GET BEHIND KATE!

■ Downing Street pleads for restraint as claims of a data breach rock the royals

Downing Street has urged the British public to 'get behind' the Princess of Wales following reports of an alleged data breach of her health records.

Prime Minister Rishi Sunak's spokesman made the call following reports that staff members at the London Clinic, where Kate had her surgery, tried to illegally access her health records.

Three members of staff are thought to be under investigation over the alleged attempt to access Kate's records, ITV reported.

Following the reports, Mr Sunak's spokesman said on Wednesday: "Clearly there are strict rules on patient data that must be followed.

"I think we all want to get behind the Princess of Wales, and indeed the Prince of Wales, and we obviously wish her the speediest of recoveries."

The Princess spent 13 nights in the London Clinic following her abdominal surgery on January 16 but her current condition is unknown, although aides have advised the abdominal issue was non-cancerous.

But Princess has been almost completely absent from the public eye since then - and that vacuum has been filled by ever-more outlandish theories and claims from the general public, on the internet and across the country's airwaves.

Even a video of the Prince and Princess of Wales visiting a Windsor farm shop at the weekend failed to silence the conspiracy theorists.

Rather than dampening down speculation, silence from the Palace has only served to heighten it, and this week came fresh claims that as many as three unauthorised staff members allegedly tried to access Kate's medical records in a major security breach at the clinic.

'enormous pride'

An internal investigation has been launched. The hospital's chief executive Al Russell said: "Everyone at the London Clinic is acutely aware of our individual, professional, ethical and legal duties with regards to patient confidentiality.

"We take enormous pride in the outstanding care and discretion we aim to deliver for all our patients that put their trust in us every day.

"We have systems in place to monitor management of patient information and, in the case of any breach, all appropriate investigatory, regulatory and disciplinary steps will be taken.

"There is no place at our hospital for those who intentionally breach the trust of any of our patients or colleagues."

Health Minister Maria Caulfield suggested that police had launched a probe into the alleged security breach, but the Met said it was not aware that a referral had been made.

The MP, a former nurse, said: "My understanding is that police have been asked to look at it - whether they take action is a matter for them. But the Information Commissioner can also take prosecutions, can also issue fines. Other health regulators can strike you off the register if the breach is serious enough. So there are hefty implications if you are looking at notes for medical records that you should not be looking at."

right to privacy

The alleged data breach occurred after Kate was discharged from hospital on January 29, it was said.

Kensington Palace has declined to confirm or deny the reports and directed enquiries to the hospital. Sources have said that Kate was personally informed about the alleged data breach.

Princess Kate the last time she was seen in public, greeting the crowd after attending a Christmas morning service at Sandringham Church on December 25, 2023, in Sandringham, Norfolk.

Fears the King's medical records may also have been accessed were dismissed late this week.

The monarch, who is undergoing treatment for a form of cancer, was also treated at the London Clinic for an enlarged prostate during the same month. But sources have said that hospital bosses informed Buckingham Palace the alleged breach under investigation did not involve the King.

When asked whether people should give her a break, Downing Street said the Princess has a right to privacy and urged the public to support Kate. The Prime Minister's official spokesman said: "I think we all want to get behind the Princess of Wales, and indeed the Prince of Wales, and we obviously wish her the speediest of recoveries."

The spokesman added: "Everyone in public life has a right to privacy."

Under the Data Protection Act 2018, it is an offence for a person to obtain, disclose or retain personal data without the consent of the data controller.

The ICO can carry out criminal investigations and prosecute individuals where it believes an offence may have been committed. Usually, an assessment of the breach report will be carried out by its criminal investigation team, who will decide whether to proceed in accordance with the Regulatory Action Policy.

This decision includes looking at whether there is sufficient evidence to support a prosecution and whether it is in the public interest to do so.

Kate could also decide to bring a private prosecution with a civil action.

New Welsh first minister makes a little bit of history

■ Vaughan Gething becomes first Black head of government in the UK...and Europe

A Zambian-born lawyer has become the first Black head of government in Wales, in the United Kingdom — and in all of Europe.

Thursday was Vaughan Gething's first full day on the job as Welsh first minister, after being elected by the Welsh parliament in Cardiff a day earlier, and approved by King Charles III.

