GRANT SETTLES WITH SUN IN HACKING CASE

■ Actor could have faced huge legal bills even if he had won court battle

Actor Hugh Grant has settled a privacy case against the publisher of the Sun newspaper, saying he could have faced a bill of up to £10m even if he had won.

The star was suing News Group Newspapers (NGN), claiming journalists had used private investigators to tap his phone and burgle his house.

He said he "did not want to accept" the "enormous sum of money" he had been offered to settle - but that a trial was likely to prove "very expensive".

NGN denied the claims against it.

'costly trial'

The company said the out-of-court settlement was reached "without admission of liability" and that it was "in both parties financial interests not to progress to a costly trial".

After the unexpected resolution, which was revealed at a preliminary hearing on Wednesday, Grant posted a statement on social media site X explaining that continuing to fight the case risked making him liable for substantial legal costs.

"I would love to see all the allegations that they deny tested in court," he wrote.

"But the rules around civil litigation mean that if I proceed to trial and the court awards me damages that are even a penny less than the settlement offer, I would have to pay the legal costs of both sides.

'repurposed'

"My lawyers tell me that that is exactly what would most likely happen here. Rupert Murdoch's lawyers are very expensive. So even if every allegation is proven in court, I would still be liable for something approaching £10 million in costs. I'm afraid I am shying at that fence."

The actor added the money had a "stink" about it, and therefore the funds he has received will be "repurposed via groups like Hacked Off into the general campaign to expose the worst excesses of our oligarch-owned press".

'accountability'

Campaign group Hacked Off said: "The allegations of burglaries and theft which formed Mr Grant's claim are devastating. Yet again, rather than see them tested in court, News UK have done everything to avoid facing accountability."

Grant's was one of several cases that were eligible to go to trial at London's High Court in January.

The actor, alongside the Duke of Sussex, was suing NGN for alleged widespread unlawful information

FILTHY LUCRE? The actor said the money he would receive from News Group Newspapers in the settlement from had a "stink" about it, gathering. Prince Harry is continuing his legal battle with the company.

Although the amount hasn't been revealed, Grant appears to have been offered "much more" money to settle than he would have been likely to have won at a trial, legal commentator Joshua Rozenberg told reporters.

"The courts don't want people to waste their time by going to court and suing for something that they've already been offered," he said.

Going to trial would "cost a fortune", he said. "And unless you happen to have a fortune and are prepared to lose a fortune, it simply wouldn't be worth it, even if the costs were in some way restricted."

fallout

Grant is best known for films such as Notting Hill, Four Weddings and a Funeral, Love Actually and Paddington 2, and has also been a prominent campaigner on press reform since the phone-hacking scandal emerged more than a decade ago.

He previously brought a case against NGN in relation to the now-defunct News of the World tabloid, which was settled in 2012.

That came a year after the newspaper was shut down by media mogul Murdoch following a public backlash to hacking revelations.

NGN has rejected allegations of wrongdoing by staff at the Sun, and has settled more than 1,000 cases without making any admission of liability.

Sunak passes flagship smoking ban - but only with Labour's help

■ PM survives Tory revolt on issue but rebels left fuming over latest extension of 'Nanny State'

RISHI Sunak this week passed his flagship smoking ban with the backing of Labour after a huge Tory revolt, including from a Cabinet Minister.

The Prime Minister was forced to rely on the votes of opposition MPs to get his Smoking and Vapes bill through with 383 MPs backing it, while 59 Conservatives voted against.

The revolt was bolstered with the help of top Tory ministers and MPs, including Business Secretary Kemi Badenoch, five ministers, a Tory deputy chairman and senior names including Liz Truss, Suella Braverman and Robert Jenrick.

And 106 Tory MPs did not vote at all, meaning just over half of Mr Sunak's troops backed his plan after he gave them a free vote.

The ban will apply to the sale of cigarettes in the UK rather than the act of smoking itself.

Under the law, each year the legal age for cigarette sales - currently 18 - will increase by one year.

It means that people born in or after 2009 will never be able to legally buy cigarettes, leading to an effective ban.

The law will not affect those who are allowed to buy cigarettes now.

£2,500 fines

To crack down on under-age sales, the government says it will introduce £100 on-the-spot fines for shops in England and Wales which sell tobacco and vapes to under-age people.

Local authorities will retain the proceeds to reinvest into enforcement of the law.

