Longtime local expats can now register to vote in UK elections

IN A welcome development for Southern California expats, all British citizens living overseas will soon be able to register to vote in British general elections.

This week's rule change is expected to affect around two million British citizens living overseas. Previously, people who left the UK more than 15 years ago lost their right to vote.

However, this rule has now been abolished under the Election Act 2022.

Affected British citizens will now be able to register in the last constituency they were signed up in before leaving the UK.

Once on the electoral register they will also be able to donate to political parties and campaigners.

Children who left the UK before voting age, can register using the address of their parent or guardian.

The change follows a long campaign by World War Two veteran Harry Shindler, who left the UK to live in Italy around 40 years ago.

Speaking to the BBC in 2011, he said: "There was a war to bring the vote to the people of Europe. We won the war, but some of the people who took part in the war, me included, are not allowed to vote themselves."

In 2021, he welcomed the news that the government was changing the rules calling it an "important day for freedom".

However, he did not live long enough to see the rule come into force, dying in 2023 at the age of 101.

Jane Golding, co-chair of the campaign group British in Europe, said: 'Voting is a basic citizenship right regardless of where someone lives.'

"This is a historic change to the UK franchise after years of campaigning by ourselves and others, particularly long-term campaigner Harry Shindler, who sadly died before he could use his hard-won vote."

Prior to 2015, the number of overseas voters never rose above 35,000; however levels were boosted following a registration campaign leading up to the 2015 general election and increased interest ahead of the 2016 Brexit referendum.

At the last general election in 2019, more than 200,000 people were registered as overseas voters out of an estimated 1.2m who were eligible at the time.

The government has estimated that the number of people able to register after the rule change will increase from around 1m, to 3.2m-3.3m.

During debate of the Election Act in Parliament in 2022, Labour objected to the change, with shadow minister Alex Norris arguing that "wealthy

Cleverly moves to ban radical Islamist group

One of the most controversial Islamist groups in the UK, Hizb ut-Tahrir, is to be banned as a terrorist organisation, accused of praising the Hamas attacks.

Home Secretary James Cleverly said the group was "antisemitic" and "actively promotes and encourages terrorism".

The ban under UK terrorism laws comes after followers were accused of chanting "jihad" at a pro-Gaza rally.

It is an international organisation long active in the UK but it has always denied links to violence.

The banning order was laid before Parliament on Monday and came into force on Friday.

That means that anyone belonging to, inviting support for or displaying material which shows public support for the group will be breaking the law.

In a statement the group said it "completely refutes any idea that it is antisemitic or encourages terrorism" and would challenge the proposed ban "using all available legal means".

"By seeking to proscribe Hizb ut-Tahrir, Britain will join the likes of Putin's Russia, Sisi's Egypt and a host of other authoritarian states in silencing a voice for the restoration of an Islamic civilizational alternative for the Muslim world," the statement added.

Last October, Hizb ut-Tahrir followers organised a rally in support of Palestinians parallel to the much larger official pro-Gaza marches.

A video of the sparsely-attended rally on 21 October showed a man chanting "jihad" and Scotland Yard later said it would take no further action.

pro-Hamas celebrations

The word ordinarily means an inner struggle for justice, under traditional Islamic theology, but is also regularly used as a call for holy war by terrorist groups.

Announcing the banning order, Mr Cleverly said: "Hizb ut-Tahrir is an antisemitic organisation that actively promotes and encourages terrorism, including praising and celebrating the appalling 7 October attacks.

"Proscribing this terrorist group will ensure that anyone who belongs to and invites supporters for them will face consequences. It will curb Hizb ut-Tahrir's ability to operate as it currently does."

The most serious offences linked to banned organisations can result in up to 14 years in jail. Police can also seize any property associated with a group once it has been banned.

Hizb ut-Tahrir was founded in 1953 as an international political movement calling for a single Islamic government across the Muslim world. It has branches in at least 32 countries including the UK - and the banning order means that all of those are now banned.

Ministers and security officials have repeatedly considered banning the group in the UK in the past - and former prime minister Lord Cameron promised to do so in 2010.

However, lawyers had previously told the government that the organisation had not crossed the line of breaking terrorism laws.

The Home Office's change of mind came after former home secretary Suella Braverman asked for a review of the group's activities following the October rally.

The government says

James Cleverly said Hizb ut-Tahrir "actively promotes and encourages terrorism" that since the 7 October attacks, Hizb ut-Tahrir has described Hamas fighters as "heroes" on its central website - and such praise amounts to promoting and encouraging terrorism.

