COVID VACCINE OUT BY CHRISTMAS, VOWS NHS

Surgeries to open round the clock to deliver 1.2 million doses every week

THE NHS says it is ready to deliver millions of anti-Covid jabs before Christmas.

Despite the colossal task of protecting the nation, NHS national medical director Professor Stephen Powis this week assured the public the health service is up to the job.

He said: "The NHS will be ready and able to make a start on vaccinating people from day one, despite the huge complexities.

"While most Covid vaccination is currently expected to take place in the New Year, hardworking NHS staff are already gearing up to get going this side of Christmas if the manufacturers can supply us."

"colossal challenge"

More than 1,200 GP surgeries are being equipped to dish out 1.2 million vaccines every week as soon as health chiefs approve the treatment.

Health Secretary Matt Hancock has promised the NHS will work around the clock to get the UK vaccinated, with practices open 8am to 8pm every day. He admitted deploying the vaccine was going to be a "colossal challenge" and said the military were on standby to help.

He told MPs that medicine regulators are on standby to approve the drugs as soon as they pass the final trials.

Mr Hancock said: "I know [the regulators] will rise to the challenge of being ready, when the science comes good, to inject hope into millions of arms this winter."

A Government source added: "We intend to go as fast as supplies allow. Clearly, if we have more than one vaccine authorised, we potentially will be able to go even faster.

"The NHS is determined that its ability to deliver the vaccine will not be the rate What will be the rate limiting factor is the supply."

Their optimism came as the daily number of deaths rose to its highest since May 12.

Meanwhile, Mr Hancock set out details of the Government's readiness to roll out a national vaccination programme following trials by Pfizer that showed a 90 per cent success rate in its vaccine earlier this week.

booking system

Pledging £150million to set it up, he said: "We in the UK are among the first to identify the promise shown by the [Pfizer] vaccine and we secured an order of 40 million doses. This puts us towards the front of the international pack."

Two doses are needed per person. He added: "I have tasked the NHS with being ready from any date from December 1.

"The logistics are complex, the uncertainties are real and the scale of the job is vast. But I know that the NHS, brilliantly assisted by the Armed Services, will be up to the task."

NHS England has told England's 1,250 primary care networks to designate a single practice to administer vaccines in their area capable of delivering vaccines from 8am to 8pm.

Patients will also need to be observed for 15 minutes after the vaccination is administered, while annual flu jabs and Covid-19 vaccinations must be given at least a week apart.

Appointments will be managed through a national booking system. Mr Hancock told the Commons that the UK was "towards the front of the international pack" in the effort to protect people from the disease, thanks to home-grown expertise and investment.

Asked if a vaccine could allow some vulnerable people to be reunited with loved ones, including those in care homes, by Christmas, another source said it would depend on the data from the drug trials.

The priority list includes everyone aged 50 and older, with the oldest people being vaccinated first. Care home residents are also at the top of the list.

Officials believe these groups represent 99 per cent of those who died during the first wave of the virus.

The vaccination programme will then be extended to the rest of the nation.

Ministers have ordered 300 million further doses from five other vaccine candidates in development, including one from Oxford University and the pharmaceutical giant AstraZeneca.

Border laws give us 'power over destiny', says Priti

Home Secretary hails new law which restores control over UK borders

BRITAIN finally has the power to set its own destiny after historic immigration reforms ending free movement were signed into law on Monday, Priti Patel has declared.

For the first time in a generation, the country will have control over its borders, starting on December 31 at 11pm.

The Home Secretary, speaking to the Daily Express it would be a "significant moment in history" and vowed to restore public trust in the system.

'landmark legislation'

The new laws will also play a crucial role in helping UK workers hit by the coronavirus crisis to secure jobs. Meanwhile, "firm and fair" rules will decide who comes into the country, she added.

Ms Patel said: "The passing of this landmark legislation is a significant moment in history for the UK, giving us the power to set our own destiny. "Time and time again, we made promises to the British people that we would end free movement and deliver a firm and fair points-based immigration system.