This would be on top of £2,500 fines that courts can already impose.

The government says it will spend £30m on enforcement, which will include tackling the availability of cigarettes on the black market.

"unworkable"

The new rules will apply in all duty free shops in the UK, but anyone buying cigarettes abroad would be able to bring them back to the UK as long as they were legally acquired elsewhere.

The government aims to have the new system in force by 2027.

Among the abstentions in this week's vote was Commons leader Penny Mordaunt, with a source close to the Cabinet minister saying she believes the legislation to be "unworkable". Opening the lengthy debate on Wednesday afternoon, Health Secretary Victoria Atkins said the plan will create a "smoke-free generation", telling libertarian colleagues "there is no liberty in addiction".

She added: "The vast majority of smokers start when they are young and three-quarters say if they could turn back the clock they would not have started."

Ms Truss, who led the charge in the Commons against the proposals, said MPs should not "protect adults from themselves", and argued the ban is "emblematic of a technocratic establishment". The former PM slammed

Targeting the sale, not the smoking: People born in or after 2009 will never be able to legally buy cigarettes, leading to an effective ban those in politics and the civil service who she said believe the Government is "better at making decisions for people than people themselves".

She added: "The whole idea that we can protect adults from themselves is hugely problematic and it effectively infantilises people."

"And what we're seeing not just on tobacco but also on sugar, on alcohol, on meat, is a group of people who want to push an agenda which is about limiting people's personal freedom. That is fundamentally wrong."

Confirming her rebellion ahead of the crunch vote, Ms Badenoch said while the legislation marked the PM out as a leader who "doesn't duck the thorny issues" she had "significant concerns".

She warned against the unequal rights for adults that the Bill will create, with some over-18s having different freedoms to others.

Ms Badenoch thanked the Prime Minister for making the Commons showdown a "free vote", allowing his MPs to vote in line with their consciences without fear of being sacked or losing the whip.

It is a tactic traditionally used with issues of morality or conscience.

Labour's Shadow Health Secretary Wes Streeting said: "Rishi Sunak put this bill at risk by granting a free vote, because he is too weak to stand up to the Liz Truss-wing of his party."

"Labour first proposed a progressive ban on smoking more than a year ago, and it was only thanks to Labour MPs that this Bill passed."

Smoking remains the number one preventable cause of death, disability and ill health in the UK, causing around 80,000 deaths per year and costing the NHS and the economy an estimated £17bn every year,

According to the government, creating a "smoke-free generation" could prevent more than 470,000 cases of heart disease, stroke, lung cancer and other diseases by the end of the century.

The Tobacco and Vapes Bill also aims to tackle vaping among young people who have never smoked before.

Vaping is less harmful than smoking cigarettes, but is not risk-free. Health experts agree that anyone who does not already smoke should not start vaping.

Palin tells of 'huge' Python rows

SIR Michael Palin has claimed the Monty Python team "always had huge arguments" and will never reform.

John Cleese, 84, and Eric Idle, 81, have had a war of words after Idle criticised Holly Gilliam, who manages Python's affairs, suggesting she was not maximising revenue from the back catalogue.

Now Sir Michael, 80, has told Radio Times: "Since Python split up, and even in our time together, we have all had huge arguments. The great thing is that we don't agree. I remember Terry Jones once threw a typewriter at John."

Sir Michael added that their last gig in 2014 was "the end of it".

Derek Underwood, England's greatest spin bowler, dies at 78

■ The much-feared spinner nicknamed "Deadly" remains the sixth-highest wicket-taker for his country in Test cricket

THE CRICKET world united in mourning this week at the death of Derek Underwood.

The left armer who was affectionately nicknamed "Deadly" remains the most prolific spinner to represent England in history, claiming 297 wickets at an average of 25.8 from 86 Tests between 1966 and 1982 to sit sixth in the country's all-time charts. The retrospective International Cricket Council (ICC) rankings show that, for a four-year period starting in 1969, Underwood was the No 1 Test bowler in the world.

The first-class figures are similarly remarkable, Underwood claiming 2,465 wickets (plus 572 in List A cricket) after breaching the 1,000 mark at the age of 25. He also took 100 wickets in a county season 10 times, the first of these feats coming in his debut summer, aged 17. Overall, at Kent, where he played his entire career, he won three County Championships, three John Player League titles, two Gillette Cups and three Benson & Hedges Cups.