It has also been repeatedly accused of celebrating attacks against Israel and Jews more widely.

Shadow home secretary

Yvette Cooper supported the proposed ban.

She told the Commons: "It is right that the government has looked urgently at the evidence and intelligence information available to them about the threat posed by Hizb ut-Tahrir, and we welcome and support the decision to proscribe them."

Former prime minister Sir Tony Blair looked at banning the group after the 2005 London bombings - but officials concluded that it was not involved in terrorism.

Other countries that have banned the group include Germany, Egypt, Bangladesh, Pakistan and central Asian and Arab nations.

Bleak future for Stormont Assembly?

THE FUTURE of the Northern Ireland Assembly looked bleak this week after a bid to elect a new Speaker to the governing body failed.

The assembly's members returned to Stormont on Wednesday ahead of a deadline to restore devolved government and a general strike, which began the next day.

Around 170,000 people joined picket lines across Northern Ireland in a massive day of strike action.

On Wednesday, nominations to elect the UUP's Mike Nesbitt or the SDLP's Patsy McGlone of the SDLP to the role of Speaker failed to get the support of the DUP.

Therefore, Acting Speaker Alan Chambers said no further business could take place and the session was suspended.

The failure was condemned by Secretary of State Chris Heaton-Harris, who said: "It is disappointing that the Assembly was unable to elect a speaker and restore the Northern Ireland Executive today.

"The return of a locally elected, accountable and effective devolved government is the best way to govern Northern Ireland.

"However, in the absence of an Executive, the Government will proceed with a pragmatic and reasonable approach to support Northern Ireland."

The DUP is opposed to the Windsor Framework, the post-Brexit legal agreement between the European Union and the UK which adjusted the operation of the Northern Ireland Protocol. The Framework was announced on 27 February 2023, formally adopted by both parties on a month later.

But the DUP remains vehemently opposed and for more than a year it has been blocking the Stormont institutions in protest against post-Brexit trade barriers with Great Britain.

The party argues the arrangements undermine

Northern Ireland's place in the United Kingdom.

DUP leader Sir Jeffrey Donaldson has been under pressure from both Westminster and rival parties in Northern Ireland to give ground, but so far his party have stood firm.

Following this week's impasse, Sinn Fein's deputy leader questioned the DUP's motives.

Michelle O'Neill warned Wednesday's recall of Stormont could be the last sitting of the Assembly, adding: "Regrettably, the approach of the DUP leader is jeopardising vital public services, including health and education, with no clear explanation for stalling Executive formation.

"If Jeffrey Donaldson does not change his approach, then this sitting may well be the final one of this Assembly.

"I fear that the democratic institutions of the Good Friday Agreement are in freefall. While this is reprehensible, those are the hard facts before us."

Charles and Kate both hospitalized

■ King set for prostate surgery; Kate undergoes unspecified procedure on abdomen

King Charles III is set to attend hospital for treatment for an enlarged prostate.

Buckingham Palace said the King's condition is benign but he will undergo a "corrective procedure".

The 75 year old's public engagements will be postponed for a short period of recuperation, the Palace said.

The announcement comes shortly after it was revealed the Princess of Wales recently spent time in a London hospital after undergoing abdominal surgery.

It is unusual for medical updates about two senior royals to be released on the same day, but it is understood it was necessary because the King had to cancel engagements scheduled for Thursday.

diagnosis

He had been due to meet foreign dignitaries and cabinet members in Scotland on Thursday, but those meetings have been cancelled on medical grounds.

It is also thought the King was keen to share his diagnosis with the public to encourage other men who may be experiencing symptoms to get checked.

"In common with thousands of men each year, the King has sought treatment for an enlarged prostate," the statement said.

Benign prostate enlargement - which is non-cancerous - is common in men over 50 and is not usually a serious condition, according to the NHS website.

significant news

Around one in three men over the age of 50 will have some symptoms of an enlarged prostate, which is a gland that sits just below the bladder.

The Palace said the King was keen to share his diagnosis with the public to encourage other men who may be experiencing symptoms to get checked.

While it is not usually a serious threat to health, it can cause symptoms and problems, including difficulty passing urine or emptying the bladder.

While it is unclear what corrective procedure the King will undergo, there are a few ways of managing it including surgery, lasers and even a steam treatment.