"So it brings me great pride to deliver on this promise."

U n c o n t r o l l e d migration across the EU was at the centre of the 2016 Brexit referendum. Ms Patel is replacing the free-flowing system with tougher checks and controls.

It means applicants will be assessed on their skills instead of where they come from.

The Immigration Act, which received Royal Assent on Monday, sets out the rules that will come into force when the Brexit transition period ends next month.

Migrants will need to apply for permission to work in Britain and will be assessed on their earnings, language skills and employment status.

Points could also be awarded for certain qualifications or for occupations where there is a shortage of staff.

Low-skilled migration will be significantly curbed, with employers told there is no general route for recruiting from overseas for jobs at or near the minimum wage.

The Government wants to attract the brightest and the best from around the world to help drive the economy forward.

Top scientists and academics will be fasttracked into the UK along with investors and entrepreneurs.

The Government is also introducing schemes to make it easier for health and care workers to come to the UK. Ms Patel added that the new laws will also help people who have lost their livelihoods during the coronavirus crisis to get back into work.

She said the Government will be able to set its own priorities as the country recovers from the pandemic.

"SIGNIFICANT MOMENT": Patel said the Government will be able to set its own priorities as the country recovers from the pandemic.

Employers will be t encouraged to focus on r training and investing in c UK workers, especially those hit by the recent l crisis. She said: "Our new t immigration system will be an important pillar f in the Government's s strategy to boost our c economy, supporting businesses to grow and getting people back into work." The legislation faced fierce resistance during its passage through Parliament. It ricocheted between the Commons and Lords after heavy defeats by peers.

The Upper Chamber eventually backed down on Monday after getting Government assurances there will be help for lone child refugees.

Sir Keir Starmer had instructed his MPs to oppose the bill but was easily outvoted in the Commons.

Boris Johnson took a swipe at the Labour leader at Prime Minister's questions, accusing his opponent of wanting to "reverse" the reforms. He added that the new points-based system was "one of the advantages" of leaving the EU.

He said: "This marks the delivery of our promise to the British people to regain control of our borders and consider new arrivals on the basis of the skills they have to offer and the contribution they can make, not where they come from.

"The passing of this landmark Bill means that for the first time in decades we will have a firm and fair immigration system that will support our economy and see us build back better." Under the new rules, Irish citizens will continue to be able to live and work in the UK.

EU citizens who are in the country before December 31 can apply for settled status that will allow them to remain.

Cummings is going!

Boris Johnson's senior adviser Dominic Cummings is expected to leave his position by the end of the year.

Mr Cummings told the BBC "rumours of me threatening to resign are invented", after speculation this week.

But he added that his "position hasn't changed since my January blog" when he said that he wanted to make himself "largely redundant" by the end of 2020.

And a senior Downing Street source said that Mr Cummings would be "out of government" by Christmas.

It follows a turbulent week at No 10 in which Lee Cain - the director of communications and an ally of Mr Cummings - also stood down amid reports of internal tensions at Downing Street.

The pair are longtime colleagues, having worked together on the Leave campaign during the EU referendum - and Mr Cain's departure prompted rumours that his ally would also step down.

Mr Cummings ran the pro-Brexit Vote Leave campaign in the EU referendum and was behind the group's "take back control" slogan.

After Boris Johnson became prime minister in July 2019, he hired Mr Cummings to be his senior adviser and six months later the pair's strategy of stressing "Get Brexit Done" as the main campaign message helped the party win a larger majority in the general election.

Mr Cummings has become more of a public figure in the past year and was forced into holding his own news conference at Downing Street in the summer, following controversy over him making a trip to the north of England when non-essential was banned travel at the height of the coronavirus lockdown.

HELLO, MR PRESIDENT: Brexit boost as Johnson and Biden talk

HOPES of a post-Brexit trade deal with America were boosted this week after Boris Johnson spoke with Presidentelect Joe Biden.

The Prime Minister was one of the first world leaders to talk to Mr Biden after his win over Donald Trump.