The numbers – which include 153 five-wicket hauls in first-class cricket – tell only part of the story, however. It wasn't just volume but the methods by which Underwood shone. His left-arm finger spin, delivered from a lengthy run-up and at a brisk, almost medium pace, was based on metronomic accuracy and an ability to exploit the merest hint of assistance.

'strong mind'

Underwood's stamina, bowling maiden after maiden, was clearly immense, likewise his desire to asphyxiate his opponents. "He hated it when a batsman pinched a single because a fielder was nodding off," Geoffrey Boycott wrote in 2017. "He would glare at you. Derek had such a strong mind, he could bowl to win matches or tie up an end."

The challenge of Underwood was amped up to 11 when, in the era of uncovered pitches, rain was followed by sunshine and the topsoil became akin to marshy. The most famous instance came on the final day of the fifth Ashes Test in 1968 when, following a storm at the Oval, and with spectators involved in a hurried mop-up operation, Underwood wiped out Australia's last four wickets to draw the series with just six minutes to spare.

It was a scene that was famously repeated in Hastings in 1973 when the Kent players whipped off their boots and socks to assist the local fire brigade in drying a saturated outfield and Underwood went on to rip through Sussex with match-winning figures of eight for nine. The following summer, when rain leaked through the covers during the second Test against Pakistan at Lord's, he conjured up a spell of six for two.

But he was also prolific overseas, not least snaffling 54 Test wickets in the dead flat pitches of India. That is some 26 more than the next highest English spinners, Monty Panesar and Graeme

UNDERWOOD: the staunch one-club man made over 900 appearances for Kent over the course of a 24-year first class career

Swann, and was only recently overtaken by Nathan Lyon (56) among visitors from any country. In Australia, where the lack of turn caused him to vary his flight, he took 50 wickets, including 16 as Ray Illingworth's side regained the Ashes in 1970-71.

Underwood's place in the pantheon was assured when the 2004 edition of the cricketer's bible Wisden named him in England's greatest post-war XI. Fittingly, the side's wicketkeeper was the silken-gloved Alan Knott, with whom Underwood had formed an almost telepathic partnership for both club and country.

Awarded an MBE for services to cricket in 1981, Underwood went on to serve as president of Kent in 2006 and Marylebone Cricket Club in 2009 (the same year he was inducted into the ICC's Hall of Fame) before withdrawing from public life in recent years after being diagnosed with dementia. He leaves behind his wife, Dawn, and two daughters.

Scotland scraps greenhouse gas targets

The Scottish government has confirmed it will scrap its annual and interim targets for cutting greenhouse gas emissions.

They will be replaced with a system measuring emissions every five years.

Ministers have announced a raft of measures to cut planet-warming gases including a national integrated ticketing system for public transport.

New legislation will be introduced similar to the carbon budgets used by the UK and Welsh governments.

The Scottish government insists the long-term target to reach net zero by 2045 "steadfastly" remains.

In a statement to the Scottish parliament, Energy Secretary Mairi McAllan accepted that the 2030 net-zero target was out of reach.

She said the government must act to chart a course to 2045 at a pace and scale which was feasible, fair and just.

Ms McAllan confirmed the Scottish government would bring forward expedited legislation to address matters raised by the Climate Change Committee (CCC), and ensure the legislative framework better reflected the reality of long-term climate policymaking.

More than a dozen flagship policies were wrapped around the announcement.

Ms McAllan said the Scottish government would help people become less reliant on cars and publish a "route map" to help deliver a 20% reduction in car use.

Six year old saves mum and siblings from house fire

A brave six-year-old girl made headlines this week after she raced across the street and ran into her own smoke-filled home to rescue her mum and two younger siblings who were all asleep on the sofa as a blaze consumed their home.

Olivia Lee Patterson was at a friend's house, across the road from her home in Riccall, near Selby, North Yorkshire, when she spotted smoke coming from the roof of her own home. "By chance, she looked up and saw the house was on fire," said a neighbor.

Her mother Laura Lee Patterson, 29, was asleep on the sofa inside the house with Olivia's younger siblings - 15 month old Joel James Austin and two-year-old Tiffany Rose Austin on the afternoon of Thursday, April 4, when the fire broke out.

Without a second thought, Olivia ran across the road and inside the burning building to wake up her mum and sleeping siblings. Marsha, 36, said: "Olivia came in and said: 'Mummy, the house is on fire. You need to get out'. Usually the two children sleep upstairs - it's just very lucky that on this occasion they were asleep downstairs."

