Harry in transatlantic dash to see Charles

■ King's cancer diagnosis brings feuding royals together...at least for now

Prince Harry has made a transatlantic dash to his father after the King was diagnosed with cancer.

Tuesday's long-awaited reunion came hours after his younger son, in a show of love, flew in overnight. Sources described the 45-minute meeting at Clarence House as a "cause for optimism".

It was the first time the Duke has seen his father in nine months.

The pair spoke on the phone before the King's diagnosis was made public on Monday, then Harry landed Tuesday lunchtime from Los Angeles, heading straight to his father's London residence.

Palace officials gave no details of their private meeting – it is thought the King kept it to himself – but it raised the hopes of family and friends that they can find a way to heal their rift while the monarch is treated.

One well-placed source, noting the length of time they spent talking, said: "I'd have thought that was cause for optimism."

However, the chances of Harry and his brother ending their differences look more distant. It is understood that William and his brother did not meet during Harry's brief stay in the UK.

royal rift

The Prince of Wales's focus for the next couple of months is tending to his wife Kate as she recovers from major abdominal surgery, as well as looking after their three young children.

The royal rift stems from Harry's complaints about the way that he and Meghan say they were treated by their family and Palace officials.

Sources close to various members of the family have suggested that time is a great healer and it may take longer for them all to settle their differences. But this week's reunion looked like a start.

Charles, who announced on Monday he was postponing all public engagements while he has treatment for cancer, looked happy and waved to well-wishers on Tuesday as he and the Queen were driven the few hundred yards from Clarence House to Buckingham Palace.

From there they took a helicopter to spend time at Sandringham, the sovereign's Norfolk retreat.

Royal sources commented that the King was "upbeat" and "on his usual good form" – but also frustrated that his illness is causing disruption to his close family, who may have to undertake more engagements on his behalf during his care.

'swift intervention'

One royal insider said: "If you didn't know there was something wrong with him, you wouldn't know there was something wrong with him."

While another added yesterday: "You've seen him smiling and waving this afternoon. He is very positive."

Aides have declined to specify what cancer he has but it has been made clear that despite having a procedure for an enlarged prostate, he does not have prostate cancer.

They also would not say how aggressive the cancer is but praised doctors for their "swift intervention" in finding the disease during His Majesty's prostate care in The London Clinic at the Former PM Truss unveils new political movement

■ Ex-Premier launches 'Popular Conservatism' movement, urging Conservative Party to shift to the political right.

Former Prime Minister Liz Truss has announced a new movement aiming to push the Conservative Party more toward the right of the political spectrum.

Truss – Britain's shortest-serving leader, who was in office for only 49 days – announced the "Popular Conservatism" movement on Tuesday alongside former Business Secretary Jacob Rees-Mogg.

She said it was time to listen to voters and return to traditional conservative values on issues such as immigration, climate change and state regulation.

"The fundamental issue is that for years and years and years ...

Conservatives have not taken on the left-wing extremists," Truss said at the party's launch.

"And the problem is when we don't know what we stand for, when we're not prepared to stand up for conservative values, who is?" she asked.

Truss blamed her colleagues in the party for trying to be "popular at London dinner parties" rather than defending conservative ideals and challenging "wokeism" and climate narratives.

Rees-Mogg attacked human rights legislation, and railed against the "international elite", adding that the "age of Davos man is over".

Tory Deputy Party

Chairman Lee Anderson, who also attended, argued that Britons care little about hitting net-zero carbon targets.

Truss's brief stint as prime minister was marred by a damaging mini-budget that sunk the pound and affected financial markets.

Since leaving office, Truss has urged the government to cut taxes, disregard net-zero commitments and increase the retirement age from its current age of 66.

But she remains a deeply unpopular politician among the general public, which is facing a bitter cost-of-living crisis that economists say her budget was partly responsible for.

The Tories have been in power for almost 14 years but are currently lagging behind the Labour Party in the polls ahead of the general election later this year.

The creation of a new conservative group in a party already divided over immigration and Brexit is another obstacle for Rishi Sunak and his attempts to bring his party together before the election.

Last month, Truss ally MP Simon Clark urged Sunak to step down before the election.