It was a diplomatic coup amid concerns the pair may not have a smooth relationship because of controversy over Brexit and Mr Johnson's past comments about former president Barack Obama. Britain and the Trump administration have been in talks over a new trading alliance.

Congratulated

And trade was one of the "shared priorities" discussed bv Mr

Johnson and Mr Biden in Monday's 25-minute telephone call.

They also talked about upholding the Good Friday Agreement during Brexit. Mr Biden, who has Irish heritage, believes is essential to any future trade accord.

"warmly The PM congratulated" Mr Biden, said No10. And Mr Johnson invited him to the United Nations climate crisis summit hosted by the UK in Glasgow next November.

"They discussed the close and longstanding relationship between our countries and committed to building on this, in areas such as trade and security," added Mr Johnson's spokesman.

"The PM and Presidentelect also looked forward to working closely on shared priorities."

After he spoke with Mr Johnson, Mr Biden addressed Mr Trump directly for the first time since his victory, calling his rival's refusal to concede and voting fraud accusations "embarrassing".

President-elect The added: "How can I say this tactfully, it will not help the President's legacy."

Mr Biden opened the press conference in Wilmington, Delaware, saying: "Mr President, I look forward to speaking with you."

In stark contrast to Mr Trump's "America first" policy, he said his signal to the world was: "We are back in the game. I'm not going to be 'America

It was also reported that Republican senators have gone behind Mr Trump's back to congratulate Mr Biden.

Controversial measures that tear up parts of the Brexit divorce agreement were "significant and enduring" ties between the countries and a lot of important work to do.

"We've got more to do together than we could possibly do apart and I think those enduring and tectonic forces will bring us together fairly quickly," he told the BBC's Andrew Marr.

Biden WILL do trade deal with UK Britain and America ready to unite over a multi-billion pound agreement

BRITAIN and the US are prepared to strike a substantial trade deal after Joe Biden's victory.

Boris Johnson said there was a "good chance" of signing an improved deal as he congratulated the President elect over his defeat of Donald Trump.

It could be worth tens of billions of pounds. Britain and the US have been in talks over a new trading alliance for more than a vear.

A senior Biden aide this week vowed that Brexit Britain would remain a "significant ally" of the US, insisting there is "a lot of work to do together".

As Mr Biden celebrated with his family in Wilmington, Delaware, Mr Johnson said significant progress had already been made.

"I think that there is far more that unites the Government of this country and government in Washington any time, any stage, than divides us," he added. "I'm a keen student of the United States's trade policy and they're tough negotiations. And I've never believed that this was going to be something that was going to be a complete pushover under any US administration.

"I think there's a good chance we'll do something." International Trade Secretary Liz Truss and her team "have made a huge amount of progress".

Rashford thanks the PM

CHILDREN'S champ Marcus Rashford thanked Boris Johnson this week after he finally agreed to fund free school meals over the holidays.

The Manchester United striker, 23, had previously convinced the Prime Minister to allow 1.3 million youngsters to claim meal vouchers during last summer's break.

Now the PM has agreed to the star's campaign for free school meals during the Christmas break. Easter and summer 2021 holidays plus half terms.

Mr Johnson phoned the footballer on Saturday after his team's 3-1 win over Everton to tell him his £400million decision.

Rashford said: "I very much welcome the steps that have been taken to combat child food poverty in the UK.

"The intent the Government have shown is nothing but positive and they should be recognised for that. The steps made today will improve the lives of nearly 1.7 million children in the UK over the next 12 months and that can only be celebrated."

The England ace also said that Mr Johnson had agreed to speak with the footballer's child food poverty taskforce.

Rashford, who was recently awarded an MBE in recognition of his campaigning work, added: "I am fully committed to this cause.

"I will fight for the rest of my life for it, because in my mind no child should ever go hungry in the United Kingdom."

government The package of support will include a £170million ring-fenced fund to be distributed through councils. At least 80 per cent of the cash will be earmarked for help with food and bills.

