

BULGERS FIGHT NEW VENABLES PAROLE BID

■ Latest appeal could see child killer freed by Christmas

JAMES Bulger's family are fighting the release of his killer Jon Venables after he was reportedly granted a new parole hearing.

Venables – recalled to jail twice for paedophile offences – was last refused parole in 2020.

But he is reportedly working on his presentation to the board and hopeful of success this time.

It could see him free by Christmas. Both James's mum Denise Fergus, 55, and dad Ralph Bulger, 56, are said to have written statements opposing his release.

A family friend said: "Denise and her family are aware of the parole hearing and have prepared for it.

"It is obviously a very worrying time for Denise. She is focused on making sure she sees justice done for James."

The family had hoped a change in the law to prevent repeat offenders being freed would have been enacted by now. But it is not expected until early next year.

James was just two years old when he was abducted from a shopping centre in Bootle, Merseyside, in February 1993. He was taken and murdered by Venables and his pal Robert Thompson, then both 10.

The toddler's body was found on a railway line in Walton after he had been beaten to death with bricks and a metal bar.

new identities

The pair were jailed for life but released on licence after serving just eight years. They were granted lifelong anonymity and new identities. But since his release on licence when he was 18, Venables has twice been recalled to jail for possessing images of children – the first time in 2010.

On the second occasion in 2017 he had more than 1,000 images and a "paedophile manual".

Sentencing him to three years, four months behind bars, Mr Justice Edis said: "The children depicted were often very young and vulnerable. There is discernible pain and distress suffered."

On the 30th anniversary of his murder earlier this year, James' brother Michael Fergus, 29, said the two killers "robbed me of my childhood".

Michael, who was born eight months after the outrage, said in February: "My brother's killers will never be forgiven.

"I would have loved to have looked up to him, asked him questions, talked to him about exams, cars, going to bars, normal stuff.

"But because of those two, I never got the chance."

Michael, a landscape gardener living in the North West, added that justice for James would mean "keeping Venables behind bars" to provide "peace of mind" for the family, particularly Denise.

The Ministry of Justice said: "Dangerous prisoners undergo a strict assessment by the Parole Board before any release."

Labour signals returns to Blairism as Starmer shuffle ditches hard left

SIR Keir Starmer has signalled a return to the Tony Blair playbook by promoting New Labour veterans in a pre-election shake-up of his top team.

With the prospect of an election in the New Year, the Labour leader is keen to project an image of moderation, which he believes is vital to regaining the keys to No. 10.

Many of the hard liners from the previous leadership of Jeremy Corbyn have been exiled or sidelined, with the notable exception of Angela Rayner, who is lined up to become Deputy PM should his party win power. Many observers consider the move to be the price Starmer had to pay to avoid an inter-party revolt.

surprise comeback

Despite tensions Rayner agreed to be moved from her Cabinet Office brief, replacing Lisa Nandy as Shadow Levelling Up Secretary.

Blairites including Liz Kendall and Pat McFadden were rewarded with big promotions as Sir Keir used a wide-ranging reshuffle to give moderates key positions this week.

On a day when the Labour leader welcomed the youngest MP, Keir Mather, 25, to the Commons there was a surprise comeback for former Cabinet minister Hilary Benn, 69, who has been made Shadow Northern Ireland

Announcing his reshuffle, Sir Keir said: "We now have the strongest possible players on the pitch for what is going to be a crucial part of the journey."

Met Police officer charged with six counts of rape

A serving Metropolitan Police officer has been charged with six counts of rape, one count of making threats to kill and a count of breaching a non-molestation order.

PC Cliff Mitchell, 23, has been suspended from duty and will appear at Westminster Magistrates' Court later.

The Met said a referral had been made to the Independent Office for Police Conduct over the case.

The force said a member of the public saw a woman in distress on Tuesday.

She was found at about 13:50 BST in Hackbridge, Sutton, south-west London.

An investigation was launched and the Met said it was established that its suspect was PC Mitchell, who was arrested. He was not on duty at the time.

Deputy Assistant Commissioner Stuart Cundy said: "These are horrific allegations and the victim is being supported by specially trained officers.

