

FAREWELL, SIR MICHAEL

■ The Olivier award-winning actor, star of Harry Potter and The Singing Detective, dies aged 82
 ■ "One of the most brilliant, effortless actors I've ever had the privilege of working with..."

SIR MICHAEL GAMBON, whose extraordinary acting career took him from Laurence Olivier's National Theatre to screen roles in The Singing Detective and the Harry Potter films, has died at the age of 82.

A statement on behalf of his wife, Lady Gambon, and son, Fergus, issued by publicist Clair Dobbs on Thursday, said: "We are devastated to announce the loss of Sir Michael Gambon. Beloved husband and father, Michael died peacefully in hospital with his wife Anne and son Fergus at his bedside, following a bout of pneumonia. Michael was 82. We ask that you respect our privacy at this painful time and thank you for your messages of support and love."

In a statement Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe called Gambon "one of the most brilliant, effortless actors I've ever had the privilege of working with, but despite his immense talent, the thing I will remember most about him is how much fun he had doing his job.

"He was silly, irreverent and hilarious. He loved his job, but never seemed defined by it. He was an incredible story, and joke teller, and his habit of blurring the lines between fact and fiction when talking to journalists meant that he was also one of the most entertaining people with whom you could ever wish to do a press junket. I'm so sad to hear he has passed, but I am so grateful for the fact that I am one of the lucky people who got to work with him."

"trickster"