HQ when we're free of EU, vows Rishi RISHI Sunak is promising the City of London will be the world's leading financial centre when the UK is free from Brussels regulations next year. In a Commons statement on Monday, the Chancellor set out his plans for a new regulatory framework for the country's financial service sector once the transition out of the EU's single market is completed.

He said: "As we leave the EU and start a new chapter in the history of financial services in this country we want to renew the UK's position as the pre-eminent world's financial centre."

Mr Sunak also announced that Britain's future financial regulations will include tough new environmental standards.

He pledged that rules will be introduced to force British companies to reveal the impact they Bare having on the environment by 2025.

New "Green Bonds" to encourage investment in environmental projects will be issued by the Government.

'significant progress'

Speaking as trade talks with the EU's Michel Barnier continued in London, the Chancellor said: "I think it wouldn't be right of me Lto give a day-by-day commentary on the current negotiations. But as we heard from the Prime Minister at the weekend we have made significant progress, those talks are ongoing, it is clear that a deal can be done.

"But that will require both sides to continue to act in a constructive way."

Under the Chancellor's new rules, Britishbased firms will have to ensure they provide thorough reports to Mr Sunak said he was setting out plans "to make this country more open, more technologically advanced and a world leader in the use of green finance".

He continued: "This is the start of a new chapter for financial services, the industry is better regulated, better capitalised and more resilient than in 2008. Coronavirus has reminded us financial services are essential services."

But Labour's shadow chancellor Anneliese Dodds warned: "While we debate these often welcome measures, we mustn't forget the elephant in the room this Government's mishandling of ensuring market access for our firms to our largest trading partner."

Death toll hits 50,365 in highest daily rate since May

BRITAIN'S number of Covid deaths has passed 50,000, eight months after the first UK victim was officially identified in March.

In total 595 daily deaths were announced on Tuesday, the highest since mid-May, along with 22,950 new cases.

Prime Minister Boris Johnson said: "Every death is a tragedy and we mourn everybody who's gone and our feelings are with their families and friends as well."

Official figures show 50,365 people have died within 28 days of a positive coronavirus test, with Britain the first country in Europe to hit the "grim milestone".

When counted by death certificates mentioning Covid-19, the figure rises to 61,648. More than 1.2 million cases have been confirmed through testing since the outbreak began, and Mr Johnson said the virus's terrible effects were "clearer and clearer".

But he expressed hope that the coming months would be different, saying: "I do think that we have got now to a different phase in the way that we treat it.

"After these tough autumn measures which I hope people will stick to really, really rigidly as far as they possibly can – we're verv much hoping that two things will start to come to our aid. Number one, the mass testing, the rapid turnaround testing.

"Then the other thing is now the realistic prospect of a vaccine. But I've got to stress that we're not out of the woods yet, it does still require everybody to follow the guidance, do the right thing to suppress the disease in the way that we all understand."

Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer described the death toll as a "grim milestone", saying: "We're the first in Europe to hit it. Behind these numbers is a devastated family, one for every death, and they have to be uppermost in our mind."

Public Health England medical director Dr Yvonne Doyle said: "Sadly the upward trend is likely to continue and it will be several weeks before any impact of the current measures, and the sacrifices we are all making, is seen and is reflected in the data.

"By limiting contact with others you are helping to stop the spread of the virus. This will lead to fewer infections and help to save lives."

Brits in LA

There and back again...

■ In some ways Carol Wilson's round trip to the UK felt like a journey across the universe....

Having spent 11 years living in LA and moaning every time I went home to the UK about no direct flight from Manchester, never again will I think it's a big deal to take myself to Heathrow.

Not after a round-theuniverse trip to get here this time. Covid 19 has a lot to answer for but you know what, adventure is my middle name.

I returned last year to the UK to be with my dad and early this year he passed away. After the funeral there came a ban on visa holders entering the US. I naively thought it would last a couple of weeks and I was loving spending time with my grandson as spring turned to summer and we explored the North West countryside. I had forgotten how fabulous England is and I loved it. The lush countryside, the amazing parks and the NHS not to mention M&S and Tesco.

