FLU 'COULD KILL 60,000' THIS WINTER

- Health Secretary launches biggest campaign against the disease in NHS history
- Britons urged to book flu shots and Covid boosters immediately

Health chiefs are urging Britons to get jabbed as soon as possible amid warnings up to 60,000 people could die from flu this winter.

Experts fear a massive surge in cases because social distancing measures kept infections low last year, reducing population immunity.

The Government has launched the biggest flu programme in the history of the NHS, with more than 35 million people in England eligible for a free vaccine.

Covid booster jabs are also being rolled out, with around 1.7 million people given these third jabs so far and around 28 million people in England eligible.

Health Secretary Sajid Javid is calling on people to protect themselves against both viruses after experts predicted high infection rates could push the health service to breaking point.

It comes as colder weather and darker evenings lead to increased social contact indoors, making it easier for the viruses to spread.

The Covid booster must be given no earlier than six months after a second dose of any coronavirus vaccine, according to guidance from the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI).

In some regions people may be offered the Covid jab in one arm and the flu vaccine in the other, although this will not be available everywhere.

Mr Javid said people should not delay having either jab when invited to get them - either on separate occasions or at the same time.

He added: 'The Covid-19 vaccine programme is a fantastic example of how successful vaccination programmes can be - with around 130,000 lives saved.

'It is vital we continue that incredible progress with all those eligible ensuring they get both their flu and Covid-19 booster injections as soon as they are invited.'

A report from the Academy of Medical Sciences, published earlier this year, assessed how the triple threat of coronavirus, flu and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) might affect the NHS this winter.

It found that hospital admissions and deaths from flu and RSV could be more than double those seen in a normal year, leading to as many as 60,000 flu deaths and 40,000 children in hospital with RSV.

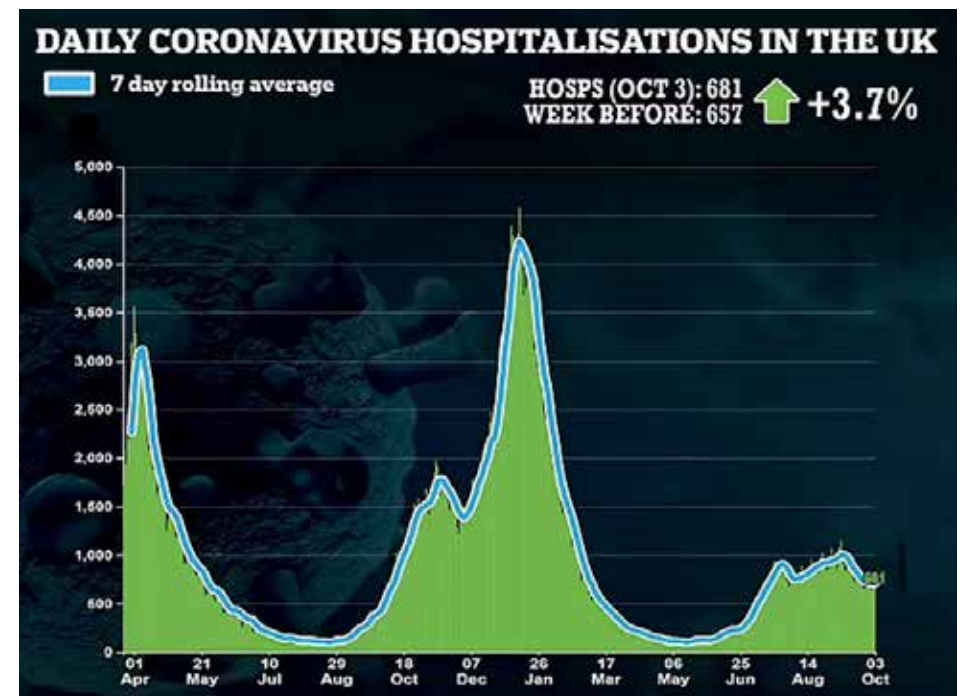

A recent survey of 3,000 people for ministers found that nearly one third (32 per cent) were unaware that flu and Covid-19 can circulate at the same time.