The announcement from Buckingham Palace was the second significant piece of health news about senior royals to emerge on Wednesday. The Princess of Wales will spend up to two weeks in hospital recovering from abdominal surgery on Tuesday.

Her procedure was planned and successful, Kensington Palace said. Further details about her condition were not disclosed, but it is understood not to be cancer-related.

Details about the health of senior royals are rarely disclosed, so it is striking for two updates about two separate figures to be released on the same day.

Buckingham Palace does not routinely provide a commentary on health conditions and releases limited information on the occasions when it does provide public updates.

Horror as father and toddler are found dead

A SEASIDE town in Lincolnshire was left reeling by the tragic deaths of two year old Bronson Battersby and his 60-year-old father Kenneth, whose bodies were found inside a home in Skegness on Jan. 9.

It is thought that Kenneth died of a heart attack and his young son subsequently died of starvation and dehydration.

The toddler was found in his pyjamas next to father Kenneth, alongside their emaciated pet dog boxer Skylar who survived, after days of attempts to contact them by concerned social services.

The tragic discovery came a week after a social worker first raised an alarm about the pair to police after being unable to contact Kenneth at an arranged meeting on January 2.

Fujitsu boss 'sorry' for Post Office fiasco

■ Japanese IT giant pledges to compensate British sub-postmasters wrongly convicted due to software glitch

Fujitsu Europe's boss has admitted the firm has a "moral obligation" to contribute to compensation for sub-postmasters wrongly prosecuted as a result of its faulty IT software.

Paul Patterson said Fujitsu gave evidence to the Post Office that was used to prosecute innocent managers.

He added that the Post Office knew about "bugs and errors" in its Horizon accountancy software early on.

The global chief executive of Fujitsu, Takahito Tokita, also apologised.

Making his first public comments on the scandal at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, Mr Tokita said: "This is a big issue, which Fujitsu takes very seriously."

When asked if he would apologise, he added: "Yes, of course. Fujitsu has apologised for the impact on the postmasters' lives and their families."

Between 1999 and 2015, more than 900 sub-postmasters and postmistresses were prosecuted for theft and false accounting after money appeared to be missing from their branches, but the prosecutions were based on evidence from faulty Horizon software.

Some sub-postmasters wrongfully went to prison, many were financially ruined. Some have since died.

It has been described as the most widespread miscarriage of justice in British history, but to date only 93 convictions have been overturned and thousands of people are still waiting for compensation settlements more than 20 years on.

On Tuesday, Scotland's top law official apologised to victims.

Lord Advocate Dorothy Bain said the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service (COPFS), which has sole responsibility for prosecuting cases in Scotland, had been misled by the Post Office.

In England and Wales, the Post Office carried out most of the prosecutions itself.

Mr Tokita refused to confirm if the company would return any of the money it earned from the faulty Horizon system.

Jo Hamilton, a victim in the scandal, said trying to get compensation from the Post Office felt "like being treated like a criminal all over again"

Solicitor Neil Hudgell, who represents many of those wrongly convicted, said only three of his group of 77 sub-postmasters had received full and final compensation.

Mr Patterson apologised for Fujitsu's role in what he said was an "appalling miscarriage of justice", and admitted the company had been "involved from the very start".

Kenneth and Bronson on Boxing Day, days after Sarah last saw her son alive before Christmas.

But 60-year-old Kenneth is thought to have succumbed to a heart attack before New Year with his son tragically passing away days later.

The force said it has referred itself to the Independent Office for Police Conduct which will review its actions, while Lincolnshire County Council has also pledged a 'rapid review'.

Heartbroken family and friends have paid tribute to the pair who were only found when the social worker, who had contacted police twice in the space of a week with concerns about them, used the key of Kenneth's landlord to gain entry.

The Lincolnshire County Council said that a social worker had been in communication with the boy's father, Kenneth Battersby, on Dec. 27 to arrange for a home visit for Jan. 2.

When officials didn't receive a response on the day of the visit, the social worker — who was not legally permitted to force entry to the property — contacted police and made inquiries at other addresses where the child might have been. Two days later, the social worker made another visit to the property. Again, there was no reply, so they reached out to the police.

On Jan. 9, the property's landlord granted access to the social worker, which is when the discovery of their bodies was made.

The council said that no one else was living on the premises other than Kenneth and Bronson.