But it was going on much longer than we could ever have imagined and then came the fabulous news that my daughter who lives in LA is expecting her first baby. I had to find a way back. I discovered via Brits in LA (Massive thanks to Jonathon Cowley) that if I quarantined in a nonbanned country for 14 days I could get in that way. The options were Mexico, Turkey, Dubai etc so I thought go for it, Dubai here I come. What a great decision that was. You need a negative

Covid 19 test 96 hours before arriving, and once there go through thermal imaging and temperature checks. I eventually holed up at Le Royal Meridien in Jumeriah Beach (If you are ever going stay here!) I had been the year before to shoot a music video for a client so I had an idea of my bearings. And thereby started the funniest of adventures.

My children's friend childhood DJ since Chris Wright (IG @ djchriswright) owns a company, Inside Lifestyle thatrunthemostluxurious events and tailor-made holidays. From drinking tea (mixologist thought I was mad) on the 123rd floor of The Burj Khalifa, thinking I had been kidnapped in a taxi as we neared the Abu Dhabi border (My biggest worry was that if we crossed my 14 days would have to start again) partying at the Penthouse at The Five (most instagrammed hotel in the world) and taking meetings in one of the most beautiful offices I have ever seen, it was the best way to spend a quarantine. But the journey must continue. I was struggling to find full cover insurance at an age where most companies think you are one step away from the pearly gates, but the fabulous Adam Beach, once again via Brits in LA came to my rescue.

At the airport in Dubai they told me I couldn't fly as on arrival my flight had landed at 0005 and that meant that day wasn't counted. Fortunately I had come in on an Emirates flight and was leaving on one, so after much ado they let me check in. Phew!! Not so quick, at the boarding gate same scenario, they obviously didn't know I am never to be defeated. So onto the flight I went.

The crew were in full PPE and the level of cleanliness and sanitizing that went on I have only seen in an operating theatre. I also had three seats to myself, great for a 16 and half hour flight, but I couldn't sleep. What if at immigration I had the same problem over the number of days I had been in quarantine? LAX was empty so straight the counter I went sweating and praying it didn't look like I had a temperature. The officer asked the purpose of my visit and I said to be with my daughter for the birth of my granddaughter. He said he had just had a grandson and stamped my passport and said 'aren't we lucky, have fun' I nearly leapt on the counter and hugged him. But of course during this pandemic you can't do that.

Sohere I am, finally. And as we wait for the arrival of my granddaughter any day now if was worth every mile, every day traveling and every bit of stress. 2020 you aren't getting the better of us!!

Meet a Member: India Dupre

Meet India Dupre originally from Leigh-on-Sea, Essex who moved to LA 19 years ago to pursue a career in performing and filmmaking.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA? I was in a band with Nick Heyward, we had just made an album in London and we came out here to tour. We got a flat in Toluca Lake and lived between England and LA. Eventually I stayed here and made it my home.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss the cobblestoned streets and the sense of history you feel walking down the street. I miss all the different accents from England and abroad. I miss English food! Gravy, peas, fish and chips, roast potatoes that the English do so well. I miss the sense of humor (even in the ads on TV!)

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? After living in London, I was most impressed with the color of the sky when you land at LAX. The blue is something not to be taken for granted.

What do you find the difference is living here versus London?

Little things like: I'd put my sneakers on for the trek on public transport and take a big heavy backpack with nice shoes to change into for later on, more clothes, an umbrella etc. in case it started to rain. In LA you can have different items all in the back of your car and pull right up to an address! I felt it was very expensive in London. I was working in a bar, singing on Sundays and it was tough to make a living that way. In LA I felt you could live a better quality of life for not that much money! But I do miss those dreamy summers in London where everyone is so happy laying sunburnt in the parks taking in every drop of sunshine. I loved traveling to Europe so easily too!