A quarter (26 per cent) did not know that flu can

TRAVEL EASIER: red list slashed to just seven countries

The number of countries on the UK Covid travel red list will be cut from 54 to seven, the government said on Thursday.

South Africa, Brazil and Mexico come off the red list, which requires travellers to quarantine in an approved hotel at their cost for 10 full days.

Transport Secretary Grant Shapps said the changes begin on Monday and "mark the next step" in opening travel.

boost

This latest move will be seen as a boost to the airline industry and families separated during the pandemic.

Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, Peru, Ecuador, Haiti and the Dominican Republic remain on the red list.

Pandemic travel rules in the UK have recently been simplified, with the amber list cut, and advice against holidays changed for 32 countries.

But consumer group Which? warned the changes only reflect requirements for arriving back in the UK.

"Travellers should be aware that they may still face restrictions on entry to many destinations, especially those under 18 who are not yet vaccinated," it said.

more expensive

Arrivals from 37 more destinations will have their vaccination status certificates recognised, meaning they can avoid more expensive post-arrival testing requirements.

Vaccinated travellers from Brazil, Hong Kong, India, Pakistan, South Africa and Turkey will be treated the same as returning fully-vaccinated UK residents so long as they have not visited a red-list country in the 10 days before arriving in England.

variants

All arrivals will still complete a passenger locator form.

The Scottish government said the changes were "agreed on a four-nation basis".

The Welsh government said that they increased opportunities for new infections and variants, but it was adopting them because it was not practical to have its own border policy.

'Poohsticks' bridge sold for £131k to Sussex landowner

■ Bridge featuring in AA Milne stories bought by estate owner whose father used to play Poohsticks with author's son

To Winnie-the-Pooh fans, the bridge over the river on the edge of the forest where Pooh invents a new game is up there with heffalumps and pots of honey and the Hundred Acre Wood.

It is where Pooh one day accidentally drops a fir cone in the water on one side of the bridge, only to spot – to his astonishment – the cone reappearing on the other side. "And that was the beginning of the game called Poohsticks."

Now the original bridge has been sold for £131,625, more than double the top end of the presale estimate of £40,000 to £60,000. Its new owner is Lord De La Warr, who owns the 2,000-acre Buckhurst Park estate in East Sussex, which incorporates the wood made famous in AA Milne's children's books.

De La Warr said he was delighted to be the successful bidder. The bridge would "take pride of place on the estate close to its original position", he said.

Describing the

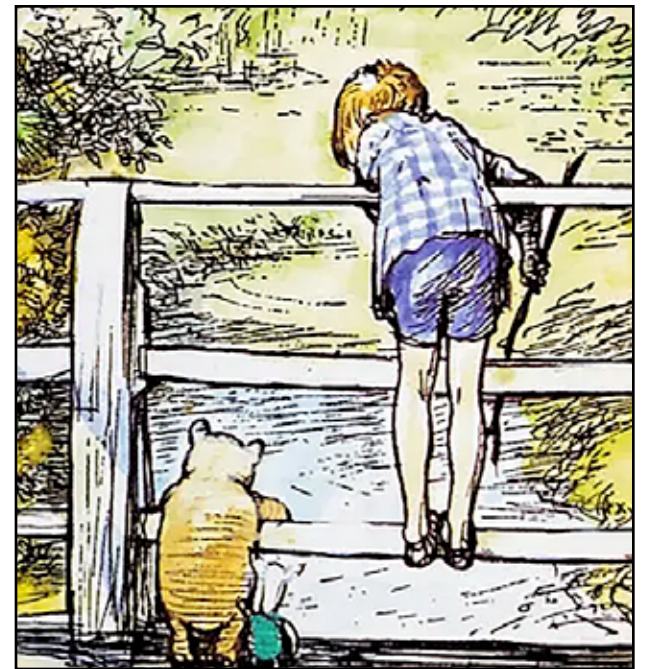

The original bridge, pictured, which featured in AA Milne's Winnie the Pooh books was replaced in 1999 and underwent restoration structure as "an iconic piece of literary history in physical form", James Rylands, the director of Summers Place Auctions which held the sale, said there had been interest from potential buyers in many countries. "But we are thrilled the bridge will stay in the UK – it's a really happy ending and we couldn't have hoped for anything better."

replica

According to Rylands, De La Warr's father used to play Poohsticks with Christopher Robin Milne, the only child of AA Milne, who was the inspiration for the children's books along with his collection of soft toys. Rylands said the bridge was "going back home".