"This was a tragic incident, and we are supporting the family at this difficult time," their executive director for children's service said in a statement. "We are currently carrying out a review of the case alongside partner agencies to better understand the circumstances, and we await the results of the coroner's investigations as well."

Staring swan charms Telford locals

People in a Shropshire town are intrigued as to why a swan spends all day staring at its own reflection in a school window.

The bird has visited The Telford Park School every day for more than a year using a zebra crossing to get there.

After contacting a local wildlife group, school staff were told the swan was most likely widowed.

People say the reflection could be reminding the swan of its mate. However, one man has another theory.

John Stewart, from the Wychbold Swan Rescue in Worcestershire, believes the swan may assume its reflection is a rival bird encroaching on its territory.

Mr Stewart said: "We have calls sometimes that swans are pecking aggressively at wing mirrors because they think there's another swan in their territory, that it's an intruder."

The swan, nicknamed

Sally has visited The Telford Park School every day for more than a year.... using a zebra crossing to get there.

Sally by the locals, is well-known in the Stirchley suburb, where the school is located, and where it is seen waddling from the Mad Brooke pool to the school gates, before returning to home after spending the day outside the building.

Billy Goodall, the school business manager at The Telford Park School, said: "I believe there's a group of swans at the pool, so maybe its not being accepted in the group."

Mr Stewart seconded this theory, suggesting that a pair of swans could be taking over the territory and trying to drive their feathery friend away.

While the swan does spend the day on its own, Mr Stewart believes that it could find another mate.

"The time of the year is crucial. It could probably fly in and take another mate. Not all swans do this, but some do," he said.

"I have known exceptions to the rule where a swan flies in, kicks the partner out, and picks a new one. That is the extreme case."

Mr Goodall described the swan as "very tame", adding that the students were very respectful of the wild bird.

Addressing its diligent use of the zebra crossing, he joked: "It's clearly got good road awareness."

LIQUID ASSETS: Scotch Whisky nets UK £7.1bn

SCOTCH whisky brought £7.1billion into the UK economy in 2022, a report has revealed.

The Scotch Whisky Association said whisky's contribution to the economy in that year had increased by 29% since 2018.

The industry is worth £5.3billion to Scotland alone, equating to around 3% of Gross Value Added – its contribution to the economy. The drink amounted to 77% of Scotland's food and drink exports as well as 26% for the UK overall.

Mark Kent, SWA head, said the report "has again proven its economic significance to the UK". He added: "The past five years have been turbulent for our sector as we faced retaliatory tariffs in the United States, in addition to the global pandemic and the knock-on economic pressures.

"The Scotch whisky industry has remained resilient with capital investment directed towards fulfilling our collective sustainability ambitions, creating world-class visitor attractions and building more distilleries that will help boost jobs and growth.

"Ahead of the UK spring budget on March 6 and this year's general election, it is vital that the industry is supported by the Government so businesses can continue to invest in the UK economy."

Scottish Secretary Alister Jack welcomed the report, saying: "Scotch is not just Scotland's but the UK's most valuable food and drink export and that's why we've given it 10 cuts or freezes in duty at the last 11 budgets as well as removing punitive tariffs imposed on the US market.

Mr. Jack added: "We are now pushing forward with new and robust global trade agreements that will continue to safeguard the interest of Scotch whisky."

The industry supports 66,000 jobs across the UK with 41,000 in Scotland.

Mystery as giant tortoises found dead

Several giant tortoises have been found dead in woodland owned by the National Trust in Devon.

Devon and Cornwall Police said seven dead tortoises were found in Ashclyst Forest, to the north of Exeter.

Two of the tortoises were found on 8 January, and another five were found nearby on Friday, officers said.

The National Trust said its teams were "horrified" when the animals were found and anyone with any information should contact police.

The force said they were thought to be Aldabra giant tortoises - classed as vulnerable by the International Union for Conservation of Nature.

Police said inquiries were under way to identify the owners and establish the circumstances surrounding the animals' deaths and the disposal of their bodies.

Local resident Peter Labdon regularly visits the area for exercise and said: "It seems quite horrifying... considering the length of time that they can live, it's a dreadful shame."

Officers are asking the public to get in touch with any information.

Insp Mark Arthurs

said: "We are appealing to members of the public for information to try to establish the circumstances around this discovery and to identify those responsible.

"We would ask that if anyone knows anything, they get in touch.

"We would also like to hear from anyone who has recently purchased a giant tortoise in the area or knows of anyone who normally has a large number of tortoises but has fewer now."