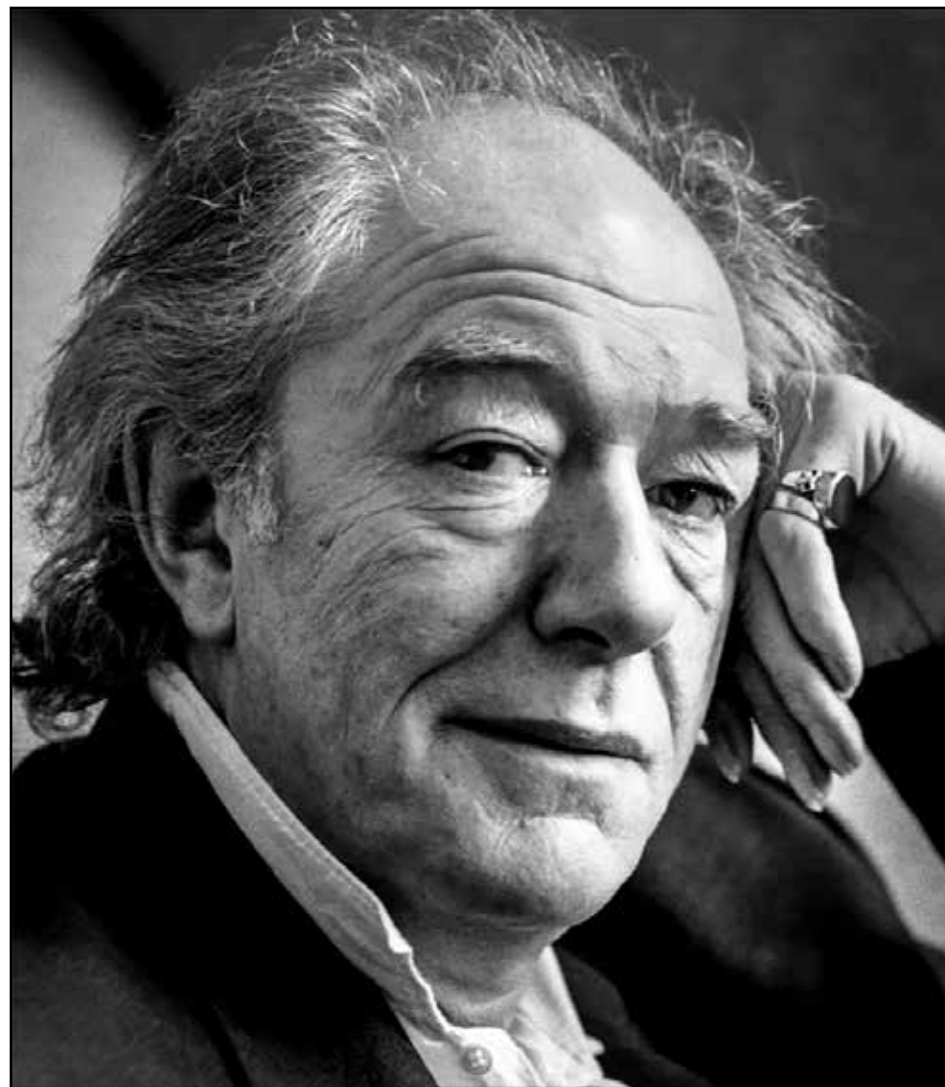

Gambon's Harry Potter co-star Fiona Shaw told BBC Radio 4 that he was "a brilliant, magnificent trickster" who "varied his career remarkably and never judged what he was doing, he just played". Dame Eileen Atkins told the BBC that "he just had to walk on stage and he commanded the whole audience immediately".

Memorably called "The Great Gambon" by Ralph Richardson, and admired by generations of fellow actors, he excelled in plays by Harold Pinter, Samuel Beckett and Alan Ayckbourn. "I owe an enormous amount to Michael," said Ayckbourn on Thursday. "He was a remarkable stage performer. It was a privilege to watch him at work on my stuff. You couldn't really term it acting – more an act of spontaneous combustion."

triple role

It was Ayckbourn who directed him in 1987 in Arthur Miller's A View from the Bridge, which won Gambon an Olivier award for his performance as the conflicted Brooklyn longshoreman Eddie Carbone. Gambon also starred in Ayckbourn's ambitious trilogy The Norman Conquests. Other key roles included the eponymous scientist

THE ROLE THAT MADE HIM: Gambon in Dennis Potter's classic TV drama, The Singing Detective

in Brecht's The Life of Galileo at the National Theatre in 1980, and as the restaurateur returning to visit a former lover in David Hare's Skylight, which earned him a Tony award nomination on Broadway in the mid-90s.

But although he was long a favorite of playwrights and his fellow actors, it was on TV where he achieved his greatest recognition - by becoming unrecognisable. In the groundbreaking BBC drama The Singing Detective, he is hidden under a cosmetic second skin of suppurating boils, pustules and lesions, symptoms of the extreme form of psoriatic arthritis, an autoimmune condition that writer Dennis Potter lived with – and gave to Gambon's character, mystery writer Philip Marlow.

Perfectly designed to showcase Gambon's versatility, it was a triple role. The actor also portrayed – his big face and frame and large dark

Trump suing ex-MI6 officer who alleged he was 'compromised' by Russian security service

■ Christopher Steele's dossier also alleged Putin 'supported and directed' plan to 'cultivate' Trump as a presidential candidate

Donald Trump is suing a former MI6 officer and the intelligence consultancy he founded, high court records in England show.

The former US president, who is mired in legal cases in his own country, is bringing a data protection claim against Orbis Business Intelligence and its founder Christopher Steele, who previously ran the secret intelligence service's Russia desk.

According to a court order published on Thursday, a two-day hearing for the legal action is set to start on 16 October

, the PA news agency reported.

No other details of the case have been made available and the current frontrunner for the 2024 Republican presidential nomination is not expected to attend.

criminally indicted

Steele was the author of the so-called Steele dossier, which included allegations that Trump had been "compromised" by Russian security service the FSB.

The dossier, which was leaked to the website BuzzFeed in 2017, also alleged that Vladimir Putin "supported and directed" an operation to "cultivate" Trump as a presidential candidate for "at least five years". Trump denied the claims.

Steele and Orbis Business Intelligence were previously sued for libel by Russian national Aleksey Gubarev over the publication of the dossier, claiming they were legally responsible for BuzzFeed publishing the dossier. However, in a judgment in October 2020, Mr Justice Warby dismissed the claim.

Trump has been criminally indicted four times, including in a

SEQUEL: a two day hearing on Trump's suit against Steele is set for October federal investigation into efforts to overturn the result of the 2020 presidential election which he lost to Joe Biden. Trump has pleaded not guilty in all four cases and has repeatedly cast litigation against him as part of a politically motivated, Democratic witch-hunt as he seeks a return to the White House.

Earlier this week the judge in his federal election meddling case, which is being brought by special counsel Jack Smith, said she will not recuse herself after the former president's requests that she step aside over claims of a perception of bias.

Judge Tanya Chutkan

said she has ruled his lawyers failed to present evidence of those claims. Last month, the judge presiding over the former US president's hush-money case, Juan Manuel Merchan, also declined to step aside after ruling that he definitely has the "ability to be fair and impartial".