"Today we turn a page in the book of our nation's history — a history we write together," he said upon taking office. "Not just because I have the honor of becoming the first Black leader in any European country, but because a generational dial has jumped too."

He succeeds Mark Drakeford, who bowed out with an emotional speech on Tuesday, after five years at the helm.

Mr Gething, said he wanted to lead a Wales "full of hope, ambition and unity".

He was backed by 27 Senedd members, Tory Andrew RT Davies had 13 votes and Plaid Cymru's Rhun ap Iorwerth 11.

Mr Gething's name was then sent to the King who gave his approval, allowing the new first minister to officially take office.

In a ceremony in Cardiff Bay, he made an affirmation to the King before a senior judge, allowing him to turn his mind to appointing a cabinet.

At lunchtime the new leader was congratulated by the prime minister in the Commons on Wednesday, and spoke to Rishi Sunak later on Wednesday afternoon.

'matter of pride'

Mr Gething, who represents the Cardiff South and Penarth seat in Cardiff Bay, narrowly won the Welsh Labour leadership election but there have been questions about financial donations to his campaign.

In his first words after being nominated as first minister in the Senedd chamber, Mr Gething, thanked Mr Drakeford "for everything you have done for Wales".

Becoming first minister as a black person was "a matter of pride," he said, "I believe for a modern Wales, but also a daunting responsibility for me that I do not take lightly".

"Today, we can also expect the depressingly familiar pattern to emerge: abuse on social media, racist tropes disguised with polite language.

"People questioning my motives and, yes, they will still question or deny my nationality, whilst others question why I'm 'playing the race card'.

"To those people, I say once more - it is very easy not to care about identity when your own has never once been questioned or held you back."

Mr Gething, 50, said he looked forward to "standing up for Wales and for devolution, in the weeks and months to come".

"But I relish the opportunity to cooperate for Wales with a new UK government that invests in partnership and in Wales' future," he said, anticipating a Labour victory in the UK general election due in the next 10 months."

Mr Gething said he wanted to promote "kinder, more effective politics", over what he called the "forces of division".

"As first minister, I will bring together

GETHING: "it is very easy not to care about identity when your own has never once been questioned or held you back."

a government that constantly makes the positive case for progressive politics.

"To remind people, that only through coming together, can we achieve for the many."

At the start of Prime Ministers Question's in the Commons Rishi Sunak congratulated Mr Gething, and wished his predecessor Mark Drakeford well.

"The government I lead will always work tirelessly to benefit the lives of people across the United Kingdom, and I look forward to working constructively with the new first minister to deliver for the people of Wales," said Mr Sunak.

UK Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer said Mr Gething's ascent to the top of the Welsh government "as the first black leader of any European government - it's a historic moment that speaks to the progress and values of modern-day Wales".

"And I also pay tribute to Mark Drakeford for his long, steady service in Wales."

Mr Gething was congratulated by Welsh

Conservative Senedd group leader Andrew RT Davies, who called on him to make a "fresh start" by scrapping "Labour's vanity projects" and delivering "for our NHS, for our schools and for families up and down Wales".

"Our message to Vaughan is clear. If you are prepared to scrap plans for more politicians, to scrap the 20mph speed limit, and scrap the Sustainable Farming Scheme as it stands in its current form, we will work with you to deliver the people's priorities."

Back down, Sunak tells Tory rebels

RISHI Sunak has taken aim at a minority of Tory rebels who he said were "harming every one of us" while addressing his MPs.

Conservatives reacted warmly to the Prime Minister's performance at the 1922 Committee - with frequent and sustained banging of tables.

He is understood to have said a "small number" of Tories are making him angry, adding that they "aren't just harming me, they are harming every one of us in this room".

MPs slammed the minority of rebels by calling on them to "shut up" and warning they "harm us all".

Former Business Secretary Sir Jacob Rees-Mogg said he was supporting Mr Sunak.

He added "may he go on as long as Walpole", who served as PM for 21 years.

Another Tory MP said Mr Sunak's almost hour-long speech was "the best we've seen him in a while", adding that the address had been an "11 out of 10".

Speaking to journalists afterwards, Tory backbencher Jonathan Gullis insisted there was broad support for the PM, adding he wanted to "call out those idiots for being idiots" when asked about Mr Sunak's critics.