Sunak bets Piers Morgan £1k Rwanda flights will start before next election

RISHI Sunak this week shook hands on a £1,000 bet with Piers Morgan that Rwanda flights will begin before the election.

The broadcaster said his "grim prediction" is that the plan to send asylum seekers on a one-way ticket to the East African nation is not going to work.

Controversial broadcaster Morgan is one of the flagship stars of TalkTV, a free-to-air opinion-oriented television and radio channel in the UK owned and operated by Rupert Murdoch's News UK.

During an interview with the Prime Minister, Morgan said: "I'll bet you £1,000 to a refugee charity you don't get anybody on those planes before the election. Will you take that bet?" Mr Sunak replied: "I want to get the people on the planes. I am working incredibly hard to get the people on the planes." The pair then shook hands as Piers repeated "£1,000".

The Prime Minister has previously set a target of spring for getting the policy off the ground. The scheme has so far been thwarted by legal challenges. Last year the Supreme Court ruled it was unlawful.

Mr Sunak is trying to revive the plan with a new treaty with Kigali and his Rwanda Bill deeming the country "safe".

In the interview, he insisted he is not interested in who would win a "charisma battle" between him and Sir Keir Starmer.

end of last month.

Rishi Sunak, who is expected to continue speaking to the King in weekly audiences, either in person or remotely, during the treatment said: "All our thoughts are with him and his family. Thankfully this has been caught early."

The Prime Minister added that everyone would be hoping that the King "gets the treatment that he needs and makes a full recovery."

"That's what we're all hoping and praying for, and I'm of course in regular contact with him and will continue to communicate with him as normal." Asked what it meant for the running of the country, Mr Sunak said: "We'll crack on with everything. He'll just be in our thoughts and our prayers."

"Many families around the country listening to this will have been touched by the same thing and they know what it means."

Mr Sunak added: "So we'll just be willing him on and hopefully we get through this as quickly as possible."

William thanks everyone for messages of support

PRINCE William thanked people this week for their messages of support for his father King Charles and wife Kate as they battle health problems.

He told a glamorous fundraising gala in London, which was attended by Hollywood star Tom Cruise: "It means a great deal to us all."

The Prince of Wales, 41, returned to official duties after three weeks off looking after Kate, 42, and their three children.

He is expected to deputise for King Charles in the future as the monarch, 75, undergoes cancer treatment.

Meanwhile, Prince Harry, 39, returned to Heathrow for his flight back to Los Angeles after visiting his father on Tuesday.

William hosted the gala for London's Air Ambulance, a charity created in 1989.

It followed an investiture at Windsor Castle, where he paid tribute to nurses caring for Kate after her abdominal surgery.

Trish Spruce, who has played a key part in recruiting overseas nurses to Britain as associate director of people services and recruitment at Yeovil Hospital, Somerset, received an MBE from the Prince.

She said: "Prince William said that Catherine had two Filipino nurses looking after her and they were amazing and kind."

In his gala speech at Raffles in London's Whitehall, William joked: "It's fair to say the past few weeks have had a rather 'medical' focus. So I thought I'd come to an air ambulance function to get away from it all."

"I'd like to take this opportunity to say thank you, also, for the kind messages of support for Catherine and for my father, especially in recent days. It means a great deal to us all."

The Prince welcomed Tom, 61, who is a licensed plane and helicopter pilot, and joked about his tendency to wreck aircraft in his Mission: Impossible movies.

He said: "Tom, huge thanks for supporting us tonight. And if you wouldn't mind not borrowing either of the new helicopters for the next Mission: Impossible, it would be appreciated."

"We have all seen on our screens that, how can I put it, you seem to have a different take on 'normal wear and tear' to the rest of us. It's not the kind that buffs out, that's for sure."

In 2022 William and Kate attended the UK premiere of Cruise's Top Gun: Maverick film, with the Prince wearing a pair of themed Crockett and Jones velvet slip-on shoes.

Tom Cruise and Prince William at the London Air Ambulance Charity Gala in London on Wednesday

He told the star on Wednesday night: "I haven't got my Top Gun slippers on this time."

William, who became patron of London's Air

Ambulance in March 2020, hosted the gala to help raise £15million for the charity's Up Against Time campaign to replace its ageing fleet.

