Rumors swirl of new Royal Family rift as Queen sparks fresh tensions by choosing Andrew to escort her at Prince Philip's memorial service

NEW TENSIONS within the Royal Family are believed to have been sparked by the Queen's surprise decision to allow Prince Andrew to escort her by the arm at the Duke of Edinburgh's memorial at the weekend.

Charles and William were said to feel uneasy at Andrew being by his mother's side at the emotional tribute to Prince Philip in Westminster Abbey.

The prominent role put the Duke of York front and centre of the televised service, only weeks after he paid millions of pounds to Virginia Giuffre to settle out of court a sexual assault civil case in the US. The scandal saw him stripped of his remaining royal responsibilities.

Prince Charles and the Duke of Cambridge are among senior family members understood to have voiced concerns when the role was raised by Andrew. It went away for a while but then came back at the last minute, said sources, leaving the family horrified to see the monarch accompanied into the Abbey by her disgraced second son.

In the Order of Service, Andrew was to arrive with his daughters Princess Beatrice and Princess Eugenie and their husbands. But in a late change, he travelled in from Windsor with the Queen, changed cars at Buckingham Palace and then, after arriving with her in a state limousine, walked her into the Abbey via a side entrance.

Family members respected the Queen's call, knowing that she had made the tough decisions to suspend Andrew from all his royal duties in November 2019 and then to strip him of all responsibilities in January this year for the good of the monarchy.

public revulsion

But some felt that Andrew should not have put forward the idea.

One source said last night: "It's a shame that something that was meant to be a celebration of his father has had a shadow cast over it."

Buckingham Palace declined to discuss the decision but royal sources stressed that it had always been made clear that Andrew would be welcomed at family occasions. They said he had accompanied his mother since the memorial was a family event.

Another source explained away the moment as a practical step, as both the Queen and Andrew were being driven in from Windsor: "They were coming from the same place so it made sense."

Guests at the Abbey acknowledged it was right that Andrew should attend his father's memorial service, whatever the alleged scandals surrounding him, but some were astonished to see him given such a prominent role.

They viewed it as the clearest signal yet that the Queen is resolutely standing by him, despite the furore over his friendship with late billionaire paedophile Jeffrey Epstein and the resulting court case brought by Ms Giuffre. Andrew settled without admitting liability. Some critics described the scene as a slap in the face for the victims of sexual assault and sex trafficking.

Ms Giuffre, 38, was one of several young women who had claimed that they were trafficked by Epstein and forced to have sex with his wealthy friends.

Journalist and broadcaster Benjamin Butterworth wrote: "This shows just how little the Royals understand the public revulsion at Prince Andrew. It's a kick in the face for the victims of sex trafficking to see Andrew ride alongside the head of state like this." But several royal commentators suggested that the Queen was separating her love for her son at a family occasion on one hand – and the interests of the monarchy on the other hand.

Former BBC royal correspondent Jennie Bond said: "This was her way of quietly showing 'OK, he messed up really badly, this was a disgrace, but he is my son'."

Peter Hunt, another exroyal correspondent for the broadcaster, said it was a sign of the Queen "endorsing" Andrew, adding: "It didn't happen by chance. "He could have sat in the congregation with others, with his relatives, but they actively decided that he would have this role of supporting her.

"So she has chosen, in essence, to remind people that he hasn't admitted any wrongdoing, he's not guilty of anything, he's innocent."

Mr Hunt continued: "And she's very clearly stating that he has a role at family occasions.

"It's one thing to accept that he should attend his father's memorial service, it's quite another thing to then give him quite a cont. on page 3, col. 4

Britain seizes £38m Russian megayacht

■ Move "Sends a clear and stark warning to Putin and his cronies", say Transport Secretary

BRITAIN has for the first time seized a Russianowned superyacht as part of sanctions over the war in Ukraine.

Transport Secretary Grant Shapps said officials had "turned an icon of Russia's power and wealth into a clear and stark warning to Putin and his cronies".