Mr Gullis said: "People don't vote for divided parties." Meanwhile, Sir Jake Berry asked Mr Sunak about supposed briefings against him, a former party chairman, over the weekend that he alleged came from No10. But Sir Jake insisted he would stay loyal and has not submitted a letter of no confidence.

Another welcome supporter was a pro-Boris Johnson MP who blasted those who brought down his predecessor, as he called for party unity.

Sir James Duddridge took aim at his colleagues in a Tory Whatsapp group yesterday, saying:

"Absolutely one team or we fall. Once we failed to back Boris we were *****. You reap what you sow."

Earlier, Mr Sunak clashed with Sir Keir Starmer at the despatch box during Prime Minister's Questions.

The PM claimed the Labour leader's values are "not those of the British people" when Sir Keir accused him of being "scared" to call an election.

Murdoch rags 'unlawfully targeted' Meghan, Harry's lawyer tells London court

PRINCE HARRY has fired off another salvo in his ongoing war against press intrusion, claiming Rupert Murdoch newspapers "unlawfully targeted" the Duchess of Sussex.

The claims came at London's high court on Thursday, with the Prince's legal team claiming a pattern of behavior that dated back more than two decades, including unlawfully accessing the private pager messages of Harry's mother, Diana, Princess of Wales.

Harry's lawyers argued he had experienced a lifetime of "overwhelming intrusion" from Murdoch-owned newspapers – with one example cited relating to an article written when he was nine.

The accusations came a day after Harry's lawyer's directly implicated Rupert Murdoch in the legal battle, claiming the 93-year-old billionaire oversaw a "culture of impunity" at News Group Newspapers (NGN), the publisher of the Sun and the now defunct News of the World.

In written submissions to the high court on Thursday, Harry's lawyers alleged that the publisher had demonstrated a "willingness to engage systemically in unlawful and unethical behaviour ... on an industrial scale" when it came to the duke. This included the "interception of landline calls, the interception of calls from cordless phones and analogue mobile calls, and the interception of landline voicemails", they said.

'double down'

The activity was said to be "known about, encouraged and concealed by those in positions of responsibility" at NGN, including the former News of the World editor Piers Morgan.

Mr Justice Fancourt ruled in July that Harry and more than 40 others – including the actor Hugh Grant and the Labour peer Doreen Lawrence – could not bring a claim relating to phone hacking because it was filed too late. But he ruled that other allegations, such as about use of private investigators and invasion of privacy should go to trial, due to take place in January 2025.

In a three-day hearing at the high court, lawyers for Harry and others sought to change details of their case against NGN to include allegations that senior executives were aware of wrongdoing. In Harry's case, lawyers are seeking to extend the period the court is set to examine to take in from 1994 to 2016, having previously included information from 1996 to 2011.

Anthony Hudson KC, NGN's lawyer, said on Wednesday that the changes appeared "to be designed to grab headlines, and not to progress the individual claims".

On Thursday, Hudson said Harry and his lawyers had "disregarded" the decision to narrow the scope of the trial and had instead "doubled down" and expanded it. In written arguments NGN's team said the amendments should not be allowed as the claims were made too late, lacked evidence and related to phone-hacking claims that had already been dismissed.

secret pager

The new allegations include that Harry's late mother, Diana, "was under close surveillance and her calls were being

Seven jailed for anti-migrant riot

Seven men have been jailed following a violent protest outside a hotel housing asylum seekers.

Police were attacked in the demonstration next to the Suites Hotel in Knowsley, Merseyside, last year.

Liverpool Crown Court heard there was "ill-feeling" in the area after a video on social media appeared to show an asylum seeker from the hotel asking a 15-year-old girl for her number and a kiss.

During the protest, missiles, including paving slabs, were hurled at police, and a police van was set alight. Three officers were injured.

Ringleader Brian McPadden, 61, was jailed for three years and six months after being found guilty of violent disorder at Liverpool Crown Court.

Judge Watson KC said McPadden, from Kirkby, had encouraged others for several hours.

Thomas Mills, 47 – who brought a banner urging people to shout to get the asylum seekers out – got two years and eight months.