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us? I recently found the old zoo grounds in Griffith Park – it is where a zoo was established in the early 1900s and they left all the caves there after establishing a new zoo close by. My English friend Jo and I hike over there and while it is sad to think of bears and tigers confined in those dens, the surrounding old trees and vast green areas remind us of English parks and you can breathe in gorgeous fresh air.

There's also a great beach on PCH called Carbon Beach – there are two Public Access entry points and my husband and I love it. It's mostly empty and you can take a peaceful walk past all the fancy beach houses. It is worth the drive every time. You leave feeling serene and fulfilled. Park for free on PCH.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here? Americans are very friendly and love Brits. You can really make LA feel lovely by taking advantage of the nature the canyons, the beaches, the older areas with character and landmarks. I once saw the orphanage where Marilyn Monroe lived as a child that had a view of the Paramount Water Tower that she used to pray to! The Venice Canals, designed by Abbot Kinney in 1905, are stunning and you can take a blissful walk around them.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Don't give up! My friends that stay here usually find their place and do very well. But you've got to put the time and energy in!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment?

I am creating a podcast right now for Audible Originals. I moved to Australia at the age of four as a child migrant under the Fairbridge scheme. It was a disaster (they'd promised my mum, Margaret Dupre, a job and a place to live with us kids but ripped that letter up on arrival and sent her away. She could have us back when she had a house and a job.) This all led to a very interesting childhood where my mother, desperate, became a stripper, stole us back, and we hitchhiked from Perth across the Nullarbor to the Gold Coast where she became a popular model.

I made a short film, Stripped, with Vikings actress Katheryn Winnick playing my mother. And another short, RING from the perspective of a doorbell about an affair that goes wrong...

Mum lives here in LA too and we have lunch and garden every other day.

England: Heartbreak as Northern Ireland fall just short

when he was sent off in the Nations League home defeat by Denmark - by heading in Harry Winks' cross after 18 minutes.

Jadon Sancho doubled advantage England's before the break and their total control was emphasised when Dominic Calvert-Lewin scored emphatically from the penalty spot in the 56th minute after Bukayo Saka was fouled by Cyrus Christie. It sealed England's first win against the Republic since 1985.

All judgement of England must be placed in the context of a mediocre Republic of Ireland performance, but this was still a very impressive night for Aston Villa's Jack Grealish.

The 25-year-old, who actually played for the Republic's Under-21 side before switching allegiance to England, has been the subject of much debate, with many wondering why Southgate has not used his mercurial talents more regularly.

Here, given a roving role, Grealish was in confident mood as he relished possession and was one of England's main creative forces before being substituted and getting a warm from embrace his manager after a fine display.

It remains to be seen whether Grealish has done enough to figure more prominently in Southgate's thoughts for the key clash in Belgium but there is no doubt he made another big impression, albeit in a game that occasionally resembled a practice session.

It was hard to make any serious judgements in such a low-key friendly but Southgate will be pleased England were able to show such domination for almost the entire game.

Northern Ireland's hopes of reaching Euro 2020 were ended as Slovakia scored deep into extra time to win their play-off final 2-1 at Windsor Park on Thursday.

The home side had equalised in dramatic style when defender Milan Skriniar put the ball into his own net with two minutes of normal time left to cancel out Juraj Kucka's early opener.

Substitute Kyle Lafferty then nearly won it for Northern Ireland when his long-range effort hit the post in the 90th minute.

But the game went to extra time and Michal Duris, on from the bench, made the most of a lucky ricochet to score Slovakia's winner in the 110th minute.

The win takes Slovakia though to their second consecutive Euro finals and prevents Northern However, while they raised themselves for spells during the game and perhaps looked more likely to grab a winner during extra time - it was generally a disjointed performance from Ian Baraclough's men.

After the joy of Euro 2016 in France, Northern Ireland had given themselves the opportunity to qualify again by beating Bosnia & Herzegovina on penalties in the play-off semi-final in October.

A night that ended in despair would have been so different had Lafferty's excellent shot from distance just seconds before the end of 90 minutes gone in rather than striking the outside of the Slovakian post.

