A Right Royal Mess!

- Kate sorry for digitally-manipulated image
- 'A storm in a teacup' claim royal allies
- Colbert trolls couple over William 'affair'

THE GROWING concern over the health of the Princess of Wales - and the state of her marriage - increased this week as she was forced into an embarrassing apology over a Photoshopped image.

The former Kate Middleton issued an apology for editing her official Mother's Day portrait and took blame for any "confusion" caused - as supporters dismissed the fuss as a storm in a teacup.

The princess, 42, issued her apology on social media after photographic agencies withdrew the official family image released by Kensington Palace, dismissing it with a "kill" notice after discovering it had been altered.

'ridiculous speculation'

In her statement, Kate said: "Like many amateur photographers, I do occasionally experiment with editing.

"I wanted to express my apologies for any confusion the family photograph we shared yesterday caused. I hope everyone celebrating had a very happy Mother's Day. C."

But not everyone agreed she needed to apologise. Former BBC royal correspondent Jennie Bond branded the affair a "storm in a teacup".

She added: "It is unfortunate. The Princess herself has said she's been in an amateurish way trying to edit her picture. She's made a right mess of it.

"The result is a storm of ridiculous speculation about the true state of her health."

conspiracy theories

But Kate's apology did nothing to stem the outpouring of conspiracy theories concerning the Princess's health as obsessives combed every detail of the image for any inconsistencies.

The photograph of Kate with her sons Princes George, 10, Louis, five, and daughter Princess Charlotte, eight, was taken by the Prince of Wales and was the first to be issued since her abdominal surgery on January 16.

Kensington Palace have refused to release the original unedited photo despite facing repeated calls to do so.

The image had been released to reassure the public amid escalating conspiracy theories online over the state of Kate's health in recent weeks - but instead of calming fears it only increased speculation, sparking what is being dubbed "Kategate" and even "Sleevegate".

Concerns were raised over a missing part of Princess Charlotte's sleeve and the misaligned edge of her skirt, with other speculation including the positioning of Kate's zip.

Social media users suspected the foliage in the background suggested the photograph may have been taken last autumn. Meanwhile, the fact Kate was not wearing her wedding or engagement rings aroused suspicion in others.

'massive own goal'

Public relations and crisis consultant Mark Borkowski called the edited photograph affair a "massive own goal".

And American TV star Stephen Colbert brought another embarrassing issue into the mainstream

FINGERS CROSSED? the Mother's Day image taken by the Princess of Wales which ignited a firestorm of controversy - and reignited gossip about a possible affair on Tuesday, trolling the royals on The Late Show on Tuesday night by referring to an affair Prince William is widely alleged to have had with his neighbor Rose Hanbury.

Back in April 2019, several US outlets reported on palace lawyers' attempts to suppress the affair by issuing stern legal notices to British publications, cautioning them not to write about it.

At the time, official sources in Kensington Palace claimed that the allegations were "totally wrong and false." Royal law firm Harbottle and Lewis issued letters to the British media stating that the stories were "false and highly damaging."

British newspapers contented themselves with reporting that there had been a terrible argument between former friends Kate and Rose, but were coy about cont. on page 2, col. 1 stating the cause of the falling out.

Colbert said in his opening monolog that "internet sleuths" were guessing that Kate's "absence may be related to her husband and the future king of England, William, having an affair."

'rumors of an affair'

"Oh no. My heart goes out to poor Kate. Now let's dish the hot goss, I am ready to spill the tea!" Colbert said, appropriately holding...a cup of tea.

Colbert mocked the fact that Rose's married name, Cholmondeley, is pronounced Chumley, and the name of her husband David Rocksavage as "sounding less like a British noble and more like a musician from The Flintstones."

Colbert said there had been "rumors of an affair... since 2019." He referred to reports at the time, flashing up a still from Cosmopolitan, which reported that when Kate allegedly confronted William about the affair, "he laughed it off, saying there was nothing to it."