Paul Lafferty, 42, was handed the same term while Jonjo O'Donoghue, 21, of Liverpool, was sentenced to three years and six months in a young offenders institution.

All four had pleaded not guilty. Mills and Lafferty were also from Kirkby.

Four others, who previously pleaded guilty, received sentences ranging from 27 months in jail to a 16-month suspended sentence.

Harry's lawyer told the court NGN knew a private investigator had unlawfully obtained the Duchess of Sussex's mobile and social security numbers unlawfully intercepted by NGN, which was known about by its editors and senior executives". Lawyers pointed to a News of the World article which they said showed the papers knew she had a "secret" pager, and the messages contained within it.

Harry's lawyers argue the intrusion into his privacy continued, and allege that in 2016 journalists at the Sun tasked private investigators to target Meghan, then his girlfriend.

David Sherborne, who also represented Harry in his legal victory against Mirror Group Newspapers over allegations of phone hacking and unlawful activities – told the court that a private investigator had "in the full knowledge" of NGN unlawfully obtained the duchess's mobile number and social security number "in order to obtain new information about their relationship, for the purpose of publication in the Sun".

First man jailed under new 'cyber-flashing' regulations

AN ESSEX man who sent an explicit photo to a 15-year-old girl is the first person in England or Wales to be jailed for cyber-flashing.

Nicholas Hawkes was locked up for 66 weeks for sending unsolicited photos of his genitals to the girl and a woman on February 9. Passing sentence at Southend Crown Court, Judge Samantha Leigh said Hawkes was "disturbed" and had a "warped view of himself and his sexuality".

The woman took screenshots of the photo and quickly told police.

Hawkes, of Basildon, Essex, was at the time a registered sex offender after being convicted of sexual activity with a child and an indecent exposure offence. He pleaded guilty in an earlier hearing at Southend magistrates' court to two counts of sending a photograph or film of genitals to cause alarm, distress or humiliation.

Cyber-flashing – where an offender sends unsolicited sexual images to someone via social media, dating apps, Bluetooth or AirDrop, became a specific offence in England and Wales on January 31 in the Online Safety Act. It was made illegal in Scotland in 2010.

Women's social network Communia has found 1 in 3 respondents to a survey had been a victim of cyber-flashing, while the same numbers said that they felt unsafe online.

Hawkes, 39, was given a 10-year restraining order and will be subject to a 15-year Sexual Harm Prevention Order. Last May 12 he stripped at a GP's surgery in Basildon, rubbed hand sanitizer on his genitals and strode around the foyer before leaving.

Jail term for pilot found drunk just before transatlantic flight

■ Delta captain had drunk half a bottle of Jägermeister ahead of scheduled departure from Edinburgh airport

An American pilot, caught over the alcohol limit before he was due to fly a passenger plane from Edinburgh to New York, has been jailed for 10 months.

Lawrence Russell, 63, was searched by airport security officers at about 09:15 on 16 June last year. He was found to have two bottles of Jägermeister in his carry on luggage - one of which was half full.

A breath test revealed the Delta Airlines captain was more than twice the legal alcohol limit for pilots.

Edinburgh Sheriff Court heard Russell, from Georgia, has been treated for alcoholism.

The court heard Russell had not less than 49mg of alcohol in 100ml of blood.

This exceeded the strict legal limit which is 20mg of alcohol.

Sheriff Alison Stirling said a prison sentence had to be imposed as a punishment and for the "protection of the public".

The court previously heard the pilot was to take control of a Boeing 767 flight from Edinburgh Airport to JFK Airport in New York, which was due to take off at 10:35.

'reckless disregard'

His bags were selected for inspection by security staff who were said to have "noted Mr Russell was wearing a pilot uniform, a lanyard around his neck and a Delta Airline crew pass".

The captain was "identified as the owner of the bag", which contained two bottles of the herbal liqueur.

Fiscal depute Matthew Millar told the court one of the bottles had been opened and was "half full".

Mr Millar said: "Given Mr Russell was wearing a pilot uniform the police were contacted.

"Mr Russell identified himself to the constables and said he was the captain of the aircraft."

He provided police with a sample of breath and, after being arrested, was taken to Livingston police station, West Lothian, where he provided a blood sample.