Don't mention the wait...a Fawlty stage debut, 50 years later

BASIL might not be happy – but John Cleese is thrilled a stage version of Fawlty Towers is finally hitting the West End nearly 50 years after the first episode was shown on BBC Two.

Cleese co-wrote and starred in the iconic sitcom as rude hotelier Basil Fawlty and also wrote the two-hour play. It is based on three of his favourite episodes – The Hotel Inspector, The Germans and Communication Problems.

He has promised "one huge finale" when the show debuts at the Apollo Theatre on Shaftesbury Avenue on May 15.

Cleese, 84, said: "We've been working on bringing Fawlty Towers to the West End stage for over five years. But there's been an enormous delay because there's such a backlog of shows wanting a theatre since Covid. I'm so excited by the quality of people auditioning for the roles, like Adam Jackson-Smith who will play Basil. I was amazed by him in the audition."

Fawlty Towers, written by Cleese and then wife Connie Booth – who played chambermaid Polly – ran for 12 episodes in 1975 and 1979.

Anna-Jane Casey will be Basil's wife Sybil (originally played by Prunella Scales), Victoria Fox is Polly while Hemi Yeroham reprises the late Andrew Sachs's iconic waiter Manuel.

WELSH WIZARD: the great man in action

Tributes flow for rugby legend Barry John

TRIBUTES poured in this week after former rugby union superstar Barry John died aged 79. Crowned “The King” after he inspired the British and Irish Lions’ 1971 Test series victory over the All Blacks, his on-pitch flair was compared to football legend George Best.

He was regarded as one of the sport’s greatest players, netting 25 Wales caps between 1966 and 1972.

The fly-half died surrounded by his family. They said: “Barry John died peacefully at the University Hospital of Wales surrounded by his loving wife and four children.

‘one of the greatest’

“He was a loving grandfather to his 11 grandchildren and much-loved brother.”

The star, who played for Llanelli, Cardiff, Wales, the Lions and Barbarians, won three Five Nations titles, including a Grand Slam and two Triple Crowns.

He also played five Tests for the British and Irish Lions on their 1968 and 1971 tours.

At Cardiff he was united with Sir Gareth Edwards where they forged their half-back partnership. The miner’s son from Carmarthenshire retired from rugby aged 27. His death comes four weeks after that of JPR Williams, who also played in Wales’ golden era.

TV pundit and former Wales player Jonathan Davies said: “Another one of my heroes sadly gone.”

The British and Irish Lions said in a statement: “Truly one of the greatest. Barry inspired so many and will forever be remembered for how much he gave to the sport.”

Scarlets Rugby in Llanelli hailed him as an “icon of the game”.

Cardiff Rugby said: “We are absolutely devastated.” Former Welsh rugby international John Devereux added: “My greatest idol of all time has gone. I fell in love with rugby because of you.”

He said when Barry John retired “I cried all week”.

England rugby World Cup winner Jason Leonard called John “one of the absolute greats.” John was third in the 1971 BBC Sports Personality of the Year behind winner Princess Anne and George Best.

He once said: “I was the first rugby pop star, superstar, call it whatever you want.”

Today’s NHS: hundreds queue for hours, hoping for a glimpse of a rare British dentist

THE EXTENT of Britain’s NHS crisis was laid bare this week when hundreds of people in St. Paul’s, Bristol queued around the block in hope of signing up for a dentist.

The area has been short of dental services for several years now so when one local dentist announced he was reopening after a crowd funding campaign and finally accepting new patients, the demand was overwhelming. Police were called to control the lines after jostling broke out.

The news comes after it was revealed dentists will be offered a £20,000 ‘golden hello’ payment if they remain an NHS service for three years.

The plans are part of creating one million more dentist appointments amid a lack of available slots for NHS patients. Another £200 million will be dished out to encourage more to stay in the profession.

After the announcement Shawn Charlwood, chairman of British Dental Association’s general dental practice committee, told reporters: “We’ve had UK citizens travelling abroad - including to Ukraine, a war zone - to access dental care, which I just think is mind-boggling.”