She added: "If it wasn't for Olivia seeing the smoke and acting on that, then we don't even want to think about what might have happened." Laura and her three children all escaped from the house unharmed before the fire ripped through the entire house.

While the family escaped thanks to Olivia's quick-thinking, the fire destroyed both their home and all of their belongings. The entire house will need to be rebuilt before they can move back in. Fire experts are still investigating how the fire started, but the neighbor added "they've been left with absolutely nothing."

Laura, her partner and three children are temporarily living in an Airbnb while they figure out their next steps. "They're just trying to overcome the shock," said a friend. "It's been a massive life change and a massive trauma for them all. They're not sure where they're going to be living, or how long things will take. They're just taking each day as it comes."

Surprised couple get divorced after solicitor 'clicks wrong button'

■ London law firm admits to error but judge says final order cannot be overturned

A couple have been divorced by mistake after solicitors at a leading law firm made a computer error but a senior judge has said it cannot be overturned.

The couple, referred to as Mr and Mrs Williams by the high court, were married for 21 years until they separated in 2023.

Solicitors at the London firm Vardags, headed by Ayesha Vardag, the self-styled "diva of divorce", used an online portal to mistakenly apply for a final order for the couple, who were still attempting to agree financial arrangements for their split.

Sir Andrew McFarlane, the president of the family division, explained lawyers had intended to apply for a divorce for another client "but inadvertently opened the electronic case file in 'Williams v Williams' and proceeded to apply for a final order in that case".

He said solicitors at Vardags, who were representing the wife, used the online portal "without the instruction or authority of their client". He said the online system operated with "its now customary speed" and granted the order divorcing the Williamses within 21 minutes.

Ayesha Vardag, the self-styled 'diva of divorce', has said the judge reached a 'bad decision'

'public policy interest'

The solicitors realized their mistake two days later and applied to the high court to rescind the final divorce order. They described the error as being simply that of someone at Vardags "clicking the wrong button" and argued that as the final order was applied for by mistake, it should be set aside.

But McFarlane rejected the application and said: "There is a strong public policy interest in respecting the certainty and finality that flows from a final divorce order and maintaining the status quo that it has established."

He added that it was necessary to correct the impression that the online divorce portal would "deliver a final order of divorce where one was not wanted simply by 'the click of a wrong button'".

"Like many similar online processes, an operator may only get to the final screen where the final click of the mouse is made after travelling through a series of earlier screens," he said.

Vardag, one of the UK's highest-paid divorce lawyers, said the judge had reached a "bad decision" and that he had "decided, effectively, 'the computer says no, you're divorced'".

Vardag added: "The state should not be divorcing people on the basis of a clerical error. There has to be intention on the part of the person divorcing, because the principle of intention underpins the justice of our legal system.

When a mistake is brought to a court's attention, and everyone accepts that a mistake has been made, it obviously has to be undone ... That means that, for now, our law says that you can be divorced by an error made on an online system. And that's just not right, not sensible, not justice."

Vardag told the Law Society Gazette that she was standing behind the solicitor who mistakenly applied for the final order for the Williamses by clicking the wrong name from a drop-down menu on the divorce portal.

Vardag made headlines in the UK after she won a £64m divorce settlement for Pauline Chai, the wife of the Laura Ashley tycoon Khoo Kay Peng, in 2017.

Under-16s mobile ban on the way

CHILDREN under 16 could be banned from social media under plans set to be unveiled by ministers within weeks, reports have suggested.

A ban on them buying smartphones will also be proposed, with tougher age restrictions on apps that could include Facebook and WhatsApp.

The Department for Science, Innovation and Technology would not comment on the reports but stressed its "unwavering" commitment to making the UK the safest place for kids to be online.

Parents' views will be sought on when children should be allowed to access social media.

Most platforms allow kids as young as 13 to sign up as members, including social media giant Meta which last week lowered the minimum age to use WhatsApp in Europe from 16 to 13.

Under-18s cannot take out phone contracts without parental consent, but can buy pay-as-you-go phones.

The proposed changes would block this for under-16s but would not stop parents buying phones for their kids.

Esther Grey, mum of murdered Brianna Ghey, has claimed the teen would still be alive had greater smartphone safeguards been in place.

Women smell better than men!