HS2: Budget woes may leave the north out in the cold

■ Tories bitterly divided as Sunak hints at high speed rail U-turn due to ballooning costs

THE PROLONGED battle over the cost and scope of Britain's hugely ambitious high speed rail line took another turn this week when Rishi Sunak refused to back building the line in the north of England – despite warnings that axing the line would be a "gross act of vandalism".

The Prime Minister

is understood to be considering scrapping or delaying the leg of the so-called HS2 rail network from Birmingham to Manchester because of soaring costs.

He is expected to decide on the future of the project within days.

Mr Sunak this week would not comment on what he described as "speculation".

But he added: "What I would say is we're absolutely committed to levelling up and spreading opportunity around the country, not just in the North but in the Midlands, in all other regions of our fantastic country.

"And transport infrastructure is a key part of that, not just big rail projects but also local projects, improving local bus services, fixing pot holes – all of these things make a difference in people's day-to-day lives."

His remarks came amid a growing chorus of anger over the expected decision.

Former chancellor George Osborne and ex-deputy prime minister Lord Heseltine this week joined voices against axing the route.

'symbol of decline'

They warned in a letter to a newspaper that "governments are remembered for what they build and create – make this mistake and yours may only be known for what it cancelled and curtailed".

The pair warned that if the northern section was scrapped: "The remaining stump, little more than a shuttle service from Birmingham to a London suburb, would become an international symbol of our decline."

"The Government should examine why other European countries have been able to build high-speed rail more cheaply, and bring the same review of planning for big energy infrastructure to transport projects that it is promising. That's a sensible serious way forward, not the gross act of vandalism that cancelling HS2 would represent."

The letter followed days of speculation about the northern line.

Officials fear the project, first touted by Labour in 2009 but started under Boris Johnson, could cost £100 billion-plus – up from £30 billion when MPs first approved the scheme in 2010.

Greater Manchester mayor Andy Burnham has said that the possible move to scrap the HS2 link between Birmingham and Manchester would reaffirm that northerners are always treated like "second-class citizens" when it comes to transport.

Burnham added that if the government decided to axe that part of the route it would be "a recipe for a north-south divide to become a north-south chasm".

The politician also said that the move would "leave the north of England with Victorian infrastructure, probably for the rest of the century."

But the Tory top brass remains bitterly divided over the project due to its spiralling costs. Former Transport Secretary Grant Shapps told the BBC it would be "crazy" not to review the plans amid soaring costs.

Shapps said: "There's a balance of money that needs to be spent on health, education, defence and many other things.

"It is perfectly proper and responsible and a serious government looking at the long-term future makes these decisions even when sometimes they are not popular at that moment."

Veteran Scottish star David McCallum dead at 90

■ Actor enjoyed long career but was best known for his role in the iconic 1960s TV show, The Man from Uncle

David McCallum, the Scottish actor whose long career stretched from gritty British working-class dramas in the 1950s to the popular CBS crime series NCIS has died. He was 90.

Despite his many memorable performances in film and television, ranging from The Great Escape in 1963 to Colditz a decade later to Sapphire & Steel in the 1980s and most recently as Doctor "Ducky" Mallard on NCIS, a role he played for twenty seasons, McCallum will always be best known for his portrayal of Ilya Kuriakin, the debonair foil to Robert Vaughn's Napoleon Solo in the Man from Uncle TV series and movies. Although McCallum started the show very much in the shadow of his American on-screen partner, he quickly set records for the amount of fan mail he received at MGM studios, ensuring his rapid elevation to a full partner in a show which capitalized on the 1960s' craze for campy spy dramas.

Born in Glasgow in 1933, MaCallum's parents were classical musicians; his mother, Dorothy Dorman, a cellist, his father, David McCallum, a violinist and leader of the London Philharmonic Orchestra. McCallum Jr won a scholarship to University College school in Hampstead, north London, before being accepted at Rada, where he studied from 1949 to 1951.

Big break

Following a brief spell of National Service, McCallum worked as a stagehand before getting his first big break, playing a moody teenage thug in The Secret Place (1957) before playing Stanley Baker's brother in Hell

Drivers later the same year. In the cast, as a waitress, was 20-year-old Jill Ireland. McCallum and Ireland were to marry a few months before the film's release.