“I don’t know the numbers, but we’ve certainly been picking up in the last few weeks that some Ukrainians are returning to Ukraine to see their dentist because they’ve not been able to access care in the NHS in the UK.

“This whole system has been allowed to wither on the vine for many years. This has been going on for almost two decades, and there is a steadfast refusal to deal with the key issue, which is the NHS contract, which a cross-party committee

Police were called to keep order as hundreds queued hoping to sign up at the newly-opened dentist’s office in Bristol’s this week has described as unfit for purpose.”

News of the reopening rapidly spread, with hundreds of people seen queuing along the street in a bid to sign up as it reopened nearly nine months on.

The practice saw long lines trail down Ashley Court, the road where the dentist is located, and around the block.

By Monday evening though, the rolls were full and those in line were advised they would be able to sign up... prompting loud moans of dismay and anger from those in line – some of whom had been waiting for over six hours.

Locals not happy as train operator’s pronunciation keeps going off the tracks

A train operator has been criticised for continuing to mispronounce a station name six months after re-recording its announcements.

Northern said in August it had re-done 34 place names after coming under fire from passengers over years of errors.

However, Aspatria, in Cumbria, is still being announced ‘As-spat-ria’ rather than ‘As-spay-tria’.

Northern said it was aiming to complete the roll-out of its updates by the “summer”.

Last year the train firm asked people across its network for help after an initial attempt to correct long-standing mispronunciations failed.

It then revealed it had re-recorded 34 names and would roll them out across its 345-train fleet.

However, when approached by reporters, the firm was unable to confirm how many have been implemented in the subsequent six months.

Software updates for onboard systems are carried out manually by engineers when trains undergo routine servicing.

Users of the line between Carlisle and locations along the Cumbrian coast say Aspatria is still not being pronounced as it should be.

One passenger said it was “really noticeable” but added “the service is so unreliable, we’re just grateful when the trains are running”.

Aspatria mayor Alan Maxwell said he would “like to see it fixed if possible”.

“In local dialect, people call the town ‘Spyat-ree’, but the correct pronunciation is ‘As-spay-tria’. To have it right [on the trains] would be nice.”

Northern confirmed Aspatria was one of the re-recordings done last year “as part of a programme to ensure our onboard announcements respected local pronunciation”.

A spokesman claimed the roll-out “continues apace, with the process due for completion by the summer”.

Among the names deemed difficult to pronounce, are Ardwick Aspatria, Burneside, Cark-in-Cartmel Dore & Totley, Elsecar, Buxton Balshaw Lane, Hall i’ th’ Wood, Langwathby and Slaithwaite.

Ian Lavender, last of the original Dad's Army cast, dies at 77

Actor Ian Lavender, who played a hapless Home Guard soldier in the classic sitcom "Dad's Army," has died, his agent said Monday. He was 77.

Agent Hilary Gagan said Lavender had been ill for some time and died with his wife and sons at his side.

Lavender was the last surviving main cast member of "Dad's Army," about a ragtag volunteer unit assembled to defend their seaside English town from potential Nazi invasion during World War II.

Originally broadcast between 1968 and 1977, it attracted as many as 18 million viewers an episode -- a third of the British population -- and remains perennially popular in reruns.

Lavender played Private Frank Pike, the youngest member of the unit and frequent butt of the epithet "stupid boy!" from commanding officer Captain Mainwaring.

Another scene, in which a captured German officer demands the young private's name and Mainwaring thunders: "Don't tell him, Pike" is routinely voted one of Britain's funniest TV moments.

Born in 1946, Lavender was 22 and just out of the Bristol Old Vic theater school when he was cast in the show alongside a troupe of stage and screen veterans.

He later acknowledged that his iconic role in "Dad's Army" had led to him being typecast, but said he'd "be a fool to have regrets."

'complete beginner'

His hapless Pike frequently had run-ins with Captain George Mainwaring, played by Arthur Lowe, and was looked after by Sergeant Arthur Wilson, played by John Le Mesurier.

Pike, the youngest member of the Home Guard troop and a bank clerk, would often refer to Wilson as Uncle Arthur because of his relationship with Pike's overprotective mother, Mavis, played by Janet Davies.