Injury misery for Gomez Gomez has played Liverpool defender Joe in all but one of Gomez has had surgery on a knee injury and Liverpool's Premier is "likely" to miss a League and Champions "significant part" of the League games this rest of season, the club season. The injury is not the Gomez was injured same as the cruciate ligament on Wednesday while injury training with England he suffered in 2015.

England manager Gareth Southgate said the injury was "probably a consequence of the number of games that have been played".

Delirious Scots book finals berth

Penalty heroics land Steve Clarke's side in first major tournament since 1998

Scotland's agonising 23year absence from major men's tournaments is finally over after an historic and epic shootout victory over Serbia.

David Marshall saved magnificently from Aleksandar Mitrovic Thursday night for a 5-4 sudden-death win after Scotland had dominated, led until the 90th minute, then hung on for penalties in Belgrade.

Christie's Ryan second-half opener had Steve Clarke's side tantalisingly close to a Euro 2020 place but Luka Jovic netted amid a late Serbian rally to force extra time.

However, a tiring Scotland were impeccable from the spot as they ended a barren streak of 10 missed tournaments

Clarke's men are now nine games unbeaten their best run in 44 years - and will face England, Croatia and the Czech Republic in Group D at next summer's delayed finals.

If there was a Scotland way to finally get back to the big time, then this was it. Not content with putting the nation through the trauma of a shootout in the semifinal against Israel, they repeated the dose.

Gut-wrenching does not come close to describing it.

Yet while a nation's nerves were fraying back home, Scotland's players exuded a calm authority. They were comfortable in possession for an hour, zipping passes around, and harrying the visitors.

Lyndon Dykes was putting in a gruelling shift, winning countless aerial duels and making the ball stick. He was just one of the heroes in blue all over the pitch.

On an demanding big а performance, every Scotland player delivered.

There were flashes of first-half threat from Scotland, the best when a Dykes knockdown led to John McGinn breaking free down the left-hand channel. The midfielder's shot needed power and precision but lacked both as Predrag Rajkovic smothered at the second attempt.

Serbia - for all their talent - looked uneasy and had barely a sniff.

did The interval nothing to halt Scotland's momentum. They should have led early in the second half when occasion Dykes danced past three defenders and squared for the in-rushing Andy Robertson to blaze over.

A big chance gone. within moments But disappointment the made way for euphoria. Callum McGregor pounced on a stray pass out of Serbia's defence and shuttled the ball to his Celtic team-mate. Christie's nifty footwork opened up the space for a shot and he arrowed in off the base of the post.

Clarke's men could have put the tie to bed - a McGregor strike drifted wide and Christie was agonisingly close with a curling effort.

But Serbia began to hammer at the door in ## England brush off Irish

England strolled to a 3-0 victory against the Republic of Ireland their friendly in international at Wembley on Thursday. Manager Gareth Southgate gave his undercard a chance as he kept England's main players back for the Uefa Nations League match in Belgium on Sunday but they still had far too much for an outclassed Republic side.

Jude Bellingham, brought on as а substitute for his debut in the second half, became England's third-youngest full international at 17 years and 137 days.

And Manchester United goalkeeper Dean Henderson also won his first senior cap as a halftime replacement for Burnley's Nick Pope.

the frantic closing stages, and tied it up when they slung over a corner and Jovic had lost his marker to send a header down into the turf and up over Marshall into the top corner.

Clarke's men were crestfallen, but not out for the count. Extra time was arduous with Serbia on top as Nemanja Gudelj's dipping drive brought out a brilliant diving save from Marshall and Aleksandar Katai had pot-shots either side of the interval.

Scotland staggered towards the shootout, clearly exhausted. One final push was required Leigh and Griffiths, McGregor, Scott McTominay, Oli McBurnie and Kenny McLean all delivered from the spot.

Then Marshall flung himself to his left to palm away Mitrovic's effort. Cue bedlam in the Scotland ranks as two decades of frustration poured out.