The £38million Phi was boarded by officials in Canary Wharf, east London on Tuesday as it was due to depart after attending an awards ceremony.

The Department for Transport (DfT) worked with the National Crime Agency and Border Force to detain the 192ft vibrant blue vessel. Officials refused to name its owner but said that he is a Russian businessman and the yacht's ownership was "deliberately well hidden".

Phi – named after the mathematical concept – was built in the Netherlands and made its maiden voyage only last year.

Its luxury features include an "infinite wine cellar" and a freshwater swimming pool.

Mr Shapps said: "Detaining the Phi proves, yet again, that we can and will take the strongest possible action against those seeking to benefit from connections to Putin's regime. Now the ship is being held, it won't be going anywhere. Another indication that we will not stand by whilst Putin's cronies are allowed to sail around the world in these kinds of yachts and people in Ukraine are suffering."

He continued: "When you see what he's doing to Ukraine, when you see what he's doing to people's lives, it can't be right to have a yacht like this here in London able to just sail away. That is why we've impounded it, and denied it the ability to go anywhere.

"It's another indication of how seriously we take these matters."

Rishi Sunak likens himself to Will Smith in defence of his wife

■ 'At least I didn't get up and slap anybody', Chancellor says in interview after tough week

Rishi Sunak has compared himself to Will Smith as the chancellor defended his wife against criticism over financial links to Russia, saying: "At least I didn't get up and slap anybody."

Sunak has come under mounting pressure over accusations that his wife is collecting "blood money" in dividends from a family company that continues to operate in Russia despite the invasion of Ukraine.

Speaking to the BBC's Newscast after a challenging week in which his spring statement also met heavy criticism, he said it was "very upsetting and ... wrong for people to try and come at my wife".

Sunak drew parallels with Smith, who hit the comedian Chris Rock at the Oscars on Sunday after a joke about his wife, Jada Pinkett

F1 boss shot himself after cancer diagnosis, inquest hears

F1 boss Max Mosley (above) shot himself dead after hearing his cancer was terminal, an inquest heard this week. The president of motorsport's FIA governing body from 1993 to 2009 was found last May aged 81.

He had been told that he had just weeks to live, and his chronic bladder and bowel pain would lessen with palliative care but could not be cured.

Mosley's house-keeper in Chelsea, west London, rang 999 after fearing for his welfare. Police found Mr Mosley on his bed with "significant injuries consistent with a gunshot wound".

The son of wartime fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley held a firearms licence and kept four guns at home.

Long-time personal assistant Henry Alexander told Westminster Coroner's Court that he entered the house via the housekeeper's basement flat after 8am, following messages from Mr Mosley the night before telling him he planned to "end it all".

He had been out for a "final dinner" with his wife Jean.

Mr Alexander said he rang Mr Mosley but the call went to voicemail: "I went upstairs and there was a note attached to the door.

"He had an aggressive form of cancer and had been down. "He said he'd had enough." Mr Mosley was diagnosed with lymphoma in 2019 and Dr Rasha Al-Qurainy, a consultant in palliative care at the Central and North West London NHS Trust, was treating him.

She said the exracing driver had a poor prognosis as the B-cell lymphoma was inoperable, but she had not seen signs he might harm himself. "He was still seeking treatment," she said.

Dr Christopher McNamara, consultant haematologist, had been treating Mosley for lymphoma since October 2019.

He said there was a "shift" last April, from treating it aggressively to trying to improve "quality of life".

Mr Mosley had talked about suicide with him but not in detail. Dr McNamara added: "His quality of life was poor."

A qualified barrister, Mr Mosley called for stricter control of the media after the News of the World published footage of him at a sadomasochistic orgy with five prostitutes in 2008.

His parents Sir Oswald and Lady Diana married in 1936 in Germany, with Adolf Hitler a guest of honour.