Roles followed in Violent Playground (1958), A Night to Remember (1958) and The Long and the Short and the Tall (1961) before his turn as 'Dispersal' in The Great Escape (1963) brought him fame in America, but cost him his wife, with Ireland falling for her husband's co-star, Charles Bronson.

McCallum enjoyed four years of TV fame with The Man From Uncle, as well as several successful movie spin-offs.

McCallum continued to make guest appearances on TV until his second long-running series, the BBC's Colditz (1972-74), in which he played Lt Simon Carter, a hot-headed RAF officer who is impatient to escape.

TV regular

Subsequently, McCallum starred in ATV's spooky sci-fi series Sapphire and Steel (1979-82) as the eponymous extra-dimensional detectives sent to Earth to monitor threats to the time-stream.

McCallum was seldom off television screens over the next three decades, making the occasional sortie into films. He also did some theatre in New York, where he and his wife had settled, notably Julius Caesar in a Central Park production (2000), playing the title role as "a senile old man, suffering from ideas of grandeur" according to the actor, and in 2003, McCallum began playing Dr Donald Mallard, chief medical examiner, in the TV series NCIS, following the cases of the fictional agents of the Naval Criminal Investigative Service. His research for the part included studying pathology and sitting in on autopsies. He stayed with the show for the rest of his life, appearing in all 20 seasons up until this year.

McCallum enjoyed worldwide fame as Ilya Kuriakin

McCallum is survived by Katherine, their son,

Peter, and daughter, Sophie, and by his sons Val and Paul from his first marriage; Jason, his third son with Ireland, died in 1989.

STABLE EMPLOYMENT: McCallum played Dr "Ducky" Mallard on NCIS for twenty seasons

'Hundreds of nurses attacked'

NHS staff were sexually assaulted by patients hundreds of times in the past year, a study shows.

Medics have also endured a torrent of filthy language and have had to have colleagues with them for protection.

In one case, a trainee nurse was cornered by a patient who grabbed her breasts and squeezed her against the wall.

Another incident saw a drug-crazed woman strip naked from the waist down in an emergency ward before molesting the male security guard.

In a small number of incidents, police were called to investigate.

A Freedom of Information Act poll of 139 major NHS trusts found 665 incidents of sexual assault or harassment against staff over 12 months.

Leona Cameron, of the Royal College of Nursing, said: "Employers need to create an environment where staff can report incidents and know they will be taken seriously."

Student Army ban 'absurd'

A BAN on the Army attending a university's freshers' fair was branded "absurd" by Defence Secretary Grant Shapps.

The student union at Bristol University snubbed its own Officers' Training Corps for Friday's annual event.

OTC units are operated by the Army and are military training units for students to join alongside their studies.

Earlier this year, the union voted to "disarm" Bristol University by banning some defence companies from operating on campus.

Mr Shapps said: "Reported bans on Officer Training Corps and defence companies attending university events like freshers' fairs or recruitment fairs are absurd and indefensible."

Armed cops give up their guns after colleague charged with murderMet Officers decry lack of support from senior ranks amid public outcry over death of Chris Kaba

THE EMBATTLED Metropolitan Police were facing a revolt in their own ranks this week when about a hundred firearms officers handed in their weapons following the arrest of one of their own.

A London police officer has been charged with murder for shooting rapper Chris Kaba, and there is now widespread unease among armed police that they could be next. There is also growing disquiet in their ranks about perceived lack of support from senior management. The force is currently grappling with the fallout from several high-profile cases of Met officers charged with murder, rape and witness intimidation.

A police spokesperson said a "number of officers" are now worried about using a gun on the job.

Kaba, 24, was killed last September when the officer – identified only as NX121 – opened fire on his car, shooting him in the head. An official inquiry suggests the officer opened fire while standing in front of Kaba's vehicle, which had been linked to a firearms offense the previous day. Kaba, who is black, was unarmed and police were traveling in an unmarked vehicle.

One source told the BBC that the number of officers handing back their permit to carry a gun is now about 100, prompting the British Home Secretary to order a review of armed policing practices in the UK.

London's police force employs more than 30,000 officers. About one in 10 carry a gun.

'many are worried'

A Metropolitan police spokesperson, speaking on Wednesday, refused to provide specific numbers of those giving up their right to a gun, but confirmed that a "number of officers" have done so and that the number "has increased over the past 48 hours."

Earlier on Monday, the Met said senior officers were having "ongoing discussions" to support staff to fully understand

Only about one in 10 of London's 30,000 policemen carry a gun those concerns.