■ Scottish whisky professional enjoys a biological advantage over her male counterparts

When Megan Brown first started going to whisky tastings, she noticed she was picking up a lot more flavours and notes than her more experienced male counterparts.

The 29-year-old initially thought it must have been beginner's luck - but it kept happening. Little did she know that she may have a biological advantage.

Research over the last few decades has suggested that women have more taste buds and are more likely than men to be "supertasters".

Megan, who is now a director of independent bottler and whisky blending company Woodrow's of Edinburgh, said she was at a whisky tasting three years ago when she first noticed she was tasting more than her male colleagues.

"I was sitting at a table full of men and I noticed that even though they were longer into their whisky journey and were therefore what I considered to be more knowledgeable than me," she said.

"I was able to pick out things that they couldn't and I was able to come out with very specific notes that they weren't coming up with.

"I doubted myself at first that I was maybe not picking up these things because I was not, at that point, knowledgeable about whisky.

Megan Brown quickly realized she could pick up more flavors in whisky than men

"But then over time I thought no, I am picking up these things. Sometimes now if I say a note they will suddenly start agreeing with me."

The former neuroscientist added: "I think I heard about this in my scientist days but it didn't cross my mind that that was what was happening to me.

Dr Frances Jack is the senior sensory scientist who leads flavour research at the Scotch Whisky Research Institute.

She said: "Research has found generally women have more taste buds than men.

"The overall perception of a whisky is actually smell. Women have more smelling receptors."

"Sadly when I go to whisky tastings the majority of attendees are men," she said.

"When I'm with my friends, who are female, whisky tasting they generally come up with a lot more interesting notes than the men.

High court upholds top London school's Muslim prayer ban

A high court decision to uphold a prayer ban at one of the highest performing state schools in England has been welcomed by Rishi Sunak and Kemi Badenoch, who described it as a "victory against activists trying to subvert our public institutions".

The case against Michaela community school in Brent, north-west London, which is famous for its strict discipline code, was brought by a Muslim pupil who claimed the ban was discriminatory and breached her right to religious freedom.

In a written judgment handed down on Tuesday, Mr Justice Linden dismissed the pupil's arguments against the prayer ban on all key grounds.

The judgment followed a two-day hearing in January at the high court in London, which heard the prayer ban was introduced in March last year by the school's founder and former government social mobility tsar, Katharine Birbalsingh, after the school found itself the target of death and bomb threats over its approach to religious observance.

Birbalsingh, who is often called "Britain's strictest headteacher", defended the policy, arguing it was vital in order to "maintain a successful learning environment where children of all races and religion can thrive".

However, the pupil claimed the prayer ban had fundamentally changed how she felt about being a Muslim in the UK. It was "like somebody saying they don't feel like I properly belong here", the court heard.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site www.stoxposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 2023-CA007042. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (844) 477-7869, or visit this internet website www.stoxposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 2023-CA007042 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTE: Because the beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt owed. If the trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder(s) sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the trustee and successful bidder(s) will have no further recourse. ## New Beckham book promises series of fresh 'revelations'

DAVID and Victoria Beckham are bracing themselves for the release of a book that threatens to put their marriage under the spotlight.

Investigative journalist Tom Bower claims his latest release, The House of Beckham: Money, Sex and Power, contains a series of fresh "revelations".

The author said: "Those who want to know about Beckham's sex life won't be disappointed."

He added: "The Beckhams made sure that quite a lot of people wouldn't talk to me, but I did find enough people to talk to and got a lot of very interesting revelations.

"It was a book that surprised me. We think we know everything but in fact there is an enormous amount we don't know which the public will find out for the first time."

Tom said he never requested access to the Beckhams. The biographer added: "One, I knew they would say no and, secondly, they have given thousands of interviews, and I knew they wouldn't answer my questions."

Asked if the book could be damaging for the celebrity couple, Tom said: "It's an astonishing achievement to have maintained their image despite their ups and downs.

"But whether it's damaging, the public will decide. What do they really represent? And that's what the book answers."

The book, which comes out in June, is published by HarperCollins, who suggested it will look to delve beneath the image presented of the Beckhams' marriage in their recent Netflix documentary.

Rare Chilean plant proves a bloomin' success in Birmingham Botanical Gardens

VISITORS are flocking to the Birmingham Botanical Gardens this week to catch a glimpse of a rare flowering of a Chilean plant nicknamed the "Sapphire Tower".

