controlled superbly with his left and then finished with his right. Hammers boss David Moyes will not have enjoyed what he was watching from home as he recovers from Covid.

Richarlison was also threatening and he went on a good run before Darren Randolph turned his strike over. The only low point of the first half was an ankle injury suffered by Jonjoe Kenny – but a bigger loss was losing summer signing Allan

Everton striker into England squad

Everton striker Dominic Calvert-Lewin is in his first England squad after being selected for this month's matches against Wales, Belgium and Denmark.

Leicester's Harvey Barnes and Arsenal's Bukayo Saka also get first call-ups.

Mason Greenwood

and Phil Foden, who were sent home from Iceland last month after breaching coronavirus quarantine guidelines, have been left out.

But Harry Maguire, who was withdrawn from that squad while he faced a court case in Greece, is in the 30-man squad.

Manchester United captain Maguire, 27, was given a suspended prison sentence on the Greek island of Syros after being found guilty of aggravated assault, resisting arrest and repeated attempts of bribery.

The centre-back maintains his innocence and has appealed against the decision, which nullifies the conviction.

Tough CL draw for United Manchester United will face Paris St-Germain, RB Leipzig and Istanbul Basaksehir in the Champions League group stage this season.

Premier League champions Liverpool will have to negotiate a group containing Ajax, Atalanta and Danish side Midtjylland.

Chelsea will play Europa League winners Sevilla, Krasnodar and debutants Rennes.

Manchester City are in Group D with Porto, Olympiakos and Marseille.

Meanwhile, Cristiano Ronaldo and Lionel Messi are set to face each other after Juventus and Barcelona were drawn in Group G, while holders Bayern Munich will face Atletico Madrid in Group A.

The draw, which also saw Real Madrid and Inter Milan paired in Group A, took place without club officials present because of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

And it was a particularly tough draw for Manchester United, who will play last term's finalists Paris St-Germain, as well as 2020 semi-finalists RB Leipzig.

This year's group stage begins on Tuesday, 20 October while the final is on Saturday, 29 May 2021 at the Ataturk Stadium in Istanbul.