"Many are worried about how the decision impacts on them, on their colleagues and on their families," a spokesperson said.

The number of officers abandoning their arms raised concerns about security with the Ministry of Defense temporarily ordering Army marksmen onto standby for emergency support in the event of a major terrorist incident.

"We are in ongoing discussions with those officers to support them and to fully understand the genuinely held concerns that they have,"

the police spokesperson said, explicitly pointing to the decision to charge one officer with murder. "They are concerned that it signals a shift in the way the decisions they take in the most challenging circumstances will be judged."

The last Metropolitan police officer to face such serious criminal charges was David Carrick, who was sentenced this year to life in prison after pleading guilty to numerous instances of rape carried out while he was a cop. In 2021, another officer was convicted of raping and murdering a woman he kidnapped after using his police identification to force her into the back of his car.

Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has backed a review ordered by the home secretary over the weekend to look into armed policing guidelines, which Downing Street said was expected to conclude by the end of the year.

A lengthy review of London policing, released earlier this year, found that the Metropolitan force is in need of systemic reform, decrying what it described as a culture of "institutional racism, misogyny and homophobia."

Brand's woes deepen as scope of probe widens

RUSSELL BRAND'S legal troubles seemed to worsen this week with a statement from the Metropolitan Police that they were conducting a major investigation into multiple alleged sex attacks by entertainer.

The comedian and actor, 48, is accused of numerous sex attacks, including rape, in the UK and US between 2003 to 2013.

The Metropolitan Police on Tuesday revealed they received a "number of allegations of sexual offences in London" as well as elsewhere in the country.

In a short statement, the force said all were non-recent and confirmed they had so far made no arrests. Det Supt Andy Furphy, of the Central Specialist Crime Command, said: "We continue to encourage anyone who believes they may have been a victim of a sexual offence, no matter how long ago it was, to contact us.

"We understand it can feel like a difficult step to take and I want to reassure [them] that we have a team of specialist officers available to advise and support."

Fresh allegations against Brand came after a woman contacted the police last week claiming she was the victim of a sexual assault in London's Soho in 2003.

She alerted the Met after a documentary on Brand by Channel 4's Dispatches.

It featured four women including one called "Alice" who claimed she was sexually assaulted during a three-month relationship with Brand when he was 31 and she was 16 and still at school.

Another woman alleges she was raped against a wall at Brand's Los Angeles home.

The star has strongly denied all allegations, which also include claims of controlling, abusive and predatory behaviour, and said all his relationships were consensual.

Since then several other women have made claims about him. Brand responded with a livestream video rant on the Rumble platform on Wednesday.

He complained about collusion between big tech and government, accusing "legacy media" of being in "lockstep" to "support a state agenda" and "silence independent media voices".

The father of two, whose wife Laura Gallacher, 36, is expecting their third child, added: "Obviously, it is difficult for me to be entirely objective given the events of the last week, but that's what we must try to do."

Famous Sycamore Gap tree at Hadrian's Wall found cut down

■ Local teen held in connection with destruction of landmark

A 16-year-old boy has been arrested on suspicion of causing criminal damage in connection with the felling of the 300-year-old Sycamore Gap tree in the north of England.

Officers arrested the teenager amid an outpouring of sadness over the destruction of the landmark.

The tree had been a feature of the site at Hadrian's Wall in Northumberland for hundreds of years. The boy is in custody and assisting officers with their inquiries, Northumbria police said on Thursday.

Locals and national park authorities said they were "struggling to see the logic" in the destruction of a sycamore which had long become "part of this area's DNA" and had gone through thousands of changes of seasons.

The tree, believed to have been about 300 years old, was made famous when it appeared in the 1991 film Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves, starring Kevin Costner. The Woodland Trust named the Sycamore Gap the English Tree of the Year in 2016. When night fell, the tree cast a striking silhouette against the horizon.

Photographs taken on Thursday morning show it appears to have been sawed at the base of the trunk with a chainsaw. The sycamore tree, estimated to be several hundred years old, had previously stood in a small picturesque valley in Northumberland national park in the north of England.

In a statement, Northumberland national park authority said it "can confirm that sadly, the famous tree at Sycamore Gap has come down overnight. We have reason to believe it has been deliberately felled. We are working with the relevant agencies and partners with an interest in this iconic north-east landmark and will issue more details once they are known."