Lavender once said it was the luckiest day of his life when he was cast as Pike. He was earning £9 a week during a six-month stint at Canterbury Rep when someone came up to him and said he looked stupid enough to do it.

He said: "I was a complete beginner and I suddenly joined what was probably Britain's most experienced team of character actors. I was in a state of shock finding myself suddenly among so many great actors. When the moment came for me to speak, that funny voice of Pike just came out in a moment of panic."

"Since then at the start of every new series it has been one hell of a job trying to conjure it up again. But Private Pike took me from obscurity into the TV big time. I could never have achieved that if I hadn't learned to say: 'Ooh Captain Mainwaring, my mum said even if the Germans come I mustn't catch cold.'"

During the same interview, Lavender cleared up a longstanding mystery from the show. When he had asked David Croft, one of the show's creators, if Uncle Arthur was Pike's father, Lavender was told: "Of

"I was in a state of shock finding myself suddenly among so many great actors. When the moment came for me to speak, that funny voice of Pike just came out in a moment of panic." - Ian Lavender on joining the Dad's Army cast course." Speaking in 2014, he said: "I never knew until then. I just said the lines."

Lavender also played Derek Harkinson in EastEnders – initially from 2001 to 2005, then returning in 2016. He left the BBC soap in 2017 after he became ill with sepsis, having previously had cancer and a heart attack.

Jon Petrie, the BBC's director of comedy, said: "Ian was a much-loved actor and will be sorely missed by all those who knew him. In his role of Private Pike, in Dad's Army, he delivered some of the most iconic and loved moments in the history of British comedy. Our thoughts are with his family."

He is survived by his wife, the choreographer and stage director Miki (Michele) Hardy, and two sons, Sam and Daniel, from his first marriage, to Suzanne Kerchiss, which ended in divorce.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 866-266-7512 or visit this Internet Web site www.elitepostandpub.com using the file number assigned to this case 21000649-1 CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 866-266-7512 or visit this Internet Web site www.elitepostandpub.com using the file number assigned to this case 21000649-1 CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Revealed: Carry On star's secret life as POW escape planner

■ Peter Butterworth was a key planner in the real-life escapades that inspired two classic World War II escape films

The Great Escape and The Wooden Horse are two classic British World War II escape films, but what is perhaps less well known is that one of the team involved in both of the escapes that inspired them would go on to become a star of the Carry On movies.

Now, 80 years on, Peter Butterworth's recently discovered German prison identity card is going on display in London as part of an exhibition telling the story of his life as a prisoner of war.

Butterworth served in the Royal Navy Fleet Air Arm during the war but was shot down in 1940, spending the rest of it as a prisoner of war.

Butterworth, who appeared in 16 Carry On films, helped hide the sand for the escape tunnels featured in the Great Escape and was on the organizing committee for the tunnels featured in The Wooden Horse, but it has taken decades for the full story to emerge.

It was his wartime role - working alongside Carry On screenwriter Talbot Rothwell whose plane was also shot down - that helped birth the Carry On humour Butterworth later became famous for.

A cache of prisoner of war documents recently released from a German archive is now going on display at the National Archives in London, which adds new detail to the gradually unfolding story.

The documents arrived from Germany and have been catalogued by a team of volunteers.

For his son Tyler Butterworth, it has been a revelation.

"They keep declassifying things and more seems to bubble up. It's remarkable."

In Carry on Camping, Butterworth played the avaricious campsite owner, Josh Fiddler. In Carry On Up The Khyber, he was the libidinous preacher, Brother Belcher, and in Carry on Don't Lose Your Head, he was Citizen Bidet.

However, in Stalag Luft 3, he was an officer and code writer in MI9, the military intelligence agency responsible for organizing escapes from prison camps. It was a mystery to even his own son until long after his death in 1979.

"He did suffer from what we now call post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). He never said this to my sister and I, but my mother (the impressionist Janet Brown) told me about things that happened, especially right at the start of their marriage, after the war, where he'd suddenly leap out of bed at night and throw himself on the floor and start hiding. She had to barricade the bedroom door because the staircase was outside."