The Puya Alpestris, to give it the proper name, is a fascinating and visually striking plant native to the Andean regions of Chile, and blooms only once per decade - making it a must-see for local plant fanciers.

Part of the bromeliad family, which includes more familiar plants like pineapples and Spanish moss, Puya alpestris is particularly notable for its unique and vibrant characteristics. It is characterized by its rosettes of silver-green leaves that are long,

BIRMINGHAM STAR: The Puya Alpestris in all its glory this week narrow, and edged with sharp spines.

The plant can grow quite large, typically reaching heights of up to a meter or more. It's known for its dramatic flowering stalks, which can extend several meters high, far above the foliage.

The flowers themselves are what give the Sapphire Tower its name. They bloom in a striking metallic blue to turquoise color, and they are densely packed on the towering spikes.

These blooms are not only rare but also ephemeral, typically appearing only after many years of growth. The plant's blooming cycle is particularly slow, often taking up to a decade to produce flowers.

In its native habitat in Chile, the plant is adapted to being pollinated by birds, particularly hummingbirds, but outside of its native range, cultivating the plant can be challenging... which means local horticulturalist Alberto Trinco has had to step in - pollinating it by hand, a delicate and time-sensitive process.

"Each flower only lasts a few days, giving us a limited window of time to give nature a helping hand, he said.

"It is very slow-growing, so to witness its spectacular blooms is both exciting and rare."

It is thought visitors have only 10 days left to see the plant in all its glory.

Gunners spiked as Bayern edge cagey quarter final

Arsenal made a bitterly disappointing exit from the Champions League as they were beaten by Bayern Munich in a euphoric atmosphere at Allianz Arena on Wednesday night.

Joshua Kimmich's powerful 63rd-minute header from Raphael Guerreiro's cross was enough to send the Germans through to the semi-finals 3-2 on aggregate after the two teams had drawn 2-2 in London in the first leg.

Despite being held at Emirates Stadium, Arsenal were confident of advancing against a Bayern Munich side who had endured a poor domestic season and were without key players Serge Gnabry and Kingsley Coman because of injury.

In a tight and cagey second leg, watched by Arsenal owner Stan Kroenke, Gabriel Martinelli had the best chance of the first half for the Gunners but shot straight at Manuel Neuer after Jamal Musiala had forced David Raya into a full-stretch save at the other end.

While Harry Kane had just nine touches in the opening 45 minutes, Neuer was forced into another save by Martin Odegaard's deflected attempt, which had the long-serving Bayern Munich keeper scrambling across his line.

With so much at stake for both teams, it was perhaps understandable chances were in limited supply but the second half was a livelier affair with Leon Goretzka heading against the post before Guerreiro's follow up was scrambled away by Raya, via the post.

But Kimmich's attacking header proved decisive and ensured Arsenal's wait to win the Champions League for the first time goes on.

Bayern will meet Real Madrid in the semi-finals after the record 14-time winners knocked out Manchester City on penalties.

"It's been a tough season for us," said England captain Kane, who scored in the first leg at Emirates Stadium.

"To reach the semi-finals is a great achievement for us and we can enjoy it. The expectation here is to try and win the Champions League."

While Bayern Munich's players celebrated in front of their jubilant fans at the final whistle, Arsenal's players looked dispirited after a damaging few days.

City pay penalty as Real triumph again

Manchester City's hold on the Champions League was wrestled away by Real Madrid Wednesday night as they were beaten on penalties in a dramatic quarter-final at Etihad Stadium.

The holders recovered from going behind to Rodrygo's early strike to lay siege to Real's goal, finally equalising 14 minutes from the end of normal time when Kevin de Bruyne pounced on Antonio Rudiger's clearance.

It was the least City deserved for their almost total domination but a lack of the finishing touch cost them as Real, despite being exhausted and mounting a desperate rearguard action, held out for spot-kicks. City looked on course to meet Bayern Munich in the semi-final when Luka Modric missed Real's first penalty but Bernardo Silva's dreadful effort and another from substitute Mateo Kovacic were saved by keeper Andriy Lunin, leaving former Chelsea defender Rudiger to step up and clinch victory for the great Champions League specialists.

It ended City's bid for another Treble of Champions League, Premier League and FA Cup - and they must now recover from this gruelling encounter to defend the latter in the semi-final against Chelsea at Wembley on Saturday.

City will wonder for a long time how they failed to win this game despite exerting complete superiority over their Spanish opponents apart from the early stages when the La Liga leaders struck through Rodrygo.