"Sycamore Gap was voted English tree of the year in 2016 in the Woodland Trust's awards and is much-loved by people from across the world. Northumberland national park authority would like to ask the public not to visit the site at this time whilst we work with our partners to identify what has happened and to make the site safe."

Supt Kevin Waring of Northumbria police said on Thursday: "This is a world-renowned landmark and the events of today have caused significant shock, sadness and anger throughout the local community and beyond.

"An investigation was immediately launched following this vandalism, and this afternoon we have arrested one suspect in connection with our inquiries.

"Given our investigation remains at a very early stage, we are keeping an open mind. I am appealing to the public for information to assist us – if you have seen or heard anything suspicious that may be of interest to us, please let us know."

Police officers and park rangers at the scene said they believed the tree had been sliced skilfully with a sharp chainsaw by someone who knew what they were doing.

Locals said they heard nothing during the night due to high winds – and woke to find the tree split from its stump.

Gambon:

eyes more familiar in these sequences – Marlow's fictional creation, a 1940s gumshoe, plus that character's evening alter ego of a dance-club singer. The 1986 BBC One six-parter is regularly repeated and streamed – polling high in votes on television's greatest programmes.

Gambon's turn on the show won him a BAFTA and international fame, leading to numerous TV and film gigs, most notably The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover (1989), Sleepy Hollow (1989) and Gosford Park (2001). He also enjoyed critical acclaim for his TV portrayal of iconic French detective Maigret in the early 1990s.

What is less known about Gambon is that he was a skilled engineer and lover of planes (he held a pilot's licence) and cars (keeping a packed garage), he took part in the Star in a Reasonably Priced Car segment during a 2002 edition of Top Gear. With health and safety rules possibly less strict then, the actor took a bend on two wheels at great speed, impressing then presenters Jeremy Clarkson, James May and Richard Hammond so much that that they named the corner Gambon in his honour.

Reformed Zombies to play Glendale's Alex Theatre next week

■ Classic 1960 rockers tour in support of new album

2019 Rock & Roll Hall of Fame Inductees The Zombies are back with their long-awaited new album, Different Game, the follow-up to the iconic British psychedelic pop legends' 2015 aptly-named album, Still Got That Hunger.

The Zombies originally infiltrated the airwaves with sophisticated melodies, breathy vocals, choral back-up harmonies and jazzy keyboard riffs of their 1960's hit singles "She's Not There" and "Tell Her No". Ironically, the original lineup disbanded just prior to achieving their greatest success – the worldwide chart-topping single "Time of the Season," from their swan-song album Odessey and Oracle, ranked in the Top 100 of Rolling Stone's '500 Greatest Albums of All Time.'

To this day, generations of new bands have cited The Zombies' work as pop touchstones, and the band continues to be embraced by new generations of fans.

Following the break-up of the original band, founder Colin Blunstone went on to develop an acclaimed solo career, while keyboardist and composer Rod Argent rocked arenas in the 1970's with his eponymous band ARGENT. At the turn of the Millennium, Blunstone and Argent were inspired to resurrect The Zombies, which has led to several critically-acclaimed new albums and two decades of worldwide concert performances.

Tickets are now on sale for their only local appearance, at Glendale's Alex Theatre, on October 6th.

WELL TRAINED: HS Poo celebrate their second place potato

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It's time to make way for better days around the corner. Mars is in your opposite sign of Libra and nudging you to listen to your intuition as to what should be your direction now.

TAURUS: You have a lot going for you, however patience is required. A vexing life situation will change soon and things will finally start to progress. Venus moving slowly into Virgo will energize you.

GEMINI: Lately you are able to move forward in your life and do stuff at will. However, Mercury your boss is going forward now so be prepared for a faster pace.

CANCER: The forward action of Mercury in your work area now will likely bring up anything on hold for some weeks. Just do what you can and do not panic.

LEO: You are raking over the coals of past situations and some of it is unfinished business. Be prepared as it's likely to come up to complete. Do not fret - it's all going ok.

VIRGO: It's best to not worry about things over which you have no control. There are things you have wanted to do, so try to catch up and Mercury your boss in a better mood will assist you.

LIBRA: Now that Mars is on his way to you and along with the full moon in Aries, you can expect to see some plans come to fruition. Happy Birthday!