"Always a good response when your wife accuses you of cheating," Colbert said.

No 10 braced for more defections as Lee Anderson quits for Reform UK

■ Rishi Sunak warned by some in his own party he 'cannot pretend any longer' his strategy is working

Downing Street is braced for more defections after their former deputy chairman quit to join the Reform UK party this week.

The embarrassing move from Lee Anderson has prompted MPs to warn Rishi Sunak that he "cannot pretend any longer" his strategy is working.

Anderson's defection will alarm former colleagues worried at support draining away to the Nigel Farage-formed party. Anderson lost the party whip last month over comments he made about Sadiq Khan, which were condemned as Islamophobic.

"I want my country back," Anderson told an occasionally chaotic Westminster press conference on Monday morning in a populism-charged address that echoed his language about the mayor of London.

Standing alongside Richard Tice, the Reform leader, a bullish Anderson, who was a Labour councillor in Ashfield before switching to the Tories to win the Nottinghamshire seat in the 2019 general election, promised to help his new party "fight back in the culture war".

Neither Tice nor Anderson would comment directly on speculation about other defections, but the Reform leader said he would be "surprised" if no one else followed suit. While some Tory MPs said they believed the defection would not be repeated, one senior backbencher on the right of the party said they anticipated others could follow.

'sad to leave'

"I think that the red wall is pretty demoralised at the moment, not least because of what Lee has just done and I think that there will be some people from the same part of the country who might well decide to go," they said.

The New Conservatives grouping of MPs, led by Danny Kruger and Miriam Cates, said that while they criticised Anderson's move for making a Labour election victory more likely, it was the responsibility of Sunak and his party to keep MPs on side.

"I want my country back": Reform leader Richard Tice (right) with his new and only MP, Lee Anderson at a press conference in London on Monday

"Our poll numbers show what the public think of our record since 2019," they said in a statement. "We cannot pretend any longer than the plan is working. We need to change course urgently."

The defection gives Reform UK, formed by Farage as the Brexit party in 2018 after he exited an imploding Ukip, its first MP.

Even if no other Tory MPs join Anderson, his presence as an MP and as an experienced and often outspoken media performer, with a presenting job with GB News, will increase media coverage for Reform, which is polling at about 13% but has struggled to break through under Tice.

Speaking to reporters after the press conference, Anderson said he had been convinced to make the move after his parents, who live in his Ashfield constituency, told him they would not be able to vote for him if he remained a Conservative.

"I've got a lot of [Conservative] friends that sit on the benches with me, who have shown me a hell of a lot of support," he said. "So I'll be sad to leave them, but if I'm honest, unfortunately a lot of my colleagues won't be there in a year's time."

Asked if he thought he would still be an MP after the election, Anderson said he would: "My mailbag tells me I'm going to win."

He ruled out resigning to then stand for his new party in a byelection, saying this would be pointless when there might be a general election as early as May.

Addressing the press conference, Anderson used language reminiscent of that he used about Khan, in which he said the London mayor, who is Muslim, had "given our capital city away to his mates".

"My opinions are not controversial," he said. "They are opinions which are shared by millions of people up and down the country."

"Now, like millions of people in this country, I feel that we are slowly giving our country away. We are giving away our way of life. We are allowing people to erase our history. We are giving up our streets to a minority of people who literally hate our way of life. We are letting people into our country that will never integrate or adopt our British values."

New plan will offer migrants money to leave for Rwanda

MIGRANTS will be offered thousands of pounds to encourage them to move to Rwanda, under a new government plan.

Failed asylum seekers could be given up to £3,000 to board a flight to Kigali voluntarily after an agreement was struck between the UK and Rwandan governments.

The deal—separate to the controversial deportation scheme—is designed to resolve the crisis of tens of thousands of migrants being stuck in the UK illegally.

They will be eligible to move to Rwanda under the "voluntary returns scheme" after having their asylum application rejected.