Red Phone Boxes: social media icons

The days of queuing to use a phone box would appear to be SO last century in today's social media age.

But, as they approach their centenary, the iconic red booths, designed by architect Sir Giles Gilbert Scott in 1924, are constantly engaged as eager tourists line up to create a special memory of their London holiday.

Tourists eager to post on Instagram and other social media sites are happy to wait their turn Telecoms giant BT believes around 3,000 traditional red kiosks are left across the UK, among 20,000 remaining working payphones.

Hackney Diamonds: Stones confirm first post-Charlie Watts album in classic fashion

■ First collection of original material since 2005, released on October 20, will feature 12 new tracks

The Rolling Stones have unveiled their first album of original material since 2005, and the first since the death of drummer Charlie Watts.

Hackney Diamonds will feature 12 tracks and be released on 20 October, preceded by lead single Angry.

Keith Richards, Ronnie Wood and Sir Mick Jagger announced the album on Wednesday at an event in Hackney.

Richards said: "Ever since Charlie's gone, it's been different, he's number four. Of course he's missed."

But, he added, the new album will feature Steve Jordan in Watts' place, a drummer Richards said the band knew from "way back" and who filled Watts' seat on tour this summer.

"It would have been a lot harder without Charlie's blessing," Richards said, explaining that Watts had previously told the band Jordan should replace him if he ever was not around to record.

'an absolute blast'

Watts died in 2021 aged 80, prior to the band's 60th anniversary tour, after suffering from throat cancer.

Sir Mick explained: "The album has 12 tracks.

Most are with Steve, but two are tracks we recorded in 2019 with Charlie."

The album is preceded by a new lead single, titled Angry, which also received its premiere at the event in Hackney.

Euphoria actress Sydney Sweeney, who was sitting in the audience at the launch event where she was briefly interviewed by host Jimmy Fallon, features in the music video for the song.

In a five-star review, the Telegraph's Neil McCormick called the song "an absolute blast," describing it as the band's best single in 40 years.

old school event

Discussing the recording of the album, Wood told Fallon: "We did it pretty quickly actually."

"There were lots of ideas floating around, we gathered them together just before Christmas last year and made a go of it."

The record will feature Lady Gaga, and other rumoured guest stars include Sir Paul McCartney and Stevie Wonder.

Asked about the gap since 2016's Blue & Lonesome, an album of blues covers, Sir Mick said: "We've been on the road most of the time, maybe we were a bit too lazy, but then we said, 'let's put a deadline'."

He said the band cut 23 tracks, which were mixed in February, before deciding on the final 12 to include on the album.

Sir Mick said the sound of the album was "angry", like the title of the lead single, but added there was an "eclectic" mixture of genres on the record, including love songs and ballads.

He continued: "I don't want to be big headed but we wouldn't have put this album out if we hadn't really liked it. We said we had to make a record we really love ourselves."

"We are quite pleased with it, we are not big headed about it, but we hope you all like it."

The scale of the press conference was reassuringly old school. An endless free bar, a rowdy phalanx of paparazzi, and broadcasters from all around the world - including Australia, Brazil, China, Germany, the US - elbowing each other for prime position.

Outside, pressed against the barriers, fans came from just as far afield - waving banners and clutching albums in the hope Sir Mick's brought a Sharpie.

ROCK OF AGES: Ronnie Wood, Sir Mick Jagger and Keith Richards announced the album on Wednesday at an event in Hackney.

As it ended, we heard one new song: The rowdy and rambunctious Angry, which finds Mick Jagger in the middle of a domestic fight, snarling like a Rottweiler, but hoping for reconciliation. If the relationship has to end, he says, "Let's go out in a blaze." For what could realistically be the Stones' final album, that's a solid manifesto.

Life sentence for monster who killed his teenage sister

A man who sexually assaulted and murdered his teenage sister in a "truly evil" attack was jailed for life on Monday.

Connor Gibson, 21, was told he must spend at least 22 years behind bars before he can be considered for parole. The foster family who cared for him and his sister Amber sobbed in court as an emotionless Gibson was led away to begin his sentence.