SCORPIO: Best way to handle an ongoing situation is to not overreact. You will soon see the other side of this if you can let it take its own path. Keep positive and stay emotionally regulated!

SAGITTARIUS: Make the most of the coming change of direction in your life. It's good to get rid of stuff (mentally or physically) for better days ahead. Your boss Jupiter in a backward stroll causes some of life to slow down.

CAPRICORN: Of late just when you thought it was time to move forward life stops and starts again for a while. However, Pluto just moved forward in your life and he will be ready for action next week.

AQUARIUS: You should be enjoying some downtime now. He can bring lots of new opportunities to enjoy life. However, in a current family situation it's best to take a step back.

PISCES: Your money area is currently lit up and ready to work for you. Saturn is digging deep into your life and can bring up some unfinished emotional feelings, as always it's best to deal with this head-on.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (916) 939-0772 or visit this internet website www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-00126. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (916) 939-0772, or visit this internet website www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-00126 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT if the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Further, if the foreclosure sale is set aside for any reason, the purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the deposit paid and shall have no further recourse or remedy against the Mortgagee, Mortgagee, or Trustee herein. If you have previously been discharged in bankruptcy, you may have been release of personal liability for this loan in which case this notice is intended to exercise the note holder's rights against the real property only. As required by law, you are notified that a negative credit reporting may be submitted to a credit report agency if you fail to fulfill the terms of your credit obligation. For Trustee's Sale dates, bid and postponement information, please call (916) 939-0772 or visit www.nationwideposting.com. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Robert Khorramian be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. extent some key pieces of his United puzzle.

Plenty of instances of controlled possession, which many supporters have been disappointed Ten Hag has failed to implement so far, were on display too.

Evidently, the gameplan was to create an overload on the United right with lofted cross-field passes from the left, which both Amrabat and Mount were able to execute.

Morocco international Amrabat in particular caught the eye as an inverted left-back. The on-loan Fiorentina man's early shot was poor, but he was excellent aside from that and demonstrated an excellent passing range, plenty of energy and an ability to spot danger when it arose.

Fellow full-back Diogo Dalot created the opener when he burst onto Facundo Pellistri's pass and pulled a low cross back for Garnacho to finish, before Mount's superb corner picked out Casemiro six minutes later and Anscombe's princely boot did the rest. The loss of Biggar could have derailed Wales but with Anscombe replacing him they did not miss a beat.

The 32-year-old landed seven place-kicks out of nine, a drop goal and created Wales' second try after 48 minutes for Nick Tompkins with a deft chip over the Australia defence.

Wales had stormed into the extent some key pieces of his United puzzle. Having been a spectator for most of the night, goalkeeper Andre Onana was called upon to make two excellent late saves, denying two close-range efforts from Palace striker Jean-Phillippe Mateta on both occasions.

To cap a disappointing night for the Eagles, who return to Old Trafford in the Premier League on Saturday, goalkeeper Dean Henderson only lasted 19 minutes on his debut against his former club as he was forced off with muscular pain after making a routine clearance.

Rugby World Cup: Dragons on fire

Wales ensured they were the first team assured of a World Cup quarter-final spot after crushing the Wallabies 40-6 at the weekend, leaving Eddie Jones' men on the brink of elimination.

Gareth Anscombe magnificently stepped into the breach left by Dan Biggar's departure with a shoulder injury to equal the Wales World Cup record of 23 points in a match and guide his side to a victory that made it three wins out of three in Pool C.

It was a sweet night for a player who missed the previous World Cup through injury and who has been blighted by misfortune since.

Qualification for the knockout stages was yet another feather in the cap of Warren Gatland, who only took over nine months ago for his second stint in charge with the domestic scene in chaos and the national side at a low ebb.

They outscored Australia by three tries to nil after completely dismantling them up front and Anscombe's princely boot did the rest. The loss of Biggar could have derailed Wales but with Anscombe replacing him they did not miss a beat.

lead inside two and a half minutes with a brilliant move finished by Gareth Davies.

And Jac Morgan, whose break had put him in, completed the rout two minutes from the end with a maul try.

Embarrassed by Wales at the scrum, Australia's ham-fisted attempts to play off scraps only caused them more grief with a succession of penalties to Wales.

Each successful kick by Anscombe was another thud of the hammer in their World Cup coffin. The Wallabies crumbled in front of their dejected supporters' eyes. In the end, the final whistle was a merciful release.