The National Trust confirmed the animals were found on its land on the Killerton Estate.

It said: "Teams were horrified to discover that five deceased large tortoises were left at the entrance to Ashclyst Forest.

"Two giant tortoises were discovered in a similar area in the previous week. All the tortoises have been removed.

"Police are investigating and anyone with any information is asked to contact them."

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off or resolving ownership interest issues, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens as well as the ownership interest(s) and salability of the property that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust or lien on the property. Please Note, the sale may not be final until either 15 or 45 days after the sale date – see Notice to Tenant. Further, no Certificate of Sale or Trustee's Deed may be issued until the sale is final. Your bid is subject to being over bid by the Tenant or "eligible bidder" after the sale and if your bid is over bid, your only remedy is to the refund of your actual bid amount without interest or payment of any other costs, expenses or funds of any kind or nature incurred by the initial successful bidder. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, lien holder, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866) 266-7512 or visit this Internet Web site www.elitepostandpub.com using the T.S. number assigned to this case. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. Step one, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (866) 266-7512, or visit this internet website www.elitepostandpub.com using the file number assigned to this case TS# 22-22098 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Step two, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid ("NOI") accompanied by an affidavit or declaration in accordance with Civil Code Section 2924m(c)(2)(A)(B)(C)(D) so that the trustee receives it no later than 5 p.m. on the 15th day after the trustee's sale. BLEAK MIDWINTER

Britain wakes up to -15c mornings

FRIGID Britain reached a new low this week, as the county experienced the coldest January night in 14 years.

Temperatures plunged to -15C Tuesday night, making it the chilliest since January 2010 when -22.3C was recorded in the Highlands village of Altnaharra.

The Met Office has issued an amber alert for dangerous heavy snow across northern Scotland as the weather brought blizzard conditions, with yellow alerts for snow and ice until midnight tomorrow.

It also brought snow, sleet and rain for northern parts of the UK, with heavy frosts and freezing conditions across most of the country, leading to treacherous conditions on roads and pavements.

Snowfall topped 20' in Lerwick, Shetland on Wednesday morning.

Met Office chief meteorologist Jason Kelly said: "With deep snow already lying on the ground for many in Scotland, we're going to see a significant topping up of totals over the next couple of days, especially for those in the north of Scotland.

Scottish police warned motorists to avoid unnecessary travel on Wednesday.

Icy Arctic winds have brought temperatures down 5C to 6C below the average for this time of year.

And the misery goes on: as temperatures rose this weekend the Met Office has warned of stormy condition bringing more disruption in the week ahead.

TAURUS: Life and some relationships have not been all you desire recently. This is due to your boss Venus on a go-slow. A little more patience is all it will take.

GEMINI: You are ready to tackle any unfinished business so make sure you have both the time and energy. Get your ducks in a row for the middle of next week when new challenges await.

CANCER: You have probably had an unpredictable time of late. This can have caused you to take life too seriously. Fear not, it's nearly over, just keep a handle on your finances for a few days.

LEO: You could be planning a home-based renovation or something similar in these next few weeks. Be sure that your plan is practical so you complete all your scheduled work.

VIRGO: Stress is no stranger in your life some times. It's probably more of a problem this past couple of weeks. Good news - your boss Mercury is traveling forward now.

Andy's final Oz exit?

■ Murray philosophical in defeat; Raducanu also out

Andy Murray says there is a "definite possibility" he has played his final Australian Open after a subdued display against Tomas Martin Etcheverry in a first-round exit this week.

The 36-year-old Briton showed little emotion as he lost 6-4 6-2 6-2 on the second day of the Melbourne tournament.

Murray, a five-time finalist, failed to reach the second round for only the second time in his past 13 appearances.

"I won't win many matches playing that way," Murray said.

"It's a definite possibility that will be the last time I play here."

After conceding in pre-season that 2024 could be his final season before retirement, the Scot has lost both of his matches this year.

Murray told reporters in Brisbane he would think about ending his stellar career if he did not enjoy playing this year, having struggled for form in the closing stages of the 2023 season.

Since the start of the US Open in August, Murray has lost eight of his past 12 matches - including the past four.

Murray is the second Briton to fall in the singles at Melbourne Park, following Jodie Burrage's defeat on Sunday.

Known for his long and gruelling encounters last season, Murray said he wanted to avoid another marathon match against Argentine 30th seed Etcheverry.

Unfortunately for the British number four, it was a quick match for the wrong reasons.