In a sickening woodland attack in 2021, Gibson removed the 16-year-old's clothes, beat and tried to rape her. He then strangled the terrified teenager.

He was convicted following a trial at the High Court in Glasgow in July. Sentencing Gibson at the High Court in Livingston, the judge, Lord Mulholland, said: "She was looking forward to seeing you the night she was murdered – she even posted a selfie of both of you on her Snapchat.

"The last person she saw alive was you, her brother, having strangled the life out of her after beating her up and trying to rape her.

"What you did was truly evil." He added: "Science told the world what you had done to Amber."

Stephen Corrigan, 45, who discovered Amber's body later, was jailed for nine years. He had been found guilty of attempting to defeat the ends of justice and breach of the peace by intimately touching and concealing the body.

Lord Mulholland said Gibson's attack in Hamilton, South Lanarkshire, was depraved. The Glasgow trial heard that Amber was reported missing on November 26, 2021.

Her body was discovered in Cadzow Glen, Hamilton, two days later.

The day before Gibson was arrested on December 1, he had posted a chilling Facebook tribute to Amber, saying: "You will fly high for the rest of time.

"We will all miss you. Especially me. I love you ginger midget."

Forensic experts told the trial Amber died as a result of compression of the neck. Tony Graham KC, representing Gibson, said in mitigation that he had endured a "narrative of emotional abuse and neglect" in his early years.

He added: "I make reference to these matters to reconcile how a brother can act in such a way."

Rhonda Anderson, for Corrigan, said he "continues to maintain his innocence". She said he suffered trauma in his early childhood, but had no major criminal history and was at a low risk of offending.

Lord Mulholland told Corrigan that any other person would have called the emergency services after discovering a body.

In a separate case, it emerged Amber was raped five months before her murder. Jamie Starrs, 20, attacked her while she was asleep or unconscious at a property in Bothwell, South Lanarkshire, in June 2021. Starrs, who was convicted following a trial, was jailed for 10 and a half years last month.

When Gibson was convicted, the siblings' former foster parents, Carol and Craig Niven, said Amber was "the most giving, loving, supportive and admirable person" and their life would "never be the same again".

They added: "She kept us on our toes and had the most amazing outlook on life considering the suffering she had experienced.

"When they arrived at our home – Amber aged three and Connor aged five – Connor stated 'We are safe now'.

Queen met her maker 'at peace and with no regrets'

QUEEN Elizabeth met her Maker at peace and with no regrets, according to the senior churchman who was with her at Balmoral just days before she passed away.

The Right Reverend Dr Iain Greenshields, then Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, spent a few days at the castle last summer as a guest of the late sovereign, as was traditional.

He said she was frail but found her mentally sharp and contemplative, preoccupied in particular with her faith and that of her father George VI.

Dr Greenshields said: "It would be normal for a Moderator to talk about matters of faith but I was very interested in how much she wanted to talk about her own.

'remarkable recall'

"It was her Platinum Jubilee year and so she was looking back. She had remarkable recall.

"She had no regrets and was very much at peace.

"She also mentioned her father George VI and the great influence his faith had on her."

Dr Greenshields said he was surprised that his visit had not been cancelled as he found the late Queen frailer than he expected.

She had wanted him to be there, however, and to deliver the sermon he was due to preach at Crathie Kirk, the church closest to Balmoral.

There were just six people at dinner during the three nights he was at Balmoral. They included Sophie Wessex (now the Duchess of Edinburgh), the Princess Royal and her husband Vice Admiral Sir Timothy Laurence, John Warren, the Queen's horse trainer and racing manager, and "She was in a very peaceful, private place. She was at peace."

the monarch.

'ready for the end'

Dr Greenshields said during those final meals the Queen spoke of her faith and continued to do so in private conversations with him.

Her love of Scotland, and Balmoral in particular, came through. He said: "At one point in our conversations she went to the window and said 'Who would not want to be here'. She was in a very peaceful, private place. She was at peace."

Dr Greenshields, who stepped down from his post as Moderator in May, delivered the homily at the Service of Thanksgiving for the life of Elizabeth II at St Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, on September 11 last year. He also attended her funeral.