Dogs really DO make us feel much yappier

IF you think spending quality time with a dog makes you feel happier, then you're barking up the right tree, according to the latest study.

It suggests interacting with man's best friend actually changes our brainwaves for the better.

In tests, people were asked to carry out a number of tasks with a well-trained four-year-old poodle, including giving her treats and taking her for walks.

And scientists discovered the dog-friendly activities did not just boost relaxation and concentration levels, but actually reduced feelings of stress and depression.

Most studies into the benefits of dogs don't differentiate between the effects of different types of interactions, such as grooming or playing.

To understand how each activity impacts our wellbeing, Onyoo Yoo and colleagues at Konkuk University, in South Korea, recruited 30 adults to spend time with the poodle.

They wore electrodes to record their brains' activity while they played with a hand-held toy, gave the dog treats, massaged the pooch, hugged, walked took selfies with her.

Walking and playing produced brainwaves that reflected a state of "relaxed wakefulness". Playing also raised concentration levels, along with grooming and massaging.

And after all of the activities, participants said they felt significantly less tired, depressed and stressed.

The researchers say the results of the study, published in journal Plos One, provide strong evidence of the benefits of "animal-assisted interventions" or pet therapy – already used in some hospitals and schools to boost mental health.

New legal setback for Andrew Tate

■ Romanian court rules controversial influencer can be extradited to UK

Andrew Tate, the controversial online influencer known for his misogynistic views, can be extradited to Britain to face sex crime charges after their trial in Romania concludes, the Bucharest Court of Appeal said on Tuesday.

The news came after a British police force secured a European arrest warrant for allegations of rape and human trafficking.]

Bedfordshire officers said they were working with authorities in Romania as part of an investigation into the 37-year-old and his brother Tristan, 35.

The pair were detained on Tuesday and appeared at the Bucharest appeal court where it was ruled they would be extradited following legal proceedings there.

The allegations, which the pair "unequivocally deny", date between 2012 and 2015.

They were released from police custody following the hearing.

Lawyers representing four women who accuse Tate of rape and sexual assault said they wrote to UK police to request his detention over fears he would flee Romania.

In response to the claims made by law firm

McCue Jury & Partners, Tate's spokeswoman said: "We unequivocally deny any accusations that Andrew or Tristan Tate intends to abscond from Romania to evade the judicial proceedings.

"Our clients are fully committed to...defending their reputation."

The law firm said the four British accusers were the subject of an investigation by police in Hertfordshire which was closed in 2019.

The brothers' lawyer Eugen Vidineac said: "This ruling provides an opportunity for the brothers to participate fully in their defence."

In a separate case, the Tates are charged with rape, human trafficking and forming a criminal gang to sexually exploit women in Romania, alongside two local women.

All four deny the allegations.

Mr. Tate, who regularly uses various social media platforms to broadcast his virulent brand of male chauvinism, was photographed being taken into custody wearing a black hoodie bearing the characteristically bombastic wording 'Top G'. He later posted on Tuesday morning, "The Matrix is afraid, but I only fear God."

Foreign ownership of UK newspapers to be banned

Foreign governments will be banned from owning UK newspapers and news magazines, a minister has confirmed.

It follows concern over the proposed takeover of the Daily Telegraph and The Spectator by investment fund Redbird IMI, majority-owned by United Arab Emirates vice-president Sheikh Mansour bin Zayed Al Nahyan, owner of Manchester City.

In the face of cross-party pressure and a threatened defeat in the Lords, the Government said it will bring forward an amendment to the Digital Markets, Competition and Consumers Bill to block such deals.

Speaking in the Lords, media minister Lord Parkinson of Whitley Bay said: "The Government is committed to bringing forward an amendment to this Bill at third reading which prevents foreign state ownership of newspapers.

"We will amend the media merger regime explicitly to rule out newspaper and periodical news magazine mergers involving ownership, influence or control by foreign states."

The new measures will require the Culture Secretary to refer cases to the Competitions and Markets Authority through a new foreign state intervention notice if it is feared a merger would give control to a foreign state.