Both of the two previous meetings between the pair - three-set matches which they split on the ATP Tour last season - lasted more than three hours.

This five-set match finished much quicker as the Scot toiled in a worryingly below-par performance.

Murray had his serve broken six times, including twice when he lost the final five games, and did not threaten Etcheverry's serve after the second game of the match.

Having shown little expression throughout, Murray appeared emotional as he waved farewell to all sides of the Kia Arena on his way back to the locker room.

"Whilst you're playing the match, you're obviously trying to control your emotions, focus on the points and everything," the former world number one said.

"When you're one point away from the end, you're like, 'I can't believe this is over so quickly, and like this'.

IS THIS THE END? Andy Murray's body language following his first round defeat in the Australian Open would certainly suggest so...

"I was disappointed with the way I played and all of that stuff. It was a tough, tough way to finish."

And British hopes on the women's side of the draw ended when Emma Raducanu lost in three sets, 6-4 4-6 6-4 to China's Wang Yafan on Thursday.

Raducanu, 21, was playing only her fourth match after wrist and ankle surgeries which kept her out for eight months. She was clearly in discomfort for much of the match and later told reporters she was "throwing up" in her mouth in the match's later stages.

"Everything I went through last year has made me so much tougher," she said.

"There was no way I was going to pull out. She was going to have to beat me - and she did."

Raducanu's exit came after Katie Boulter, who has taken over as British number one, lost to Chinese 12th seed Zheng Qinwen on the same Kia Arena court.

They were bidding to set up an all-British meeting in the third round, but instead it is the Chinese pair who will meet on Saturday.

The defeats for Raducanu and Boulter mean there are no British players left in the women's singles.

Cameron Norrie, who fought back from two sets down to win in five sets earlier on Thursday, is the only remaining player from the nation in the singles draws.

Welsh star ditches rugby union for NFL

A LEADING light of Welsh rugby union has shocked the sport by quitting the 15-a-side game to follow his dream of playing in the NFL.

Louis Rees-Zammit, the highly-rated 22-year-old Gloucester wing dropped his bombshell on Wales head coach Warren Gatland just as he was about to announce his 32-times capped flier in his squad for the upcoming Six Nations.

It meant the team release had to be set back as Gatland first received a call from Gloucester head coach George Skivington and then Rees-Zammit himself. Thirty minutes later, Gatland had to face the media and explain the incredible turn of events. "I was shocked more than disappointed," said Gatland, who announced a 34-man Six Nations squad.

"There is never a dull moment in Welsh rugby, and this was thrown at us an hour or so ago. Louis had an approach on Sunday, things moved very quickly and the paperwork was all agreed to allow Gloucester to release him. He was outstanding for us at the World Cup. He rang me at about 12.30pm to thank me for all the support he had received and to say he had loved being at the World Cup.

"I still thought there was a huge amount of growth in his game. His try for Gloucester at the weekend was sensational but, as a coach, I wanted to see him get his hands on the ball more often."

But they are likely to be without Abdoulaye Doucoure and Seamus Coleman for that fixture with manager Sean Dyche saying after full-time that both were absent from Wednesday's tie with "minor hamstring issues" and a return date is "too early to tell".

Crystal Palace's poor form continued. The Eagles have won just one of their past 11 matches, falling to six defeats in that stretch.

Defeat also means Roy Hodgson's side have been eliminated at the third-round stage of the FA Cup in four of the past five seasons, with the exception coming in 2021-22 when they reached the semi-finals.

Palace struggled to create clear-cut opportunities while Hodgson's decision to substitute key forward Eberechi Eze in the second half was met with boos and chants of "you don't know what you're doing" by some away supporters.

Palace are away to Arsenal in their next match in the Premier League on Saturday.

"If I was a fan, I wouldn't have wanted to see Eze taken off either," Hodgson told BBC Radio London. "But we play at 12:30 GMT on Saturday and we need people like Eze who is one of our very best players.

"I would have loved all of my players to play 95 minutes but unfortunately we decided, in order to protect as many players as we can, that we would replace them with players who also deserved a chance to play."

best.

"Since their financial conditions for cancelling the contract were agreed, they can now make full use of the winter break and transfer window to reset and go again.

"And as a league, we have the strength and depth to move forward." The midfielder will take a significant cut on the his tax-free wages of £350,000 a week to join Ajax - though, according to several news outlets, he may not be paid at all by Al-Ettifaq.