He continued: "When she died, I thought of my mother and how she, too, had spoken about her faith just before she died. Normally she would never do so.

"So, I do wonder if people, even subconsciously, are getting ready for the end. It's also very common when people are dying to reflect on their parents, as the Queen did."

Harry and Meghan 'will not return to UK'

The Duchess of Sussex will not want to return to the UK and face curtsying to the Princess of Wales, a royal biographer has suggested.

Andrew Morton ruled out the idea of Meghan and Harry returning to the UK to live.

The writer, who worked with the late Princess of Wales on his 1992 book Diana: Her True Story, was asked about the idea by TV host Trevor Phillips.

Andrew responded: "What, and have Meghan

Markle curtsying to Kate Middleton? I don't think so.

"They've got their own lives in California."

Royal Highnesses bow and curtsy only to Majesties, so Meghan would only have to do so to Kate once she becomes Queen.

Harry arrived in the UK on Thursday with Meghan to attend the WellChild awards in London.

The Duke will then head to the Invictus Games – which he co-founded – in Germany, where Meghan will join him later.

Harry is not believed to be meeting up with his father, who is reported to have no time in his diary.

Neither will the Duke see brother William amid their continued troubled relationship, which he laid bare in his memoir Spare and Netflix documentary series earlier this year.

His visit fell on the eve of the first anniversary of Queen Elizabeth II's death and the King's accession.

Worldwide search for Macca's missing bass

A worldwide search is on to reunite Sir Paul McCartney with his much-missed "favourite" guitar that he played on Love Me Do, Twist And Shout and She Loves You.

Macca was an unknown teenager when he bought his first Hofner 500/1 electric bass for £30 in a shop in Hamburg in 1961.

Experts say, if found, the guitar which disappeared at the end of the 1960s could now be worth more than £10million.

Hofner has launched a quest to find the lost guitar after Sir Paul, 81, recently told the manufacturers how much he would like to be reunited with his beloved bass.

Nick Wass, a Hofner executive who is in contact with the legend's office, said: "When I met Paul we've talked about his first Hofner bass and where it could be. Paul said to me 'Hey, because you're from Hofner, couldn't you help find my bass?'

"That's what sparked this great hunt. Seeing what the lost bass means to Paul, I was determined to solve the mystery."

Hundreds of people have got in touch after the search was launched with the hashtag #tracingthebass on social media. It invites anyone with information about its whereabouts to come forward.

Sir Paul used the

TOMORROW I'LL MISS YOU: The Beatles perform at the Deauville Hotel, Miami Beach, for the Ed Sullivan Show in 1964, with Paul playing the Hofner bass guitar from 1961 to 1963, playing live and recording some of the band's biggest hits in Hamburg and at Liverpool's Cavern club before being put to one side.

The star picked it up again in January 1969, when The Beatles were in London recording the sessions for Let It Be. Then it disappeared.

Wass added: "For most people, they will remember it. It's the bass that made the Beatles."

Meanwhile, Sir Paul has revealed his wife Nancy's bedtime viewing is often "too exciting" for him.

He was asked by fans on his website what he did to relax while touring and Sir Paul, who rates Netflix hit Better Call Saul, replied: "Some of the things she'll watch, the plot will keep you up all night! So I try to read biographies."

Bee-ware: the hornets have landed

A RECORD influx of Asian hornets is threatening dire consequences for Britain's bee population, experts have warned.

The predators – which feed on native bees and wasps – are wreaking havoc in mainland Europe and are settling in the UK after nests were found in East Sussex, Kent, Devon and Dorset.

The warning comes as leading scientists release a global report into the threats caused by invasive species of animals and plants. They are said to be travelling around the world at "unprecedented rates" because of humans, threatening native plants and animals with extinction while damaging human health and livelihoods.

Their cost to the world economy is estimated to be £336 billion a year.

Animals, plants and other organisms that have been introduced to ecosystems by humans intentionally or otherwise are classified as alien species, but not all become invasive.

Experts have reported record sightings of Asian hornets in the UK. In Folkestone, Kent, beekeeper Simon Spratley said they ruined 10 of 17 beehives in quick succession.