Flushed with success: singing plumber signs Hollywood film deal

■ Kev Crane, 50, landed record deal after singing on the job

A Midlands plumber who landed a record contract after he was overheard singing at work has now signed a Hollywood movie deal for the rights to his story.

Kev Crane, a 50-yearold plumber from Leicestershire, was fitting a bathroom for a local record producer, Paul Conneally, in August last year when he started singing along to the radio.

Impressed by his vocals, Conneally, who owns New Reality Records in Loughborough, offered Crane a record deal and he went on to release his debut album.

Now Hollywood has got wind of his story, and Crane has signed a deal with the Los Angeles-based filmmaker Stacy Sherman and the screenwriter and producer Billy Ray, who wrote the 2013 blockbuster Captain Phillips.

'sleepless nights'

A script has already been written by the British sitcom and film writers Dick Clement and Ian La Frenais, who wrote for television series including The Likely Lads, Porridge and Auf Wiedersehen, Pet.

"It's like I'm watching this happen to someone else. Not for one minute did I think this could happen to me," Crane told the BBC.

"I've had some sleepless nights thinking about this whole story – the record deal and now the film. It's so exciting."

Conneally said: "Never in a million years did I think this would happen when I first heard Kev singing. We know the story won't follow our life stories exactly but will be based on it, and we can't wait to see exactly what they do with it."

The pair have been speculating about which

Kev Crane: discovered in the bathroom actors might play them in the movie. Conneally has suggested Simon Pegg and Nick Frost would be a good fit.

Other names that have been thrown in the ring include Jude Law, Colin Firth, Jason Statham and Ricky Gervais.

"We grew up watching shows like Porridge and Auf Wiedersehen, Pet, along with films like The Commitments, so it feels unreal to be now working with the creators of those and having Zoom calls with them in LA and to think it's our story that they're working on," said Crane, who lives with his wife, Karen, in the village of Ouorn.

Beckhams' London mansion burgled

David and Victoria Beckham's west London mansion has been burgled while the couple were inside with their 10-year-old daughter.

Their Kensington home was broken into between 20:30 and 23:30 GMT on 28 February.

The Met confirmed a burglary had been reported in the W11 area and said a number of items were reported stolen. No arrests have been made.

It said inquiries into the burglary continued.

The former Manchester United midfielder Beckham, who won 115 England caps, retired from football in 2013 but has since become an owner of Major League Soccer club Inter Miami CF. He also works as a Unicef ambassador.

Stung by criticism, Wills and Kate vow to reinvent official overseas visits

"The world has moved on after Black Lives matter and the pandemic and we have to reflect that."

THEY are the modern faces of the Royal Family...and now William and Kate will be charged with adding some spark to the Firm's royal tours.

Stung by criticism that their recent tour of Belize, Jamaica and The Bahamas smacked of colonialism, the Duke and Duchess plan to drag their international trips into the modern world.

A review of how the tours operate will see Kensington Palace officials rip up the rulebook and reinvent official visits abroad.

A senior royal source said: "The world has moved on after Black Lives Matter and the pandemic and we have to reflect that."

The couple also pledged to rethink their relationship with Commonwealth countries.

The shake-up comes after William and Kate returned home at the weekend from their controversial Caribbean trip.

Despite wowing crowds of locals and leaving beaming faces wherever they went, they also faced criticism for taking part in drumming with Rastafarians at Bob Marley's former home in Trench Town, Jamaica, and dancing with Garifuna minority members in Belize.

Detractors accused the couple of patronising their hosts – even though on both occasions it was locals who had pressed them to take part.

And the royals were accused of being "tone deaf" after shaking hands with crowds behind a wire mesh fence in Trench Town and standing in an open-top Land Rover at a military review. Critics claimed those images harked back to colonial days.

However, a royal source insisted the Land Rover had been the "number one" request of the Jamaican government as it had been used by the Queen in the 1960s. They said William repeatedly questioned whether it was a good idea but the Jamaicans had insisted.

William and Kate were also ambushed by Jamaican PM Andrew Holness, who promised to replace the Queen with a homegrown president.