He is said to have agreed deferrals on payments in Saudi Arabia in order to "return to Britain to play for England in the short term, unrestricted by the time limitations placed on those without UK taxpayer status."

"Under UK law, an individual is considered resident for tax purposes if they spend more than 90 days in the country," it is explained.

Therefore he has not yet been paid by Al-Ettifaq and, according to the Telegraph, "sources close to the player say that the expectation is that he will not be."

Hendo seals Ajax switch

■ England midfielder's ill-fated move to Saudi league ends with a whimper...

England midfielder Jordan Henderson has joined Dutch club Ajax on a two-and-a-half-year deal after less than six months at Al-Ettifaq.

The 33-year-old signed a three-year contract worth a reported £700,000 a week with the Saudi Pro League club after leaving Liverpool in July.

Al-Ettifaq agreed to terminate his contract to facilitate the move.

"I'm sad to say that I will be leaving Al Ettifaq with immediate effect," Henderson wrote on social media.

"It wasn't an easy decision but one that I feel is best for me and my family.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank the club and the fans for all the support during my time. I really felt the love from day one.

"I'll keep watching and hoping for your success. Good luck for the future."

Ajax host RKC Waalwijk on Sunday but Henderson is unlikely to be able to make his debut in that game as he awaits international clearance.

Henderson called the past few days a "whirlwind" and a "crazy few days" but that he was excited to be starting a "new chapter" in his career and life.

"Putting on that Ajax shirt for the first time will be really special and I can't wait for that to happen," he said in an interview released by his new club.

"Once I knew that there was an opportunity [to move here], I was over-excited and just overwhelmed that this opportunity was there for me.

"It was something that I wanted to try to make happen so it is very humbling for me to be here now. It's a special day."

Shortly after Henderson's departure was confirmed, it was announced that ex-Liverpool captain Steven Gerrard had extended his deal as Al-Ettifaq manager until 2027.

As a prominent supporter of the LGBTQ+ community during his time at Anfield, Henderson was criticized for making the move to Saudi Arabia, where same-sex sexual activity is illegal. He said he was 'really hurt' by the backlash, adding his intention has always been to "help causes and communities".

However, recent reports suggested Henderson had failed to settle in Saudi Arabia; he leaves Al-Ettifaq having made just 17 league appearances.

Al-Ettifaq president Samer Al Mishehal said: "Firstly, the club would like to thank Jordan for his efforts and wish him the best for his future endeavours.

"We are always respectful of our players. The club and Jordan believe this quick decision, without any delay or further distraction, has been made for both the overall good of the club and for Jordan."

Saad Allazeez, the vice-chairman and interim chief executive of the Saudi Pro League, added: "This is all just part of football, all across the world and life, across all careers.

"Sometimes, despite best efforts, people don't always adjust or settle and that can impact performances and lead to frustrations for all.

"Jordan is a good guy and it's a shame that things didn't work out for him, but he'd be the first to admit that full support was given to him and respect shown. So everyone tried and no one is to blame."

He continued: "I'm pleased the club acted fast as they have to protect their own interests as well as the player and this instance, this is all for the

Gomes strike demolishes Palace

Andre Gomes' fine free-kick helped Everton beat Crystal Palace in their FA Cup third-round replay in midweek to set up a tie against Luton Town.

Gomes opened the scoring for the hosts after 42 minutes at Goodison Park, curling his free-kick into the top corner from 25 yards out.

It was the one true moment of quality in a game of few key opportunities as Everton held on for their first win since 16 December.

The fixture took place two days after the hosts were charged with breaching the Premier League's financial rules for the second time this season.

Before the match Everton fans raised a banner saying "onwards Evertonians, we shall not be moved".

Gomes, 30, was starting just his second match for Everton since May 2022, having spent last season on loan at Lille before suffering a calf injury.

The midfielder was impressive for the Toffees at Goodison, netting his second goal in five appearances with a textbook set-piece.

Everton dominated much of the first half, with Dominic Calvert-Lewin seeing an early chance tipped over the bar by Crystal Palace keeper Sam Johnstone.

And in the 72nd minute the forward dragged a shot narrowly wide, before Lewis Dobbin's flicked effort was denied by the feet of Johnstone in second-half stoppage time.

Everton held on to their narrow lead and will now face Luton at home in their next match on Saturday, 27 January, hoping to reach the fifth round of the FA Cup for the third time in three seasons.