Speaking to the BBC, Spratley said: "These insects are going to settle here and predate on all insects, especially the honey bee – their natural food source.

"They'll end up destroying or over-complicating beekeeping and reducing the biodiversity in the Kent area and wider England." Scientists say that climate change is due to make conditions more favourable for invasive species in the UK – which also include giant hogweed, rhododendrons and the grey squirrel.

The Intergovernmental Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services report calculates invasive species have caused or contributed to 60% of global extinctions.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: LISA BELL-SCHNYDER CASE NO. 23STPB09002

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of LISA BELL-SCHNYDER.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by KYLE SCHNYDER in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that KYLE SCHNYDER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 10/31/23 at 8:30AM in Dept. 11 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner: DAVID G. GRECO - SBN 299635, STEPHANIE K. Discovering Italy's overlooked gem...and that's no baloney

■ Nick Stark enjoys a few days in Bologna

VENICE, Florence, Rome, Naples...the list of wonderful Italian cities deserving a visit is long indeed but this past month I spent a sublime four days in a city often overlooked by travellers – Bologna.

Located in northern Italy less than 40 minutes by train from its more famous neighbor, Florence, Emilia-Romagna's lively historic capital offers visitors countless plazas both sprawling and intimate, a charming and compact historic center, medieval and Renaissance architecture, and (best of all in the summer), endless roads lined with arched colonnades to keep the sun at bay.

These porticoes – portici in Italian – cover more than 24 miles in the historic center of the city, the area contained within the 13th Century city walls. Built over almost 1000 years starting in the 11th century, they were an innovative solution to the problem of moving people around a rapidly-growing city, and where private builders were encroaching on public space - i.e. the roads. In the 13th century Bologna decreed that porticoes would be compulsory for all streets that carried any amount of traffic. Thus private builders were compelled to build the porticoes on their own land, which provided transportation for all at minimal public expense. While not used for anything but public walkways today (other than the encroachment of outdoor restaurant tables) the porticoes originally served for both people and cart traffic – back when carts were pulled by donkeys. But they also pulled double duty in housing the constant influx of students into the town. Founded in 1088, the University of Bologna is the oldest in Europe and its popularity among students from across Europe created accommodation issues which were resolved by building student rooms above the porticoes. Even today, the University hosts 82,000 students a year, which is reflected in a vibrant social scene for young people.

City of towers

Thanks to the porticoes, we found the heat in Bologna quite manageable, despite a record breaking heatwave that led one tour guide to describe neighboring Florence as 'like living in Dante's inferno'.

In medieval and renaissance times Bologna was known as 'the city of towers' due to the large number of the structures built by the local elite. They served the dual purposes of defence and an ostentatious show of wealth and power for the competing local families. Today many of these towers have not survived, but enough still do to make for some interesting climbs and exquisite views. The most famous are the 'due torri', the two towers just off the Piazza Maggiore, the smaller of which, the Garisenda, is leaning alarmingly and is therefore closed. But its bigger brother, the Asinelli, is open to visitors, and those willing to part with ten euros and climb 500 steps in the heat to the viewing platform at the top will be rewarded with panoramic views of the city.

We opted to stay at the charming and centrally located Albergo delle Drapperie, (Via Drapperie 5; albergodrapperie.com), located in the heart of the Quadrilatero – the old market area just off the Piazza Maggiore, the city's main square and home to several of its most famous monuments. It was a charming place on four floors, with modern outside the front door. The entrance was on the Via delle Draperie – a nod to the city's drapers who plied their trade here for centuries, and the street was bustling from dawn to dusk, with fruit and veg stands, a fish market, and the cheese and meat stores for which the region is rightfully famous. There are restaurants everywhere in this neighborhood, with seating spilling out into the street and as you would expect from the area, the menus were heavy on prepared meats and cheeses – think prosciutto, salami, guanciale, bresaola and of course, mortadella, which, we learned, became the world's first trademark protected food in 1661. And of course every eaterie served a version of bolognese sauce and its cousin the ragu, usually adorning some version of tortelloni, tortellini or spaghetti. It took no time for us to get into the daily habit of breakfasting with a cappucino and a croissant of some kind – either plain, or filled with pistachio or chocolate - having a light lunch and a fabulous dinner, often followed by ice cream at one of the city's countless gelato shops. And in between? Countless coffees, usually a macchiato after 11 and then several cups of espresso before dinner time. Caffeine jitters were never much of a problem – provided you finished the evening with a contemplative amaro in the main square. This iconic bitter Italian digestif became a favorite for us during our trip.