LadyStowell, chair of the Lords Communications and Digital Committee, said it is "inconceivable" a foreign government should be able to own a UK news group.

She added: "Freedom of the press is fundamental to a functioning democracy. Because what freedom of the press means is freedom from government.

"The freedom for the media to scrutinise and hold to account those of us in Parliament on behalf of the electorate who get to choose who governs and every government's fate.

"Upholding that unbroken principle which we have protected for centuries is what has prevented any UK government from owning or controlling the press."

Hand sanitizer is out...vinyl is back in

AS the world turns, so too do vinyl records once again – and their revival is now reflected in the official “shopping basket” measure for inflation.

The Office for National Statistics has put traditional discs back on its list for the first time in 32 years.

And hand sanitizer is out in a welcome departure from the Covid years.

Every month, the ONS measures inflation – that is to say, how past prices are increasing, or decreasing – for British households. To do that, the statisticians must work out how budgets are normally spent.

The ONS has a “basket” of over 740 goods and services that they think people are most likely buy.

But, over time, what people buy changes, and the ONS swaps items in and out of that list.

For instance, in 1992, as CDs and cassettes increased in popularity, the ONS removed vinyl records from the basket. But now those tables have turned, with vinyl back in and tapes nowhere to be seen.

Another addition to the list is a result of the energy crisis. As bills have soared, more households have turned to the air fryer – with manufacturers claiming they are a lower-energy way of cooking.

There is a happier sign of the times in the removal of hand sanitizers, which were added to the basket in 2021 as Covid restrictions continued.

Other additions this year include gluten-free bread, rice cakes, sunflower and pumpkin seeds, in a move to healthier eating, and women’s socks as fashions change and thermostats are turned down.

Boris ‘like an absent football manager’, Covid inquiry told

The first minister of Wales has said Boris Johnson was like the “absent manager” of a football team in the early days of the pandemic.

Mark Drakeford criticised the former prime minister during his evidence to the UK COVID public inquiry.

He said Mr Johnson was “not taking it seriously” and was deliberately unclear about whether rules applied only to England.

In evidence on Wednesday, he also described Michael Gove – who had been the point of contact between Westminster and the Welsh government – as “a centre forward without a team lined up behind him, and where the manager was largely absent”.

Mr Drakeford, who is stepping down next week, added: “The absent manager was the prime minister, because he was never in these meetings or at the table.”

He was speaking in Cardiff, where the Wales module of the inquiry has been taking place over the last few weeks.

The first minister said in early 2020 he had “regularly” written to Mr Johnson to request a “predictable series of meetings” between him and the leaders of the UK nations, and that it was “extraordinary” he did not take on the proposal.

Mr Johnson previously told the inquiry he was against the idea as he did not want to give the impression the country was like a “mini EU”.

Mr Drakeford also claimed that large events such as the Cheltenham Festival were only allowed to go ahead because former Number 10 adviser Dominic Cummings had refused to halt them.

The first minister said he had made the argument to stop mass events at a meeting of the government’s emergency Cobra committee on 12 March, a few weeks before the first lockdown.

However, he claimed that after going around the room canvassing opinions, Mr Johnson killed off the idea by saying bluntly: “Dom says no.”

‘Lack of clarity’

“I did not know who Dom was at this point,” Mr Drakeford said.

Hancock ‘got basic thing entirely wrong’

He also claimed Mr Johnson was “deliberate” in ignoring pleas to be clear about whether new restrictions only applied to England.

Mr Drakeford said the then prime minister had assured the devolved administrations he would “do his very best” – but then delivered a TV address where he incorrectly gave the impression he was talking about the whole UK.

Former health secretary Matt Hancock also came in for criticism.

Mr Drakeford told the inquiry Mr Hancock had incorrectly stated health was not a devolved matter during an “extraordinary exchange of messages” with Mr Gove.