On Thursday England's quarter-finals status was also assured thanks to a Japan win over Samoa which boosted the Brave Blossoms' own knockout chances.

Japan saw off the Pacific Islanders 28-22 with tries from Pieter Labuschagne, Michael Leitch and Kazuki Himeno, along with strong kicking by Rikiya Matsuda.

Samoa, who had winger Ben Lam sent off, rallied late on but must now beat England for a chance of progressing.

But this result means England cannot be overtaken at the top of Pool D.

Samoa can no longer match their current total of 14 points, while Steve Borthwick's men have a superior head-to-head record over Japan and Argentina.

It removes the pressure from England's final pool game, against the Samoans on 7 October, and means Borthwick could rest players for that game before a likely quarter-final against Fiji.

As for Scotland, they face Romania this weekend hoping to stake their claim to face Ireland.

Head coach Gregor Townsend has made 13 alterations following Sunday's 45-17 win against Tonga, with only Kyle Steyn and Chris Harris retained.

Grant Gilchrist will captain the side in Lille while Hamish Watson makes his first appearance of the tournament, along with Luke Crosbie, Ben Healy and Javan Sebastian.

A bonus-point win would move Scotland four points behind group leaders Ireland before the two nations meet in Paris on 7 October.

Magpies snatch City win

Carabao Cup: Newcastle stun Pep's men to book fourth round date with Manchester United Newcastle produced a transformed second-half performance to knock Manchester City out of the Carabao Cup on Wednesday, with Aleksander Isak's strike sending last season's finalists into the fourth round, where they will face Manchester United.

The home side were almost entirely on the back foot during the first 45 minutes at St James' Park, with City dominating possession and territory and only denied an opener when Nick Pope's outstretched foot blocked Julian Alvarez's shot.

Newcastle boss Eddie Howe says his side are eager to "go one better" than last season's runners-up finish in the Carabao Cup after his side beat Manchester City to reach this campaign's fourth round.

Alexander Isak scored the winner for a largely second-string Newcastle, who came to life after the break to beat a much-changed City.

Newcastle, who lost to Manchester United in last year's final, made 10 changes from Sunday's 8-0 win at Sheffield United and barely got a kick in a first half dominated by the visitors.

But with Bruno Guimaraes and Anthony Gordon sent on at the break, the Magpies were transformed, with Isak slotting home following fine work from Joelinton.

"Pre-game, the run last year was in our thoughts," Howe told Sky Sports. "It was an inspiration to us and helped our season, albeit the final maybe affected our league results. We look back on it with real pride.

"We want to try and go one further if we can but there is a long way to go at this stage. We are still there fighting."

Disciplined but passive in the face of City's possessive dominance, Howe's men were fortunate to still be level after 45 minutes, with Julian Alvarez missing two decent chances.

Pep Guardiola opted for seven changes of his own, giving a first start to young midfielder Oscar Bobb among them, but the familiar patient probing was evident.

But the home side deserved their victory thanks to their second-half display, which was full of energy and endeavour and played largely in the face of a City side who could not react.

FLYING HIGH: Aleksander Isak's strike was enough for Eddie Howe's men

For Pep Guardiola's side, it was just a second loss inside 90 minutes in their last 38 games in all competitions.

Newcastle are now unbeaten in four games after a run of three straight losses, with their reward for Wednesday's win a fourth-round shot at revenge against the side that beat them in last year's final.

The only downside for Newcastle, with Paris St-Germain to come on Wednesday in the Champions League after Saturday's league visit of Burnley, was Isak departing the game on the hour with an injury.

Alejandro Garnacho opened the scoring at Old Trafford Tuesday night

United finally find their rhythm

Manchester United cruised into the Carabao Cup fourth round with a comfortable 3-0 victory over Crystal Palace in their all-Premier League encounter at Old Trafford on Tuesday night.

First-half goals from Alejandro Garnacho and Casemiro set United on their way to a place in the last 16, with the Brazilian providing the cross for Anthony Martial's clinical first-time effort 10 minutes after the restart.

Having faced various forms of chaos in the past few weeks, this was the kind of straightforward night United manager Erik ten Hag must have longed for as his side completed the biggest win of a season in which they have struggled so far.

With Mason Mount back in the starting XI and fellow summer signing Sofyan Amrabat making his first start - albeit at left-back - Ten Hag was at least able to integrate to an