And in Belize, three days after their departure, its government said it was starting planning for a transition to a republic.

Meanwhile, the Duke and Duchess faced land protests in Belize and criticism over William's refusal to apologise for slavery.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. # UK-USA travel....it's almost back to normal!

Over the past couple of years the topic of particularly travel. between the UK & USA, has continued to be one of the most discussed subjects, as well as being the cause of the most confusion, amongst our members. Not surprising considering that the list of rules are updated constantly and the entry requirements for America and Britain are rarely in alignment.

I have traveled several times throughout the pandemic and every single trip has been clouded with the added anxiety of what I need to do when it comes testing, to tracing, quarantines and vaccinations. Regular readers may recall my first experience where I was 'stuck' in England during the first lockdown. I was one of the lucky ones who managed to find a flight back to LA on an American Airlines flight that was only about 10% full. It was such a surreal journey as Heathrow was a ghost town and LAX was pretty much the same. My second trip was last October and whilst the airports were a lot busier, the flights were still only half full and none of the shops were open so it still felt a bit eerie. I don't get easily flustered but the rigmarole of getting all of the correct paperwork in order and booking tests before and after flying as-well as the constant worry of risking catching Covid really got to me.

Which I didn't fully realise until I recently embarked upon my third transatlantic journey. Compared to the other two so far it's been a breeze. Restrictions have really loosened up, possibly a bit too much for my liking... LAX was almost completely back to its old bustling self, although I found it disconcerting that only about 40% of people were wearing masks.

This time I flew with Virgin Atlantic, as they were by far the cheapest option (at least $400 less than their main competitors). They have temporarily moved its full operation, including check in, into the Tom Bradley International Terminal (TBIT), from its usual home in Terminal 2. Which is handy as it meant I got to finally visit the beloved British sandwich shop 'Pret A Manger'. Although sadly they were sold out of pretty much everything except cheese and tomato sandwiches; which I of course snapped up. Hopefully, their popularity means they will be opening more locations in LA.

Virgin currently operate twice daily services between Los Angeles and London Heathrow with plans to increase frequency to three times a day from April - in theory that should mean flights stay reasonably affordable in spite of the price of gas rising. I am hoping that United bring their direct flight back soon as that should make pricing even more competitive. The UK no longer

The UK no longer require anything other than a valid passport to enter the country. No proof of a negative test or vaccination is needed. EU and American passport holders still enter through the same customs lines as the Brits. Thankfully everything was running pretty smoothly when I arrived. I was through border control and with my bags and in my sisters car in under an hour.

CONDITIONS VARIABLE: last week many parts of the UK were warmer than southern Spain; this week Eileen was greeted with snow flurries

Returning to the US requires a bit more work as all air passengers, regardless of vaccination or citizenship status, must show a negative COVID-19 test or taken no more than one day before travel to the United States. Or if you've recently had Covid you must prepare and present documentation of recovery. Info on that can be found on the CDC website: cdc.gov/ coronavirus.

Everyone still has to fill out a passenger locator form. Proof of vaccination is also still required for noncitizens (over the age of 18) who are nonimmigrants this must be presented before boarding a flight to the United States however I believe this is not necessary for visitors entering by land, which is possible via either Mexico or Canada.

It seems it all changes on a weekly basis so make sure to check before you travel. Feel free to email us if you can't find the info you need and if you are on Facebook make sure to join our travel and immigration group via this link: facebook.com/groups/ BritsinLAImmigration.

Word of warning, if you are traveling to UK anytime soon I recommend you pack your thermals as it is currently snowing here!!

If you have any questions or comments drop us a line at info@ britsin.la as we always love hearing from you (it's nice to know someone is actually reading this!)

Till next time...

Cheers! Eileen

Having ly written off this in November by ng Rangnick on a short-term basis following the sacking of Ole Gunnar Solskjaer, United are unwilling to sabotage another campaign by waiting until January to get Enrique.