The original wooden structure was built from oak in 1907 to carry pedestrians, horses and carts over a river in Ashdown Forest, the setting for the Pooh stories and poems. It was replaced with a replica in 1999 after visits by thousands of people keen to recreate the famous EH Shepard drawing of Christopher Robin leaning over the railings left it worn and rickety.

The original bridge was dismantled and placed in storage. It was later reconstructed and restored, and relocated to Kent after a private sale.

Now, said Rylands, Winnie-the-Pooh fans would again be able to set eyes on it, although games of Poohsticks may be ruled out in order to preserve the bridge for future generations.

He added: "Winnie-the-Pooh's attraction is the innocence of a bygone age; it's so wholesome. There's so much badness in the world, but Winnie-the-Pooh always brings a smile to your face."

The price achieved in sealed bids was "a reflection of its place as a national treasure, but more importantly it will be cared for and loved".

In 2014, EH Shepard's illustration of Pooh, Christopher Robin and

Johnny Gold, legendary owner of Tramp, dies at 89

■ Iconic London nightclub was favored haunt of showbiz superstars, moguls and royalty

LONDON'S nightclub scene has lost one of its legendary figures with the death this week of Johnny Gold, the founder of Tramp.

Gold, 89, presided over the Jermyn Street institution from its star-studded opening in 1969 until its sale in 2004. The intervening 35 years saw a non-stop parade of stars, moguls and royalty passing through its doors as the place became a byword for excess, carousing – and most importantly – discretion.

Tramp was the place where Rod Stewart partied until dawn, where Mickey Rourke drank with George Best and Joan Collins filmed The Stud. And it was where American superstars visiting London would almost always come for a drink and to visit its charismatic owner – be they Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr, Elizabeth Taylor or Muhammad Ali.

Mick Jagger was a founder member of the club when it opened in 1969 and fellow Stone Bill Wyman formed a lasting friendship with Gold when he hung out there with Bobby Moore, Albert Finney, Bjorn Borg, Robert De Niro and Anthony Newley.

'couple of years'

Membership was initially set at ten guineas – about £200 today – but Gold, along with fellow owners Oscar Lerman and Bill Ofner, had no idea they were creating an institution. "We thought it might last a couple of years at best," Gold once told a TV documentary crew.

Lerman's wife, best-selling author Jackie Collins, said of the club: "At Tramp, you didn't have the paparazzi you have today, you didn't have the spies or cell-phone cameras."

Regular Rod Stewart has said of Tramp in the past: "Just as well it was before camera-phones. We'd all be in prison by now, the things we got up to!"

"I'd come out of Tramp about 4am or 5am when I used to play Sunday morning football, get up about three hours later and go and kick off at 11am."

Mickey Rourke, who was also a regular, said: "Back in the day, there was Tramp. That was it. All the best-looking girls in the world were there, all the best-looking guys."

"There would be all these stars but the star of the place was Johnny Gold because he looked after you."

Other regulars, both at the club's London premises and its short-lived Los Angeles outpost – were Michael Caine, George Best and the 'other' Collins sister, Joan.

After selling his stake in 2004 Gold enjoyed a comfortable retirement with his wife Jan in The Bahamas.

Revealing the secret of his success, Gold said: "I tried to treat the celebrities as ordinary people, and the ordinary people as celebrities. I'd walk down those stairs of Tramp every night and say "Showtime!"

"Covid-19 will still be circulating and with more people mixing indoors, sadly some increases are possible."