Following the pilot's arrest, the flight to New York was cancelled and Delta Airlines confirmed all the passengers were then helped with their travel plans.

On Tuesday the court heard the father-of-two also has two previous convictions for driving while under the influence of alcohol in the US.

Lawrence Russell: the Georgia native has two previous DUI convictions in the U.S.

Defence lawyer Pamela Rodgers said her client was a recovering alcoholic who had not drunk alcohol for 277 days and had completed the 12 Steps to Recovery rehab programme.

Ms Rodgers said Russell was just the fourth pilot to be prosecuted in Scotland for attempting to fly while under the influence of alcohol and was "remorseful" for his actions.

Lynne Barrie, procurator fiscal for Lothian and Borders, said: "Lawrence Russell's conduct would have endangered many lives; the consequences could have been catastrophic.

"He showed a reckless disregard for the safety of his passengers and crew. The pilot of a commercial aircraft holds the lives of hundreds in his hands. He would have put all of them at serious risk.

Divers hunt Scilly El Dorado

DIVERS are set to begin a treasure hunt for the most valuable shipwreck in history – worth an estimated £4billion.

The Merchant Royal, a 17th-century English vessel known as "the El Dorado of the seas", sank in bad weather near the Isles of Scilly in 1641.

It was returning to Dartmouth laden with gold, silver and jewels from Mexico.

King Charles I called it the "greatest lost sustained in one ship".

In 2019, a massive anchor was found off Cornwall, and experts speculated it belonged to the Merchant Royal.

Now, an expert dive team has been recruited by Cornish Multibeam Services to start the multi-million pound search next month.

Team leader Nigel Hodge said: "We've got state of the art technology, and one of the best dive teams in the world. We will definitely find it. We've found everything we've ever looked for."

Kiwi pol laughs off rumpus over Chumbawamba lyrics

New Zealand's deputy prime minister Winston Peters says he "does not care" about a row over using Chumbawamba hit Tubthumping at a political rally.

The band, an anarchist punk band formed in Burnley in 1982 and disbanded in 2012, have accused Peters of "hijacking" the song and had asked their recording label to issue a "cease and desist" letter.

"It seems the media care more about the Chumbawamba story than we do. We actually don't care," Mr Peters said.

"There's nothing to 'cease or desist'," he wrote on X on Wednesday.

Mr Peters, who leads the right-wing New Zealand First Party that is part of the governing coalition, walked on to stage to Tubthumping ahead of a controversial speech last weekend.

He ended by referring to its famous lyrics, saying: "We got knocked down, but we got up again."

The band protested, saying they did not support his political views and did not want him to use their song during his rallies.

But Mr Peters said on Wednesday, "The song worked like a charm for our first public meeting after the election. The over 700 people in the crowd thought so too."

Though the band released several singles, Mr Peters took aim at Tubthumping being Chumbawamba's biggest Upsetting the anarchists: Winston Peters commercial success.

"I would use another of their hit song titles as a quip at the end of this post but unfortunately they only had one," he wrote on X.

Chumbawamba's former lead singer and one of its founding members, Dunstan Bruce, told the BBC that the song was written about a large mixed and migrant population coming together in Leeds in the UK.

"For this guy, Winston Peters, to then try and hijack the song and use it as part of his campaign, where he is expressing political views that I find quite egregious, I just thought that that's not something that we could just sit back and let happen."

Cockney Rebel frontman Steve Harley dead at 73

■ Singer was best known for his 1975 smash, Make Me Smile (Come Up And See Me)

Steve Harley, the frontman of the British rock group Cockney Rebel, has died aged 73.

The English singer and songwriter, best known for his 1975 song Make Me Smile (Come Up and See Me), had been receiving treatment for cancer. He died at his Suffolk home on Sunday morning.

In a statement, his family said: "We are devastated to announce that our wonderful husband and father has passed away peacefully at home, with his family by his side.

"The birdsong from his woodland that he loved so much was singing for him. His home has been filled with the sounds and laughter of his four grandchildren. Whoever you know him as, his heart exuded only core elements. Passion, kindness, generosity.

And much more, in abundance."

Harley's family said they knew the singer would be "desperately missed by people all over the world".