He also said there was initially a “lack of clarity” over which legislative powers would be used during the pandemic.

“Even on 20 March there is further confusion over the next couple of days as to where the ability to exercise public health powers lie,” said Mr Drakeford.

“And there is an extraordinary exchange of messages between Mr Gove and Mr Hancock on 30 May, in which Mr Hancock says ‘I’ve seen the submission, it’s disgraceful that lawyers don’t understand where these powers lie because public health is not devolved’.”

“So here is the secretary of state for health in England getting the most basic thing entirely wrong,” Mr Drakeford said.

The module on UK decision-making and political governance will soon move on to Northern Ireland.

NHS England will no longer prescribe puberty blockers

Children will no longer routinely be prescribed puberty blockers at gender identity clinics, NHS England has confirmed.

The decision comes after a review found there was “not enough evidence” they are safe or effective.

Puberty blockers, which pause the physical changes of puberty, will now only be available as part of research.

It comes weeks before an independent review into gender identity services in England is due to be published.

An interim report from the review, published in 2022 by Dr Hilary Cass, had earlier found there were “gaps in evidence” around the drugs and called for a transformation in the model of care for children with gender-related distress.

Dr Cass’s review follows a sharp rise in referrals to the Gender Identity Development Service (Gids), run by the Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust, which saw an increase from 250 per year to over 5,000 in 2022.

Puberty suppressing hormones – more commonly known as puberty blockers – work by suppressing the release of hormones that cause puberty and are often prescribed to children questioning their gender as a way of stopping physical changes such as breast development or facial hair.

Fewer than 100 young people in England are currently prescribed puberty blockers by the NHS. They will all be able to continue their treatment.

NHS England held a public consultation on their usage and last year introduced an interim policy which stated they should only be given as part of research trials or in “exceptional circumstances”.

Health Minister Maria Caulfield said: “We have always been clear that children’s safety and wellbeing is paramount, so we welcome this landmark decision by the NHS.”

“Ending the routine prescription of puberty blockers will help ensure that care is based on evidence, expert clinical opinion and is in the best interests of the child.”

Surfers' delight as Severn Bore reaches five star status

THE FAMED Severn Bore reached its peak 'five star' status this week for the first time in five years - attracting hundreds of kayakers and surfers eager to enjoy the waves.

The bore is a tidal surge wave that occurs in the estuary of the River Severn when water is funneled into the narrow channel as the tide rises. A bore the size of the Severn's is unusual - making the West Country river a mecca for inland wave enthusiasts.

Due to the excessive rainy weather of the past month, the Environment

Agency has put in place red alert warnings for the River Severn and River Wye and Lloyd Russell, who has travelled from Cornwall to surf the river, described the experience as "quite fun", despite the mud and smell.

He said: "It's muddy, it's dirty, it's not glamorous. Everything smells. A little bit of poo and muddy rivers."

"You get out of the river and you're absolutely caked in mud. It's quite fun really. Sliding down the river banks."

When waves enter the Bristol Channel, and subsequently the River

Severn, they bottleneck, slowing and narrowing substantially to fit the decreasing space.

The funnelled water begins to build in height, exacerbated by the increasingly shallow floor of the estuary. Above a sandbar the channel narrows sharply again, concentrating the bore, creating the iconic roaring sound that accompanies the surge upstream.

The first man known to have surfed the bore was Jack Churchill - a World War II veteran famous for carrying a Scottish broadsword into battle, and being the only allied soldier to kill a man with a longbow. An extraordinarily eccentric man, he surfed a mile and a half upriver in 1955.

A group of Cornish lifeguards followed his feat in 1962, and the longest successful surf now yields a spot in the Guinness Book of Records. The top spot has changed hands many times over the years, but the current holder is Steve King, a Gloucestershire rail engineer, who surfed the Severn for 7.6 miles in 2006.

1966 saw the highest ever recorded bore - at a whopping nine feet, one inch.