The idea of Enrique splitting his time between the Spain job and United for the first half of next season is understood to have been dismissed by the Old Trafford hierarch despite the 51-year-old being held in high regard.

Yet United still intend to keep to their stated process of speaking to all managerial candidates and will make contact Enrique with this week, with a view to concluding the search for a new manager within the coming weeks.

Egypt stumbled out in the group stage. Now he will watch from home this vear.

Luckily, he is of something part remarkable at Anfield. Liverpool are pursuing an unprecedented having Quadruple, pulled back Manchester City's league lead to such an extent that the Reds could be top before Pep Guardiola's men play on Saturday.

And as his team-mate Virgil van Dijk suggested on hearing of Egypt's exit, he has a powerful motivation now, to work in the Reds' favour.

Van Dijk said: "I am sure he will turn the disappointment into success for the rest of the season. We still have everything to play for so there are a lot of things still to achieve for him."

As Jurgen Klopp pointed out recently, no player in his squad has a greater appetite for success than Salah. The manager said: "He is the best sort of greedy, he is driven, for himself and for the team."

Now that drive will increase. Salah wants to be the world's best, and as he said in an interview with GQ, it is "weak mentalities" who lick wounds and feel persecuted.

In that interview, he said if he was struggling he would "face myself and feel where I am".

Salah's 20 goals this season already have him seven clear of the field in the race for the Premier League Golden Boot, and the Ballon d'Or could follow.

But if it is a legacy that he seeks, the next 10 days could set him on the road if he can help Liverpool to a first-leg advantage over Benfica in the Champions League and to victory in the clash of the titans at the Etihad, a game that will go a long way to deciding England's champions.

Get behind Harry, Southgate tells fans

"We are either all in it together or we are not," said the Three Lions manager after midweeks boos

GARETH SOUTHGATE has issued a timely call to arms to the England fans who booed Harry Maguire in an international performance this week.

"We are either all in it together or we are not," the Three Lions manager said.

The Manchester United defender has suffered a season to forget for his club team but the level of ridicule poured on his head by the home fans clearly shocked the England manager and most of Maguire's teammates.

Southgate is entitled to a sense of nervous excitement as he heads to Doha. Despite far too many false dawns since 1966, this England team he has built looks to among the firm favorites to reach the later stages of the competition.

Maguire's abuse has led to an important reminder of a theme Southgate used to mention a lot in his early days in charge of senior team affairs, first as a caretaker and then as a permanent leader.

"Don't think for one minute the other players are not looking at that and thinking, 'That could be me one day'," Southgate said after Manchester United defender Maguire suffered the indignity of being booed by his own fans before a ball had even been kicked in Tuesday's 3-0 friendly win over Ivory Coast.

"That has been one of the problems of playing for England.

"Players have thought, 'Do I want to go, because when it turns a bit difficult the crowd are going to turn on me?"

"That happened with John Barnes here. It happened with Ashley Cole a couple of times and with Raheem Sterling. Now it's Harry.

"They are all outstanding players, so how that behaviour is going to benefit anybody, I really don't understand. We are united as a team. We need a Harry Maguire playing well to have a chance of doing well because we are not going to win a World

Salah left bereft as World Cup dreams are ended by Senegal

Mohamed Salah was left bereft this week as his Egypt team, dogged by a talented Senegal team and passionate fans wielding laser pointers for 120 minutes, lost a penalty shootout Tuesday and failed to qualify for the 2022 men's World Cup.

In the second leg of a do-or-die playoff, Salah missed from the penalty spot after the match had finished 1-0 to Senegal to leave things tied 1-1 on aggregate. Minutes after Salah's miss, his Liverpool teammate, Sadio Mane, scored to send Senegal to soccer's biggest stage.

The scenes at the end of Egypt's World Cup play-off in Dakar were as horrifying as they were disturbing.

Mo Salah, bewildered, shocked, and disorientated, stumbled towards the tunnel amid a hail of missiles from the stands.