Harley was born in south-east London in 1951 and spent almost four years in hospital as a child after contracting polio. At the age of 17, he joined the Daily Express as a trainee accountant before working as a journalist for several regional newspapers including the East London Advertiser.

At his peak: Steve Harley performing in 1975

Cockney Rebel rose to prominence in the early 1970s with their glam rock music. The original band was made up of Harley, Jean-Paul Crocker, drummer Stuart Elliott, bassist Paul Jeffreys and guitarist Nick Jones.

Their debut studio album, The Human Menagerie, was released in 1973. The group's other hits included a cover of Here Comes the Sun, which was released in 1976. Harley branched out as a solo artist before the band regrouped in 1990 on the back of the success of Harley's 1989 tour. The band's biggest hit,

Make Me Smile (Come Up and See Me), has sold about 1.5m copies and has been covered more than 120 times, including by Robbie Williams and Duran Duran.

Harley also presented the BBC Radio 2 show Sounds of the 70s from 1999 to 2008. The show is now hosted by Johnnie Walker.

Single noise complaint silences centuries-old Devon church bells

A village church bell that had rung for 150 years was silenced after a noise complaint from one local resident.

The clock on St John the Baptist church in the Devon village of Witheridge used to ring every 15 minutes, 24 hours a day. But it was muffled last December after the noise complaint.

The clock has since been allowed to chime again in the daytime, with the parish council installing a £2,000 silencer, meaning the bell will ring out once an hour between 7am and 11pm.

The unnamed complainant had contacted North Devon council, who slapped the parish with a noise abatement order on December 22.

Local residents started a petition for the church bell to be allowed to ring again, gaining 300 signatures.

I believe one person's grievance should not change or affect the joy of many," one petition signer said.

"For hundreds of years the bells have chimed, and it's criminal to silence them now!"

Another resident added: "It's a church clock

– it's meant to chime!

A third said: "We should keep the clock chiming. It's a part of the church and a traditional part of village life.

Rev Adrian Wells, the church's vicar, said that the silencer was a "good compromise".

He told the BBC: "It is lovely to have the chimes and bells back during the day. The clock is a real focal point for the village."

Rev Wells added: "Its original purpose was to call people in from their work in the fields, so I accept it is probably quite loud, but I have got used to it."

ROCK OF AGES:
Michael McKean in
Spinal Tap 2

Spinal Tap cast rock up for long-awaited sequel

FORTY years on, fans of This Is Spinal Tap will surely hope the mock-rock's sequel goes all the way to 11.

The reunited cast were snapped this week filming Spinal Tap 2 and have once again nailed the look of an ageing heavy metal band. The 1984 "mockumentary" followed a US tour by fictional fading UK rockers Spinal Tap as it descended into farce, break-ups and mini-Stonehenge sets.

The movie's most-quoted line has guitarist Nigel Tufnel (Christopher Guest) claiming his speakers are louder than rivals' ones which are marked as Volume 1 to 10, since "these go to 11".

It was directed by Rob Reiner, now 77, and he is also helping the long-awaited sequel: Guest returns as Nigel, Michael McKean as lead singer David St Hubbins and Harry Shearer is again hapless bass player Derek Smalls.

The film covers the band reuniting for a final gig, 15 years on from the last live show in 2009.

Taylor-Johnson told: the Bond job's yours if you want it

British actor yet to comment on career-making offer

TABLOID speculation was mounting this week that actor Aaron Taylor-Johnson will be the next James Bond.

The British star has been "formally offered the opportunity" to be the next 007, it was reported this week.

After years of speculation, Kick-Ass star Aaron, 33, is expected to sign a contract later this week despite apparently not yet formally saying yes.

A source close to the negotiations said: "Bond is Aaron's job, should he wish to accept it. The formal offer is on the table and they are waiting to hear back.

"As far as [producers] Eon are concerned, Aaron is going to sign his contract in the coming days and they can start preparing for the big announcement."

The Bucks-born actor has yet to comment publicly on the offer. But responding to rumours last week, he said: "I find it charming and wonderful that people see me in that role. I take it as a great compliment."

He would replace Daniel Craig, 56.

A-list contenders Tom Hardy, Henry Cavill, Idris Elba and recent Oscar winner Cillian Murphy were thought to be the favourites for the role.