The tidal range in Bristol - which is the difference in height between low tide and high tide - is the second highest in the world. This is why the waves can be so good, but they only happen when the tide goes over a certain height so the conditions have to be perfect for the best waves to surf.

There are between 250 and 260 tidal bores in the Severn Estuary a year, but this week's roller is expected to be the only five-star bore of the year.

Migrants:

A government source said: "We hope there will be failed asylum seekers out there who have no right to benefits or work in the UK, might be in hotels for prolonged periods of time and may want to take up the opportunity."

The scheme is expected to be particularly effective for failed asylum seekers who cannot be deported back to their home countries, such as Afghanistan or Iran.

It is the first time the UK has attempted such a move with a third country. Migrants voluntarily leaving on a deportation flight can receive up to £3,000 in support.

Asylum seekers who choose to be relocated will get the same support as those sent to Kigali under the forced deportation scheme.

The volunteers will get help and housing from the Rwandan authorities for up to five years, as well as integration programmes to help them study, undertake training and work.

The National Audit Office revealed the UK will pay Rwanda £171,000 for every migrant relocated to Rwanda. This is in addition to the £370million London will give Kigali.

Migrants will be told they will be able to work in Rwanda, something they are barred from doing after arriving illegally in the UK.

Britain's asylum bill has ballooned to £3.97billion, compared with £500million 10 years ago.

Downing Street is said to have pushed the plan and ministers believe it will save taxpayers money.

The Home Office last year rejected 30,967 asylum applications. More than 19,000 foreign nationals opted to leave the UK voluntarily, including 4,010 failed asylum seekers.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF ROSE MARIE SMITH

Case No. 24STPB02038
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of ROSE MARIE SMITH

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Lucille Baker in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Lucille Baker be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on March 25, 2024 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 99 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Six-star performance from red-hot Reds

Liverpool thrashed Sparta Prague 6-1 at Anfield on Thursday to complete a resounding aggregate victory as they moved in the quarter-finals of the Europa League.

Already 5-1 ahead after a dominant first-leg showing in the Czech Republic, Darwin Nunez's opener was the first of four goals in seven first-half minutes as the Reds overwhelmed their opponents.

And by full-time the hosts had run up their biggest aggregate win in a European competition since the 11-2 success over Finnish side Oulun Palloseura in the first round of the European Cup 1980-81.

Dominik Szoboszlai's precise cut-back allowed Uruguay forward Nunez to start the rout, as he registered his ninth goal in 11 games, by guiding a low effort into the bottom right corner.

Bobby Clark, the son of former Newcastle midfielder Lee, capped a fine first European start with his first senior goal just 68 seconds later, with the teenager rolling the ball past visiting goalkeeper Peter

Vindahl as Sparta gifted Liverpool possession on the edge of their own box

An almost identical error from the visitors allowed Mohamed Salah to stroke in a third for Jurgen Klopp's side and the Egyptian then turned provider with a near-post cross for Cody Gakpo to add a fourth.

Sparta did briefly stem the tide and Veljko Birmancevic outpaced Wataru Endo to steer the ball past home goalkeeper Caoimhin Kelleher shortly before the break.

It provided a fleeting moment of joyous celebration for the visiting supporters on an otherwise dismal evening for the Czech champions on Merseyside.

With an FA Cup quarter-final at rivals Manchester United on the horizon on Sunday, Klopp withdrew Joe Gomez, Endo and Nunez at the interval but the hosts showed no signs of relenting.

Szoboszlai's deflected effort shortly after the break put the home side into double figures across the two legs and Gakpo's improvised flick from substitute Harvey Elliott's curling shot rounded off matters.

Cherries and Hatters serve up Premier League classic

On a night when all eyes were on the Champions League, the Premier League witnessed its biggest comeback win in more than 20 years on Wednesday night.

Away from the television cameras and the drama in Madrid and Dortmund, Bournemouth and Luton played out one of the most extraordinary Premier League matches of this or any recent season.