"For the first time we will have Covid-19 and flu co-circulating."

"We need to take this seriously and defend ourselves and the NHS by getting the annual flu jab and the Covid-19 booster when called."

"It seemed to me almost that my father had got to where he was by climbing upon my infant shoulders, that he had filched from me my good name and had left me with the empty fame of being his son," he wrote.

Professor Jonathan Van-Tam, England's Deputy Chief Medical Officer, said: "Not many people got flu last year because of Covid-19 restrictions, so there isn't as much natural immunity in our communities as usual."

"We will see flu circulate this winter; it might be higher than usual and that makes it a significant public health concern."

The first collection of Winnie-the-Pooh stories was published in 1926, with the House at Pooh Corner following two years later. Christopher Milne, who died in 1996, later claimed his father had exploited his childhood.

Beware of social media, Emma told

■ Gauff warns fellow teen tennis star

EMMA RADUCANU has been warned by American teenager Coco Gauff to be wary of social media following the Briton's maiden Grand Slam triumph at the US Open last month.

Raducanu, who became the first qualifier to win a major tournament, has since gained thousands of new followers on social media, setting up an account on Chinese microblogging site Weibo to keep in touch with fans in that country.

Gauff, who shot to fame as a 15-year-old when she reached the fourth round at Wimbledon in 2019, urged 18-year-old Raducanu to take time away from her phone.

'time limit'

"It is exciting when you get all the retweets, all the follows and all of that, but it can be a bit overwhelming, at least in my experience. That's probably what I wish I would've known, not to focus on social media," said Gauff, now 17.

"I put a time limit on my phone because I thought I was spending too much time on it. From 8.30am to 9.30pm I have limited access to apps."

Raducanu returned to action this week at the Indian Wells Masters in California after splitting with coach Andrew Richardson. She is preparing for the tournament with former British No.1 Jeremy Bates, who coaches fellow Briton Katie Boulter, but it emerged this week that the arrangement is purely temporary and the new queen of tennis does not expect to appoint a permanent coach before the end of the year.

Like Raducanu, Andy Murray is preparing for the BNP Paribas Open in Indian Wells. The 34-year-old says he does not feel bad taking wild cards away from younger players given all he achieved in tennis before missing time due to hip surgeries. Critics suggest wild cards are better suited to up-and-coming players but Murray, a three-time Grand Slam champion and former world No.1, who had hip surgery in 2018 and 2019, feels otherwise.

"After what I've gone through the past three, four years and what I've achieved for the game beforehand, I don't feel like I need to justify why I should receive wild cards," said Murray.

Among the other wild-card recipients for the hard-court event are Raducanu and 38-year-old Belgian Kim Clijsters, a former women's world No.1 and four-time Grand Slam winner.

Murray, who is far from the tournament-winning form he enjoyed during the mid-2010s, has fallen to 121st in the world rankings. The two-time Olympic champion said he is grateful to have the opportunity to compete.

"I'd rather get in by right, but then I could also argue that for three years I was out injured when I would have rightfully been entered into all of these tournaments," said Murray. "I would have been ranked at the top of the game and would have been getting into all of these tournaments so other players would have had the opportunity to take that spot for the past three seasons."

Murray: I'm an idiot!

■ Scottish star has wedding ring stolen before Indian Wells campaign

Andy Murray is officially in the California desert and although he hasn't played a single match at the Indian Wells Tennis Garden, he's taken a massive loss. On Wednesday night, the three-time major champion's wedding ring was stolen along with a pair of tennis shoes at his hotel.

Following a very hot and sweaty practice session, Murray decided to not take his smelly shoes into his hotel room. With no patio, he opted to leave his shoes underneath his car outside to allow his kicks to air out over night. What seemed like a great idea, quickly turned into one of the worst.

When he returned to the car in the morning, he noticed his shoes were gone along with something of much more importance - his wedding ring. "Where's your wedding ring?" and I was like: 'Oh no.' I tie my wedding ring to my tennis shoes when I'm playing because I can't play with it on my hand, so yeah, my wedding ring's been stolen as well," Murray said.