Aaron has appeared in several major Hollywood films, including Nocturnal Animals, Nowhere Boy and Avengers: Age of Ultron.

Married to the Fifty Shades of Grey director Sam Taylor-Johnson, 57, he plays the titular role in forthcoming Marvel film Kraven the Hunter.

The next Bond movie is rumoured to have Oscar-winning Oppenheimer director Christopher Nolan, 53, at the helm. He is said to want to set it in the same period as Ian Fleming's novels – the 50s and 60s.

A source said: "He is extremely interested in doing something very different with the franchise."

Aaron has appeared in several major Hollywood films, including Nocturnal Animals, Nowhere Boy and Avengers: Age of Ultron

He started his acting career in 2000's The Apocalypse, opposite Richard Harris, and appeared in 2008 teen movie Angus, Thongs And Perfect Snogging and 2022's Bullet Train with Brad Pitt.

Insiders said Aaron's performance as a psychopath in 2016 thriller Nocturnal Animals, which saw him win a Golden Globe for Best Supporting Actor, opened the door to the Bond role.

A source said: "Aaron may not be the best known in his field but he is an incredibly talented actor.

"His role in Nocturnal Animals showed his depth as an actor.

"He is the perfect person to play Bond and will pick up well from where Daniel left off."

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF RAIMO AULIS ANTTILA

Case No. 23STPB07743
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of RAIMO AULIS ANTTILA

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Seija Gerdt in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Andrew Brody be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on April 5, 2024 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 67 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Dame Laura Kenny hangs up her bike

■ Britain's most successful female Olympian won gold in 2012, 2016 and 2020

Cycling legend Dame Laura Kenny has announced her retirement from the sport after a glittering career on the track.

The 31-year-old has won five Olympic golds and seven World Championship titles and fans hoped she would compete at this summer's Paris Games.

But on Tuesday Dame Laura told reporters: "I always knew deep down I would know when was the right time. I have had an absolute blast but now is the time for me to hang that bike up."

Dame Laura – the most successful British female Olympian – gave birth to her first son, Albie, in 2017. She returned to cycling, eager to prove athletes could juggle the demands of sport with motherhood.

After a miscarriage in late 2021 and an ectopic pregnancy just months later, Dame Laura and fellow cycle superstar Sir Jason, 35 – Britain's most decorated Olympian – welcomed their second son, Monty, in 2023.

But she said spending time at home was proving more and more alluring to her.

She added: "It's been in my head a little while, the sacrifices of leaving the children and your family at home is really a big decision to make. More and more, I was struggling to do that. More people asking me what races was I doing, what training camps was I going on – I didn't want to go ultimately and that's what it came down to. I knew the minute I was getting those feelings. Once I said to Jase, 'I don't think I want to ride a bike anymore', I started to feel relief."

Dame Laura won team pursuit and omnium gold at both the 2012 and 2016 Olympic Games and madison gold at the 2020 Olympics, where she also won a silver medal in the team pursuit.

She is a seven-time world champion and 14-time European champ, won two Commonwealth Games titles and was British National Road Race champion in 2014.

She said the logistics of being on the road with Albie during her bid to compete in the 2020

"The sacrifices of leaving the children and your family at home is really a big decision to make."

Olympics in Tokyo – delayed a year because of Covid – were stressful.

She added: "Taking Albie around the world and qualifying for the Tokyo Olympics was carnage. I think Jason and I had this way of painting this really beautiful, easy picture that everyone wants: you can have a baby, you can come back and you can go on to win a gold medal – and it looks easy, and I'm telling you, it was far from easy, it was absolute carnage."

"And there were so many sacrifices along the way; there were so many flights I had to book. It was expensive. It worked, yes. But it didn't come without some serious heartbreak and sacrifices."

"Going on to win another gold medal, as much as I would love to do that, wasn't giving me the energy I wanted. I wasn't thinking, 'I really want to go on and win one'. I was thinking, 'I want to stay at home with the children'."

Made a Dame in the 2021 New Year's Honours, she said she hopes to be at Paris "in some capacity" and wants to stay involved with the GB cycling team.

She said: "There's nothing set in stone but there are things I'm so interested in doing. Something to help the younger generation, whether that could be some kind of academy.