Bournemouth won 4-3, having been three goals down at the break.

Dominic Solanke's exquisite turn and finish started the comeback five minutes after half-time, and after Illia Zabarnyi bundled in a header for 2-3, Antoine Semenyo completed the comeback with a pair of powerful finishes - the second with only six minutes remaining.

It meant Bournemouth became only the fifth team in Premier League history to win a match in which they trailed by three goals, and just the third to do so in a game where they were 3-0 down at half-time.

The others to achieve this feat were Manchester United in beating Spurs 5-3 in September 2001 and Wolves v Leicester in October 2003.

According to Bournemouth manager Andoni Iraola at half-time. In fact he seemed to say very little to his team, as the Cherries were out for the second half early - so early in fact that it caught the forward off guard.

"I was on the bike actually when everyone was running out so I had to scurry out quickly. It was because we were ready to go and put a performance on for the fans and for ourselves."

Villains wipe the floor with Ajax

■ Emery's men brush aside Dutch giants to confirm ECL quarter final berth

Aston Villa thrashed Ajax 4-0 at a raucous Villa Park Thursday night to move into the Europa Conference League quarter-finals - their first appearance in the last eight of a major European competition since 1998.

Goals from Ollie Watkins, Leon Bailey, substitute Jhon Duran and Moussa Diaby sealed a thoroughly-deserved victory on a memorable night for the Villa fans.

After it finished 0-0 in the first leg in the Netherlands, Watkins scored his 22nd club goal of the season in all competitions when he superbly headed in Douglas Luiz's right-wing corner in the 25th minute.

However, the England striker, named earlier on Thursday in Gareth Southgate's Three Lions squad for the Wembley friendlies against Brazil and Belgium, went off in the 33rd minute with an injury.

Four-time European champions Ajax nearly scored an equaliser in the fifth minute of first-half injury time, but Matty Cash did excellently to clear Brian Brobbey's effort off the line with keeper Emiliano Martinez well beaten.

Ajax were captained by England midfielder Jordan Henderson in his first club match in the country since leaving Liverpool last summer to join Saudi Arabian side Al-Ettifaq, only to then move to Ajax in January. But Henderson lost possession in the build-up to Villa's second goal, with Bailey producing great skill and two steppers to create space before drilling into the net.

Ajax had midfielder Sivert Mannsverk sent off for two bookable offences in the 66th minute and Duran blasted in a third goal, with the ball going in off the underside of the crossbar. Diaby slotted in a fourth nine minutes from time to confirm their progress.

KUDOS TO HIM: Mohammed Kudus scored twice as West Ham thumped Freiburg

Another memorable night for West Ham

West Ham recorded the biggest European win in their history Thursday night as they swept aside Freiburg 5-0 to overturn a first-leg deficit and march into a third successive quarter-final.

Before the match David Moyes evoked the memories of their comeback win against Sevilla at the same stage of the competition two seasons ago - and this time the Hammers boss got a similar outcome.

Yet unlike that night against the Spaniards, when the home fans were tortured by tension and did not seal victory until extra-time, West Ham had the job wrapped up within an hour against a poor Freiburg side.

Lucas Paqueta pulled them level in the tie after just nine minutes as he slid in unmarked to turn home Tomas Soucek's near-post flick from barely a yard.

Jarrod Bowen continued his excellent season with his 18th strike of the campaign just after the half hour to put West Ham ahead on aggregate.

Veteran defender Aaron Cresswell then scored his first goal in almost two years as the visiting defence allowed him too much space to shoot.

The contest was finished but there was still time for Mohammed Kudus to make an impact as the Ghanaian scored twice in the final 15 minutes as West Ham completed their biggest win since Moyes returned to the club in December 2019.

They have now recorded an impressive 26 European victories in their trio of campaigns under Moyes. Before this run, they had achieved 25 in their history, including in the Intertoto Cup.

Their quarter-final opponents were set to be revealed Friday lunchtime in the UK, after the BW went to press.