Butterworth's son Tyler (above) had no idea about his father's wartime activities until the recent release of the late actor's POW card

In the escape immortalized in the classic film The Great Escape, Butterworth helped hide the soil from the tunnels in the camp theatre. Inmates would be encouraged to smoke pipes near where the soil was stored to mask the smell.

In the Wooden Horse escape, in which a tunnel was dug underneath a vaulting horse, he was one of the organizing committee. When the story was adapted in 1950 for the big screen, he auditioned for a role but was turned down for not looking sufficiently like a prisoner.

Peter Butterworth played Citizen Bidet in Carry On, Don't Lose Your Head

Alongside him in Stalag Luft 3 was another prisoner, Talbot Rothwell, who would go on to write many of the best Carry On films. He and Rothwell convinced the camp commandant to allow them to build a theatre, with the sounds from the performances helping drown out the noise of digging the tunnels.

"It's where the (Carry On) humour kind of had its start, in this place surrounded by watchtowers and guard dogs," Tyler Butterworth explained.

Why you need dental insurance in retirement.

Medicare doesn't pay for dental care.¹

As good as Medicare is, it was never meant to cover everything. If you want protection, you need to purchase individual insurance.

Early detection can prevent small problems from becoming expensive ones.

The best way to avoid large dental bills is preventive care. Experts recommend checkups twice a year.

Previous dental work can wear out.

Your odds of having a dental problem only go up as you age.²

Treatment is expensive — especially the services people over 50 often need.

Unexpected bills, like $189 for a filling, or $1,219 for a crown³ can be a real burden, especially if you're on a fixed income.

When you're comparing plans ...

- ▶ Look for coverage that helps pay for major services.
- ▶ Look for coverage with no deductibles.
- ▶ Shop for coverage with no annual maximum on cash benefits.

Simply put — without dental insurance, there may be an important gap in your healthcare coverage.

Gung-ho falls short as India level Test series

VISAKHAHPATNAM: India levelled the five match Test series against England this week with a strong comeback performance that saw them beat the tourists by 106 runs.

After the hosts set a target of 399 to win, Ben Stokes's men set about attacking the score in a cavalier fashion – an approach which had handed them a memorable victory in Hyderabad last month.

But this time around they were all out for 291, and the writing was on the ball when the talismanic Stokes was run out for just 11 to confirm a mid order collapse following a promising start which saw them at sitting comfortably at 95-1 thanks to Zak Crawley's commanding opening knock.

But by 12.50pm local time, as Ben Stokes mooched back to the pavilion muttering under his breath about his dismissal, England were already struggling to stay afloat.

Stokes had been slow out of the blocks for a gettable single, and a direct hit from Shreyas Iyer at midwicket left Stokes an inch short of the line when a dive might have saved him. And so it was back to the bucket hat for the England captain as he watched India pick off the final three wickets to claim a 106-run victory and ensure a 1-1 scoreline after two Tests. The hosts were good value for it, too, with Yashasvi Jaiswal's double century in the first innings and 104 from Shubman Gill in the second representing two outliers in a match of middling scores.

But the undisputed star of the show was Jasprit Jasbirsingh Bumrah, the fast bowler in phenomenal form with a six-wicket burst of reverse swing on day two giving the hosts an initiative they never surrendered.

It was fitting that Bumrah should inflict the coup de grâce when Tom Hartley's off pole was detonated for a gutsy 36. England were 292 all out in 69.2 overs, with Bumrah rightly named player of the match after taking his overall stash to nine.

Stokes was phlegmatic and unrepentant: "We were full of confidence, as we always are. We knew we had to get 330 more runs and the big thing for us was asserting our authority very early and try to not let them settle. Credit to Rohit and the bowlers that every time we dragged the momentum back, they were able to take a wicket and drag it back."

Defeat always leaves space for nit-picking. Crawley played a rash shot in the first innings when well set – but, when asked about it, said it was just the way he plays, and that he's a much better player now than when he was fiddling around for an average in the 20s. Nor was Joe Root's secondinnings 16 one for the purists. He arrived at the crease ready for instant attack rather than his familiar nurdle and nip, two reverse sweeps for four in his first three balls followed by an offbalance dance and swipe with resultant top-edgea rash shot which summed up England's day.

get back up into League A."