"I could never be a coach because that's just too much pressure, but maybe something in the background that would help the youngsters have the opportunities I had."

Great Britain team performance director Stephen Park said: "Laura hangs up her wheels as not just one of the sport's greatest riders, but as one of the greatest sporting talents our country has produced. She has been a beacon of inspiration for so many, young and old."

Maguire:

But I feel like what he's done from when he first took over this job to where we are at now, we've taken huge strides and he's a massive part of that."

While Maguire's focus is on the Euros rather than the next World Cup, the reality of the situation is that if England do well this summer and Southgate signs a new deal, he will lead England in their campaign to the United States, Canada and Mexico in two years' time.

"We want to be successful in the Euros," Maguire said. "We are not looking at the World Cup at the moment. If Gareth's the man to make us be successful then we want him to stay as long as possible."

Southgate is less popular with the wider public than he was at the start of his reign, but Maguire insisted he is still as respected as ever among the squad.

Let the dragon roar!

■ Welsh joy as 4-1 victory confirms Euro 2024 play-off final berth

Wales will face Poland for a place at Euro 2024 after beating Finland convincingly in their play-off semi-final in Cardiff on Thursday night.

David Brooks gave the home side the perfect start as he volleyed in on the rebound after Harry Wilson's shot was saved in the third minute.

Finland controlled large spells of the first half and, although Neco Williams doubled Wales' lead with a beautiful curling free-kick, the visitors kept themselves in contention as Teemu Pukki finished calmly shortly before the break.

Brennan Johnson settled any creeping

Welsh nerves as he tapped in from Brooks' shot 90 seconds into the second half.

Despite missing chances to add to their lead and having a Ben Davies goal disallowed, Robert Page's men were comfortable winners as substitute Dan James added a late fourth on his 50th cap.

Wales can now turn their attention to Tuesday's play-off final against Poland, again played over one leg at Cardiff City Stadium, for the chance to qualify for a third successive European Championship.

Page cut a remarkably relaxed figure in the build-up to this game - despite the high stakes - though there was still the nagging sense that defeat could bring his position under renewed scrutiny.

Any such thoughts quickly disappeared, however, when Wales flew out of the traps to take an early lead.

Wilson found himself free in the Finnish penalty area and his left-footed strike was saved by Lukas Hradecky but only into the path of Brooks, who volleyed in to raise the roof at Cardiff City Stadium.

That goal was instant vindication for Page, who had raised a few eyebrows by selecting

David Brooks, appearing for Wales for the 28th time, opened the scoring

Brooks and benching Kieffer Moore, without whom the front three lacked a natural centre-forward.

By the time the fourth goal was slotted home, the crowd were in party mood and the team were able to enjoy themselves, though the celebrations were more restrained than they tend to be on nights like these at Cardiff City Stadium... because there is still a Poland side to overcome on Tuesday.

We can win the Euros..and we want 'brilliant' Southgate to stay, says Maguire

Harry Maguire believes that England are "ready to win" the Euros this summer, and hopes that success in Germany means the "brilliant" Gareth Southgate will stay on for the next World Cup.

Southgate's contract expires at the end of the year and the England manager said last week that he has "consciously shelved" any talk of an extension until after Euro 2024. But Maguire, speaking at St George's Park, said that the England team all want him to stay on and hope that he will sign a new deal to take him to the 2026 World Cup.

"I feel as a group we're ready to win," Maguire said "If you asked every single player in the squad they'd say the expectation is to win the tournament.

"However, we do understand that it's tournament football and if we are going to win the Euros, you are probably going to have to win a penalty shoot-out, you are going to have to score from set-plays, you are going to have to defend set-plays. Tournament football is built on big moments."

Maguire: a big part of the Southgate era

Maguire has been a big part of the Southgate era, featuring at all three major tournaments since he took over, and he hailed the progress England have made under him. "I've had a great relationship with him," said Maguire, confirming that all the England players want Southgate to continue.

"I've been a big part of the success and the progression that we've shown as a country. And I'm sure he will say the same thing now: it's all about winning a trophy. I don't know what's going to happen after the Euros, I don't know if he knows what's going to happen. cont. on page 19, col 6