In his most recent

Instagram post, he admitted he was an "idiot" and is wondering what the reward should be for getting it back. Fans quickly took to the comment section giving a few ideas, which consisted of: tournament tickets, more shoes, a signed racquet, and a match with Murray himself.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. Brits in LA

Thunder, lightning ...and ruby slippers too!

Holy smokes Batman - Libra season is here and all hell is breaking loose!

Firstly October is notorious for raging fires, but instead on the 4th of October the heavens opened up and rain did pour all over LA, with freak thunder and lightning. I managed to get a picture of the lightning striking the radio tower over the Hollywood sign. Luckily for us it didn't last too long, however it was rather dramatic and a great memorable way to spend my birthday.

The Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences (AMPAS) museum opened its doors on September 30th and it doesn't disappoint. It is conveniently situated next door to LACMA on museum row at Wilshire and Fairfax.

At the moment tickets are $25 each and with COVID you have to book a particular time slot. Pro tip: avoid the 5pm slot as the museum closes at 6pm and gives you hardly enough time to even visit the gift shop.

From the website: "The Academy Museum of Motion Pictures is the world's premier institution dedicated to the art and science of movies. Global in outlook and grounded in the unparalleled collections and expertise of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the Academy Museum will offer unparalleled exhibitions and programs illuminating the fascinating world of cinema. They will be immersive and dynamic and will tell the many stories of the movies - their art, technology, artists, history, and social impact - through a variety of diverse and engaging voices. The Academy Museum will tell complete stories of moviemaking - celebratory, educational, and sometimes critical or uncomfortable."

For me some of the highlights were the Wizard of Oz room, where you get to see Dorothy's famous ruby slippers and the exhibit of one of my favorite directors Pedro Almadador. Also, in a little homage to Mank (the film I was lucky enough to star in last year) there is the original Rosebud sled from Citizen Kane. And to top it all off there is even a room full of Oscars - if you haven't gotten to see one in real life yet.

It was so fabulous to be able to hear LIVE MUSIC again at the Hollywood Bowl. 1980s icons Hall and Oates (with London legends Squeeze in support) and 1990s legend Alanis Morissette could all be heard at this fabulous venue this week. I loved the Alanis show and for me to hear the entire amphitheater singing along too was ironic AND iconic. She's still incredible.

Speaking of live music, a little bird told me about the fabulous gypsy jazz outfit Hot Club, performing classic tunes from the 1930s-50s every Monday night at 9pm at the Cinema Bar, a fabulous dive bar on Sepulveda Boulevard in Culver City. They play two sets with no cover and the drinks are cheap! So if the music of Django Reinhardt is your thing, go check them out.

SOMETIMES WE GET WEATHER: Lightning striking the Hollywood Hills on Monday

Of course we are coming into winter and with Covid Delta variant raging on, we all still must keep vigilant and keep our wits about us. There seems to be an increase in breakthrough cases of those fully vaccinated. So keep sharp and keep washing those hands and wearing the masks indoors.

Lots of love to you all, and hope to see you soon. Craig

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your boss Mars is getting ready to move forward opposite you. The windows of opportunities will open wider. Although nothing will be a slam dunk until mid-October, you should be at least planning.

TAURUS: For most folks having being somewhat isolated has been a problem and while you have had your moments of frustration you got over it. However, currently you should be preparing for action stations coming soon.

GEMINI: The best way for you busy people is to really look at how many times you got through difficult situations. So do not put off anything that needs action now. Your boss Mercury is going on a slow track this week and it's best to be prepared.

CANCER: You should be getting plans organized for the early part of the week ahead. Just don't be worried if life is still on hold for you. Mercury starts backtracking soon and will bring some completion of your plans.

LEO: You should know by now in this present environment that the greatest gift you can give to others (as well as yourself) is patience. You will be buzzing around like a busy bee and making some good space in your life for new beginnings soon.

VIRGO: So just when you are ready to get going in life again along comes your boss Mercury slowly swimming backwards. There's not much you can achieve until the middle of October. This is a universal happening and you are not alone.