Southgate admitted England have had mixed fortunes in the Nations League in previous years: "We've had varied experiences. The first time we finished third, the second two have been complicated for us, in all three versions we've used it to look at new players.

"Of course you have to balance looking at new players with winning games and we didn't manage to do that last time. The competition pairs the best with the best and my impressions of it have been really good. Unfortunately the second one reminds me of Covid and the third one we didn't play well and it was the buildup to a World Cup, so that was complicated for us."

England and Ireland to meet again

■ Southgate upbeat as Nations League draw announced

England and the Republic of Ireland will meet competitively for the first time since 1991 in the next edition of the Nations League.

Gareth Southgate's side and the Republic are also up against the Euro 2004 winners, Greece, and Finland in Group B2. They avoided a long trip to Kazakhstan under Uefa's excessive travel restriction rules, with the former Soviet republic placed in Group B3 instead.

The last competitive encounter between England and the Republic was a Euro 92 qualifier at Wembley, where a Niall Quinn goal cancelled out Lee Dixon's opener.

A friendly in 1995 at Lansdowne Road had to be abandoned due to crowd trouble, and the teams' most recent meeting was a November 2020 friendly which England won 3-0.

Wales will be up against Iceland, Montenegro and Turkey in Group B4. Steve Clarke's Scotland face Croatia, Portugal and Poland in Group A1. Michael O'Neill's Northern Ireland were drawn in Group C3, where they will take on Luxembourg, Bulgaria and Belarus.

The league phase will be played between September and October before League A quarter-finals and promotion/relegation play-offs take place in March 2025. Single-leg semis and a final will be played in June 2025.

Southgate, (above) said the aim for his side is to gain promotion back to League A. He told Sky Sports: "There's some teams we haven't played for a while, there's going to be some difficult games for us. I think everybody in England will think it was a big disappointment to drop down to League B but you still have difficult games. Obviously our objective will be we have to try to win the group to

Blues finally find their rhythm

Chelsea finally emerged from the crisis that has cast a cloud over the club in stunning fashion Wednesday night as they comprehensively outclassed Aston Villa 3-1, in their FA Cup fourth-round replay.

Villa's formidable home form this season made them firm favourites to reach the last 16 but Chelsea produced a devastating attacking display to ease the pressure on manager Mauricio Pochettino.

Pochettino's short tenure at Stamford Bridge was under severe scrutiny after the 4-2 home defeat by Wolverhampton Wanderers on Sunday left them languishing in 11th place in the Premier League.

Chelsea's cup performances are rescuing their season, already reaching the EFL Cup final against Liverpool at Wembley on 25 February, while this was surely their best performance of the campaign against a Villa side who have lost only two games out of 16 on home territory.

Conor Gallagher set

Chelsea on their way after 11 minutes with a composed right-foot finish at the Holte End, Nicolas Jackson swiftly adding a second with a neat header from Malo Gusto's cross.

Villa's hopes of a comeback were extinguished nine minutes after the interval when Enzo Fernandez curled a magnificent 25-yard free-kick into the top corner, tantalizingly away from the reach of Villa goalkeeper and fellow Argentina World Cup winner Emiliano Martinez.

Substitute Moussa Diaby pulled one back for Villa in stoppage time but it could not even be considered consolation for the home side and Chelsea now face Leeds United at Stamford Bridge in the fifth round.

Chelsea's stock has fallen so low that before kick-off talk of victory for Pochettino's side was being treated as an FA Cup shock.

And no wonder, given the current status of the two sides, with Villa in fourth place chasing Champions League football while Chelsea have been locked in a struggle to find any sort of consistency, culminating in conceding four goals against Liverpool and Wolves in their last two games.

Instead, after an uncertain start, the visitors produced a vibrant attacking display full of variety and threat to take Villa apart in what was an outstanding team performance.

Gallagher and Jackson posed a constant danger while Gusto was the game's outstanding performer at right-back.

It was also a night when Chelsea's big money midfield duo of Fernandez and Moises Caicedo finally looked the part after £220m was spent on acquiring them.

Caicedo provided a calming midfield presence while Fernandez produced a moment of the highest class with the free-kick that effectively sealed the victory.

Pochettino needed this expensive squad to produce a big performance and this was it.