The answer is simple - Pep Guardiola's side piled up the opportunities but could not take them, letting Real off the hook.

City had 33 shots to Real's eight, 18 corners to one but they just could not put Carlo Ancelotti's men away.

Martinez heroics see Villa through

Europa Conference: Villa still standing after penalty drama

Aston Villa boss Unai Emery thought Emiliano Martinez had been sent off in a chaotic penalty shootout against Lille before the goalkeeper made the save that sent his side through to their first major European semi-final since 1982.

In an extraordinary shootout after the tie ended 3-3 on aggregate after extra time, Villa keeper Martinez - who had been booked earlier for time-wasting - was shown another yellow card for appearing to gesture to home fans.

Martinez, who had already kept out Nabil Bentaleb's penalty, was allowed to carry on as his initial booking was not carried over into the shootout.

The Argentina World Cup winner then went on to keep out Benjamin Andre's attempt as Villa won 4-3 on penalties to advance to the last four.

Martinez then ran virtually the whole length of the pitch to celebrate in front of Villa's jubilant 2,600 travelling fans.

Asked whether he and his players thought Martinez had been dismissed in the shootout, Emery said: "Yes. He is very important for us.

"On the pitch he has his personality and he played fantastic. He saved two penalty shots so of course I am very proud of him."

Earlier in the shootout, Ollie Watkins was made to wait to take his penalty as there were two balls on the pitch before the England forward stepped up to score.

On a dramatic night in northern France, Emery's side were three minutes from going out after goals by Yusuf Yazici and Benjamin Andre wiped out Villa's 2-1 advantage from the first leg.

But Matty Cash's 87th-minute deflected strike - after goalkeeper Lucas Chevalier had dropped a cross - made it 3-3 on aggregate and forced extra time which did not produce any further goals leaving the tie to be decided by penalties.

Aston Villa will face Olympiakos in the semi-final.

This was not Villa's finest display by any stretch of the imagination but they managed to stay in the tie when 2-0 down before Cash provided a late lifeline.

The Europa Conference League might be Uefa's third-tier competition but Villa are enjoying the ride.

By staying in it, they remain on course for a top-four finish in the Premier League and a first major European trophy for 42 years in Emery's first full season in charge.

European dream over for Reds

Europa League: first leg deficit too great for Klopp's men

Liverpool's hopes of ending Jurgen Klopp's reign with a European trophy are over after they failed to overturn a first-leg deficit against Atalanta.

The Reds travelled to Italy on the back of a 3-0 defeat at Anfield last Thursday and, despite controlling the game for the large periods, could not find the required goals and lost 3-1 on aggregate.

Mohamed Salah's seventh-minute penalty, after a Trent Alexander-Arnold cross was handled, gave them hope.

As the first half drew to a close, the Egypt forward lofted well wide when put through one-on-one, but Klopp's side struggled to create meaningful openings in the second period.

It marks the end of a difficult 12 days for the Reds, who drew at Manchester United and lost at home to Crystal Palace to surrender their lead at the top of the Premier League.

Attention will now turn back to the title race with Liverpool sitting third behind second-placed Arsenal and two points off leaders Manchester City.

The league now represents their final chance to give Klopp a fairytale ending to his eight and a half years on Merseyside and add to their success in the Carabao Cup in February.

Ultimately, Liverpool lost this game in the first leg at Anfield.

Jurgen Klopp said they would need to play the "complete game" in Italy to progress, and while they had more than 70% possession, this was Liverpool far from their best.

They lacked an incisiveness going forward and with the pace of Darwin Nunez starting on the bench, they failed to get in behind the Atalanta defence and stretch the game.

Klopp used his bench, calling for Nunez, Diogo Jota and Harvey Elliott with 25 minutes remaining, but it made little difference with the Reds only having two shots in the second half.

Their expected goals was a meagre 0.11 in the second period, demonstrating the lack of quality they showed in the final third.

Atalanta sit sixth in Serie A, 32 points behind leaders Inter Milan, but they were superb in this tie, defending valiantly and attacking with creativity, and deservedly set up a semi-final against Marseille, who beat Benfica on penalties.

Klopp has managed Liverpool in four European finals during his tenure, but there will not be a fifth.

Their season is in danger of petering out. Three away games in the Premier League in the next nine days could well define how their campaign pans out from here.