Serie A action

There were too many highlights from our trip to go into great detail here, but certainly one of the best was buying a ticket for pitchside seats at the Bologna FC stadium to watch the local team defeat Cagliari 2-1 in a thrilling, come-from-behind encounter. As a fan of the English Premier League, it was certainly fun to be seated just a few yards from the iconic Italian manager Claudio Ranieri, who now plies his trade with the Sardinian visitors. Buying tickets online was simple and the mile and a half walk under the porticoes to the stadium from the city center was leisurely and safe.

The city also boasts two Lamborghini museums, one dedicated to the cars, and the other to the company's legendary founder Ferruccio, and a Ducati museum for those more interested in two wheels than four. And don't miss the fascinating Anatomical Theatre of the Archiginnasio just off the Piazza Maggiore. This beautifully preserved room was once used for anatomy lectures and displays at the University's medical school, and still offers a fascinating glimpse of the medicine of the past.

We loved our time in Bologna and next time you're in Italy, try to make time for it. You'll be glad you did.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: You finally have time with your boss Mars in picky Virgo to get stuff completed so it's not the time to procrastinate. This week try to keep a low profile for a few days

TAURUS: For most folks being somewhat isolated can be a problem. However you can manage this are a doing okay. Just keep a handle on your finances, especially over the coming week.

GEMINI: Busy people do not always have time to do what they wish. This next few days will give you a respite after a hectic period. Mars the fire planet is moving into earthy Virgo, giving you the chance to bring some order to your life.

CANCER: With Mars in Virgo do not look at what your plans were and how they didn't come to fruition; rather, let go of the past and get ready to move into the next chapter.

LEO: By now you should realize that your patience is one of your greatest gifts... but expect it to be tested this coming week. Keep your temper and the reward will be worth it.

VIRGO: Mars in your house will force you to relinquish what no longer works for you, be it people or emotions or attachments. Once you release old energies you can enjoy your forthcoming birthday.

LIBRA: Trying to change others or get them to see things your way is a waste of time. Moving forward use your time more wisely, especially with Mars trying to rile you up. Don't look backwards!

SCORPIO: You should always trust your intuition, especially now that your fiery boss Mars is quite at ease in Virgo. Slowly but surely you are getting closer to your goals.

SAGITTARIUS: You may feel that there are people in your life who are frustrating. It's best to keep them at a distance and discard the need to change them. Stop worrying about things beyond your control.

CAPRICORN: Jupiter in your money house is gathering speed so financial matters are looking good. Family and relationship issues are finally getting easier to deal with... and a journey is in your near future.

AQUARIUS: Current times are uncertain but do not follow your usual pattern of being stubborn and set in your ways...this is not the time to be rigid. Get your current workload under control and then focus on relaxation.

PISCES: You could have some stress in your life or with those around you, which may make life chaotic. Mars in your opposite sign of Virgo is stirring things up, but remember nothing lasts forever and this too shall pass.

coming up."

Speaking for the first time since he was heavily criticised for undermining his previous LGBTQ+ support by playing in the repressive Saudi regime, Henderson explained the approach from Al-Ettifaq was the final straw.

"The reaction from the club again wasn't to say no," he said. "At that moment, I felt as though my value or the want for me to stay, with the manager and within the club, maybe it had shifted.

"I knew that time would come at some point. I didn't think it would be now. I had to accept that.

"If one of those people said to me, 'Now we want you to stay', then we wouldn't be having this conversation."

Henderson said the timing was particularly pressing with England close to qualifying for next summer's European Championship.

The 33-year-old has started six of the seven matches England have played since his return to fitness during the World Cup and feared sitting on the Liverpool bench could destroy his hopes of playing in the finals in Germany.