LIBRA: Trying to get moving through a pile of mud is the general atmosphere out there recently. Well, get on your working cap and dig yourself out. Change starts slowly, beginning early next week. Happy Birthday!

SCORPIO: You should be working on a health and fitness plan currently. Your boss is coming soon for a visit and will assist you this month ahead. He can greatly assist you if you stick to your plan to get to your goals. Moves are coming.

SAGITTARIUS: Be sure you don't speak out in a combative way over a tense situation these next few days. It's not a bad situation, however since others are trying to control things it's best to keep silent. You will get to speak your word later next week.

CAPRICORN: Some easing up of the recent family or personal situation is happening or soon will be. Better to keep out of it for now. Pluto is going forward next week and that brings better energy for you.

AQUARIUS: The current times are reasonable good for you due to your boss Uranus in solid earthy Taurus. However some days you could feel like you are on a roller coaster. You are getting ready for a move of sorts soon.

PISCES: You are getting ready to socialize and it's not surprising because of the force of the recent full moon in your sign. Get ready for positive action heading your way very soon.

Cash-strapped Barca mull Sterling bid

RAHEEM STERLING is being targeted by Barcelona for a loan move in January.

Manchester City's England winger, 26, has started just two of the club's seven Premier League fixtures this season after falling down the pecking order at the Etihad.

Sterling lost his place towards the end of last season before being the inspiration behind England's surge to the European Championship final in July. But that made little impact on his standing under City manager Pep Guardiola.

He is understood to have been offered to fielded him for a full 90 minutes in the league just once so far this season.

Riyad Mahrez, Phil Foden and now £100million summer signing Jack Grealish all appear to be ahead of him, fuelling speculation that he could yet quit the club.

While Barcelona are suffering from a financial crisis, the Spanish giants of 2017 despite leading Watford to promotion five months ago.

Ranieri, whose first game in charge with be at home against Liverpool after the international break, will be joined at Watford by assistant coaches Paolo Benetti and Carlo Cornacchia and fitness coach Carlo Spignoli.

Watford said in a statement: "Watford are delighted to confirm the appointment of Claudio Ranieri as the club's new head coach, on a two-year contract. The Italian arrives at Vicarage Road boasting a wealth of experience in charge of some of Europe's biggest clubs, with Premier League, Coppa Italia and Copa del Rey titles among his managerial highlights."

Ranieri last worked in England during the 2018-19 season, when he took over at Fulham in November but won only three of his 17 games before being sacked after just 106 days in charge and replaced by Scott Parker.

His previous spell at Leicester was far more successful, famously leading them to the Premier League title in 2015-16 before being shown the door to the relegation zone.

Ranieri also managed

Chelsea to second place in his first post in England between 2000 and 2004.

Muñoz led Watford to second place in the Championship last season but that was not enough to save him beyond the second international break of this campaign, a statement at the weekend saying that "recent performances strongly indicate a negative trend at a time when team cohesion should be visibly improving".

The goalkeeper Ben Foster admitted after the defeat at Leeds that the performance was "concerning". He said: "It was the whole game that went wrong, we weren't at the races, we knew what Leeds were about. We knew they'd be pressing us all the time, high tempo and we spoke about it all week in training."

"We got to the match and we didn't do a single thing we wanted to do which was concerning. I know the goal maybe should've stood but that would've been papering over the cracks because we didn't deserve to get anything from the game."

The last man to survive two years as Watford manager was Malky Mackay between June 2009 and June 2011. Since then Watford have had 15 permanent managers.

Premier League matches in the Middle East.

But sources said that an agreement between the Premier League and the consortium was reached prior to news emerging on Wednesday that the piracy dispute had been resolved.

The Saudi Arabian state has been accused of human rights abuses, but with the majority owner PIF deemed a separate entity, that, and any piracy issues, were no longer an impediment to the takeover, in the Premier League's view.

Western intelligence agencies believe the crown prince ordered the murder of journalist Jamal Khashoggi in 2018 - which he denies.