"I have to then think about what's next for me in my career," Henderson said.

"I'm at the latter stage of my career and I want to be happy playing football. I want to play. I don't want to be sitting on the bench and coming on for 10 minutes in games.

"And I knew that would have an effect on my chances of playing for England."

At least with Steven Gerrard as his new manager, Henderson feels he is supported.

"It's nice to feel wanted," he added. "I know Stevie really wanted me. I know the club really wanted me to go and they wanted us to try and build over the next few years."

Sancho risking exile after blasting United boss ten Hag

JADON SANCHO faces being exiled at Manchester United after his public criticism of manager Erik ten Hag.

Sancho took to social media to defend himself after Ten Hag said the winger was left out of United's squad for Sunday's 3-1 defeat at Arsenal because of poor training performances. Ten Hag is said to have taken a dim view of Sancho's public show of dissent and could decide to make the 23-year-old train away from the first-team squad.

United players not representing their country have been given time off during the international break, with Sancho – not in the England squad – due back in training next week.

Ten Hag is an arch disciplinarian who punishes players who undermine him or fall short of his high standards. Cristiano Ronaldo was shown the door at United after publicly declaring he had no respect for the Dutchman, while Marcus Rashford was dropped after turning up late for a team meeting.

Sancho is almost certain to face disciplinary action after he effectively accused Ten Hag of lying about the reason for his absence on Sunday.

The winger hit out at "people saying things that is completely untrue," adding: "I've been a scapegoat for a long time, which isn't fair!"

Everton's Gray seals Saudi switch

Demarai Gray has left Everton to join Saudi Pro League side Al-Ettifaq.

The fee has not been disclosed but reports suggest the 27-year-old Jamaica winger has moved for £8m on a four-year deal.

Gray was rebuked by Everton boss Sean Dyche after seeming to criticise his manager on social media after a switch to Fulham failed to go through.

Gray wrote in an Instagram post on Thursday: "The truth is I gave my all to this club on and off the pitch."

He added: "There has been a lot of speculation about my situation all summer. I was ready to play as much football as possible this season but it felt like this was not going to happen."

Dyche responded to Gray by saying that no moves are sanctioned without the club having the final say.

He also said that Gray "didn't want to train" and "didn't want to be here" when an initial move failed to transpire.

Gray had said that "it's so difficult to play for someone who don't show you respect as a person".

Gray did not play for Everton this season and had also been linked with a move to Turkish side Besiktas before completing the switch to Saudi Arabia, where the transfer window closes on Thursday.

He scored nine goals in 67 Premier League appearances after arriving at Goodison in 2021.

Al-Ettifaq are managed by former Liverpool captain Steven Gerrard and have so far signed England midfielder Jordan Henderson, former Liverpool midfielder Georginio Wijnaldum, Scotland defender Jack Hendry and ex-Lyon striker Moussa Dembele.

Rugby: hit serial foulers hard, urges former Welsh star Popham

Former international Alex Popham has called on World Rugby to change their sanctions for those who consistently find themselves in front of a disciplinary body.

England captain Owen Farrell was recently suspended for four matches, ruling him out of the start of the Rugby World Cup.

It was Farrell's second ban this year and his third since 2020, where he missed five matches for an awful high shot on Charlie Atkinson.

Popham has been diagnosed with early-onset dementia and believes that there needs to be tougher punishments in today's game, otherwise the players' health will be put at risk.

"For Owen Farrell to only get a four-game ban with his history... I like him as a player and as a competitor but he hasn't learned from his previous bans," he told the Daily Express.

"Kids are watching that with their mums and dads thinking: 'well if he can get away with it so can I' so it's not a good look for rugby as a whole."

Popham wants the governing body to alter the laws which will allow independent disciplinary panels to dish out six-month suspensions for repeat offenders.

The ex-Wales back-row is also seeking change to how teams can use their bench, with him thinking along similar lines to former Ireland player Keith Wood.

"South Africa bring on seven huge mutants against tired players during games," he said. "I'm not having a go at South Africa – they are just playing within the rules – but I think substitutions should only be for injuries."

Another issue for rugby is the intense training sessions, which can lead to head injuries outside of the matches.

World Rugby guidelines limit contact training to 15 minutes per week,

POPHAM: diagnosed with early onset dementia

FARRELL: suspended for the start of the Rugby World Cup but they are not strictly enforced and teams can go over that number.

"The NFL brought this in 14 years ago and it is policed properly. Teams are fined if they go over that limit," said Popham.

"There are some teams that are doing an amazing job and are very strict on it but some teams aren't...."

Euro 2024 Qualifying: Who's doing what...

■ England and Scotland in pole position after early rounds; tough tests await Welsh and Northern Ireland

The first international break of the 2023-24 season brings with it the resumption of qualifying for next summer's European Championships.

Over six days, the continent's nations will be in action trying to strengthen their claim for a place in the finals in Germany.

This includes the home nations, with England and Scotland already in a very strong position in their groups.

However, some major countries have plenty of work to do to qualify.

Scotland are in magnificent shape in Group A, sitting way out in front of the rest with four wins out of four and a very healthy total of 12 points.

They have a big opportunity to add to that on Friday night (after press time) when they travel to Cyprus, who are bottom of the group without a point from three games. Steve Clarke's team have beaten them once already, winning 3-0 at Hampden Park in March.

Scotland will be mindful of the sides below them - Spain in particular - who have games in hand and the capacity to build some momentum with a couple of wins within a week.

The Scots have just one qualifier during this break, with their second match being the 150th anniversary game at Hampden Park against old rivals England.

Before that, Gareth Southgate's team travel to Poland to face Ukraine on Saturday for their sole qualifier of the break.

The Three Lions also top their group with a perfect record after four matches. A victory over the side that is second in the table this weekend will further strengthen their hand.

Wales have work to do if they are to reach next summer's finals. They have just four points after four games, leaving them well behind Group D leaders Turkey - who are on nine - and two points off second-placed Armenia, who have only played three times.

Armenia's game in hand is at leaders Turkey on Friday, meaning Wales will have a clearer picture by the time they play their one fixture of the break - at bottom-of-the-table Latvia on Monday. A win for Rob Page's side is a must.

Northern Ireland are struggling. Just three points so far from four Group H games means a six-point gap between themselves and the top two - Finland and Kazakhstan.

England's Gareth Southgate and Scotland's Steve Clarke have guided their countries to impressive starts in qualifying for next year's tournament

Victories in their two fixtures in this break feel essential, with a trip to Slovenia - a place above them in fourth on seven points - on Thursday followed by a home game with second-

placed Kazakhstan

The Republic of Ireland have just one win from their three games so far but remain in contention in a very tough Group B as they sit third, three points behind second-placed Greece.

Their two games this break will define their challenge, with an away fixture at group leaders and 2022 World Cup runners-up France on Thursday followed by a home game with another big hitter, the Netherlands, on Sunday.

Hendo: Anfield 'alarm bells' drove Saudi move

■ Lack of communication at Liverpool and concerns for England future forced me abroad, says Reds stalwart JORDAN HENDERSON claims he only made his controversial move to Saudi Arabia because he no longer felt wanted at Anfield.

The former Liverpool captain had lifted the Champions League and Premier League trophies during 12 years of dedicated service to the club.

But he says "alarm bells" started ringing when nobody at Anfield made any attempt to keep him this summer, even though he still had two years remaining on his contract.

Henderson's suspicions that his time at the club might soon be coming to an end were first raised by a meeting with his manager Jurgen Klopp that was to set the tone for the summer.

"It's not to say that they forced me out of the club or they were saying they wanted me to leave, but at no point did I feel wanted by the club to stay," the midfielder said.

"There were a few things that sent alarm bells ringing. I've got a very good relationship with Jurgen. He was very honest with me.

"I won't go into detail about the conversation because it's private, but it put me in a position where I knew that I wasn't going to be playing as much. I knew there were going to be new players coming in my position.

"And if I'm not playing, as anybody will know, especially the manager, that can be quite difficult for me.

"Especially when I've been at a club for so long, I've captained the team for so long. Especially when England's a big thing for me. You've got the Euros