PCP Capital chief executive Amanda Staveley will take a seat on Newcastle's board, while Yasir Al-Rumayyan, the governor of PIF, will act as the club's non-executive chairman.

Staveley told the BBC that PCP Capital took concerns over Saudi Arabia's human rights record "very seriously" but reiterated that their partner "is not that Saudi state, it's PIF".

When asked if this was a case of 'sportswashing' by Saudi Arabia, she said: "No, not at all, this is very much about the PIF's investment into a fantastic football team and we look forward to growing the club."

Sports Direct chief executive Ashley bought Newcastle for £134m in May 2007.

He first put the club up for sale in September 2008 amid a series of protests from fans following the resignation of popular manager Kevin Keegan.

The club are 19th and winless after seven games this season, with boss Steve Bruce under pressure - a Newcastle United Supporters' Trust (NUST) survey said this week 94% of fans want Bruce to leave.

Tottenham in City's bid to land Harry Kane during the summer, only for the north Londoners to dig their heels in.

Despite repeatedly talking up Sterling, Guardiola has only have freed up money on their wage bill with the transfer of Lionel Messi to Paris Saint-Germain and the loan move of Antoine Griezmann to Atletico Madrid.

It means salary is unlikely to be an issue, should Sterling be interested.

Sterling has less than two years remaining on his current deal, with no planned talks to extend it on the horizon.

OIL'S WELL FOR TOON TAKEOVER

■ Saudi Arabian £305m bid for Newcastle approved
 ■ Deal ends Mike Ashley's controversial tenure

A Saudi Arabian-backed £305m takeover of Newcastle United has been completed.

The Premier League has approved the takeover after receiving "legally binding assurances" that the Saudi state would not control the club.

Instead the Public Investment Fund (PIF), which will provide 80% of funds for the deal, is seen as separate to the state.

This is despite the Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia, Mohammed bin Salman, being listed as chair of PIF.

The sale went through after the deal passed the Premier League owners' and directors' test.

The takeover brings to an end Mike Ashley's 14-year spell as Newcastle United owner.

Fans gathered outside Newcastle's St James' Park stadium on Thursday to celebrate the takeover being approved.

PIF have assets of £250bn, making Newcastle one of the richest clubs in the world.

Financier Amanda Staveley, who fronted the consortium, said the new owners are making a "long-term investment" to ensure Newcastle are "regularly competing for major trophies".

Newcastle's last major domestic trophy was the 1955 FA Cup.

A Premier League statement said: "The Premier League, Newcastle United Football Club and St James Holdings Limited have today settled the dispute over the takeover of the club by the consortium of PIF, PCP Capital Partners and RB Sports & Media.

"The legal disputes concerned which entities would own and/or have the ability to control the club following the takeover. All parties have agreed the settlement is necessary to end the long uncertainty for fans over the club's ownership.

"The Premier League has now received legally binding assurances that the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia will not control Newcastle United Football Club.

"All parties are pleased to have concluded this process which gives certainty and clarity to Newcastle United Football Club and their fans."

A deal was initially agreed in April 2020, but the buyers walked away four months later when the Premier League offered arbitration to settle a disagreement on who would control the club.

It is believed that a resolution came after Saudi Arabia settled an alleged piracy dispute with Qatar-based broadcaster beIN Sports, which own rights to show

Watford will be the Italian manager's fourth Premier League club

Claudio Ranieri appointed new Watford manager on two-year deal

Claudio Ranieri has been appointed as the new Watford manager on a two-year deal.

The 69-year-old replaces Xisco Muñoz, who was sacked after the 1-0 defeat by Leeds at the weekend, leaving the club 15th in the Premier League with two wins from seven games.

Watford will be Ranieri's fourth Premier League club. He has rejected approaches from several Italian clubs in the last few weeks, having left Sampdoria at the end of last season, and arrives at Watford with the team on seven points from their opening seven fixtures under Muñoz. The Spaniard became the sixth permanent appointment to leave the club since the summer
