BRITAIN PREPARED FOR 'WRONG PANDEMIC'

COVID-19 inquiry delivers scathing first report, claiming the Government 'failed its citizens'

THE COVID 19 inquiry has delivered a damning first report, highlighting numerous failings in the nation's emergency planning, which, it said, had 'prepared for the wrong pandemic'.

The inquiry's chairwoman, Baroness Hallett, said the Westminster government and the devolved nations had 'failed its citizens' during the initial outbreak of the disease, which resulted in more deaths and economic damage than it should have done. More than 235,000 people had died of the virus in the UK by the end of 2023.

After many weeks of evidence from almost 70 witnesses and hundreds of thousands of documents, the inquiry's first report was unflinchingly critical, declaring that the UK was ill-prepared to deal with a catastrophic public health emergency. Prior to 2020, there had been a mistaken belief that the country was one of the world's most prepared for a pandemic, but this was mistaken said the report.

In essence, the UK prepared for the wrong pandemic, expecting it to come from a new strain of influenza - a contingency that had been studied, written about and planned for. But that was inadequate. The inquiry cited a flawed approach to risk assessment, a failure to learn from past epidemics, a narrow range of advice from experts to ministers and a failure by those ministers to challenge that advice. There was also severe criticism for what the inquiry described as a 'damaging lack of focus' on developing resources and infrastructure to deal with a rapidly-expanding epidemic and a lack of systems to test, trace and isolate those affected.

Here are the key takeaways from the report:

Too many dead

The pandemic caused "grief, untold misery and economic turmoil" - all of which could have been reduced or prevented had the UK been better prepared, the inquiry's chair, Heather Hallett, concluded.

Lives would have been spared - in particular those of the groups worst affected, including people with physical and learning disabilities, those with pre-existing conditions such as Alzheimer's, heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes, and people living in deprived areas and from some ethnic minority backgrounds.

when, not if

The evidence is "overwhelmingly to the effect" that there will be another pandemic, and it is "not a question of 'if' ... but 'when'".

The next pandemic may be "even more transmissible and lethal", and is likely to occur in the near to medium future.

Without "fundamental change", the effort in curbing the spread of coronavirus and the human, societal and economic cost suffered from it "will have been in vain".

'Groupthink'

Hallett wrote that in 2019, there was widespread belief, in part resulting from "group-think" in government, that the UK was "not only properly prepared, but was one of the best-prepared countries in the world to respond to a pandemic".

Yet, she observed, in 2020 "the UK lacked resilience", including widening health inequalities, high levels of heart disease, diabetes, respiratory illness and obesity, and an overstretched health and social care system.

She noted that proper preparation for a pandemic "costs money" and "involves preparing for an event that may never happen" - yet this is "vastly outweighed" by the cost of not doing so. She added that the ability of the health and social care systems to respond was "constrained by their funding".

Baroness Hallett: 'lack of adequate leadership'

'black swan event'

The UK had planned for an influenza pandemic, which had "long been considered, written about and planned for" - yet Hallett noted that the Covid-19 pandemic was "not without precedent", and disputed the idea pushed by some officials that it was an unforeseeable "black swan event".

She concluded: "The processes, planning and policy of the civil contingency structures within the UK government and devolved administrations and civil services failed their citizens."

Hallett urged a "fundamental reform of the way in which the UK government and the devolved administrations prepare for whole-system civil emergencies".

King's Speech: Labour vow radical change and national renewal

Starmer vows to end "the snake oil charm of populism"

THE King's Speech that opened the new Parliament on Wednesday promised radical change to transform the country's fortunes and usher in a time of 'national renewal'

Keir Starmer, the new prime minister, pitched himself as an antidote to "the snake oil charm of populism" on Wednesday, unveiling sweeping plans to target house-building, crime, illegal migration and a breakdown in public trust during the first ceremonial King's Speech of his government.

King Charles III formally opened a new session of parliament by reading out Starmer's agenda at a grandiose event that brings together Britain's royal pageantry and political class, two weeks after his landslide election win brought a 14-year era of Conservative rule to an emphatic end.

The speech focused on Starmer's central slogan of national renewal, and included pledges to nationalize Britain's railways, tackle a housing crisis by changing planning laws to build more affordable homes, and intensifying efforts to tackle illegal migration.

Starmer more broadly took swipes at the Tory governments that had ruled Britain since 2010, and at the swell of populism that has rippled across the UK and Europe, attempting to lay claim to Britain's center ground with a public push for pragmatism.

'fight for trust'

"No more wedge issues. No more gimmicks," Starmer told lawmakers in the House of Commons as debate on his agenda began, insisting his government would "solve problems, not exploit them."

"The fight for trust is the battle that defines our political era," Starmer said.

His 40-bill agenda includes measures crafted to appeal to both older and younger generations, as Starmer seeks to maintain the broad coalition of voters that put him into Downing Street earlier this month. But his introduction to that agenda also contained an effort to counteract the rise of populism in the UK and Europe. "The snake oil charm of populism may sound seductive, but it drives us into the dead end of further division and greater disappointment," Starmer said.

While the speech fleshed out some of the growth-orientated vision Starmer pitched during the summer's election campaign, it was light on details on other areas, including how Starmer would meaningfully bolster Britain's border security after an election campaign disrupted by public concern over small boat crossings to the UK.

And Starmer opted to swerve some of the thornier constitutional and voting changes he had pledged to make during the campaign, including an upper age limit on peers allowed to sit in the House of Lords, and the lowering of the voting age to 16.

Starmer and Conservative leader Rishi Sunak shared a warm conversation before and after the speech, their roles dramatically reversed after the election on July 4 that saw Labour win a landslide in parliament, although with a modest share of the votes.

Pomp: Charles delivered Starmer's agenda to the House of Lords

Once the speech began, focus shifted to the first Labour legislative plan in a decade and a half. It put at its heart an effort to build, after a decade of stalled growth that had seen housing and infrastructure projects scup-pered across Britain.

Starmer also formalized plans to renationalize Britain's rail network in the coming years, and to create a publicly-owned renewable energy company.

Other parts of the speech continued Labour's efforts to appeal to traditionally conservative voters who have lost faith in the Tory party after a tumultuous stretch in government.

In particular, Starmer promised a clampdown on illegal migration and small boat crossings across the Channel – an issue that plagued successive Conservative governments and gave rise to a surge in support for Reform UK.

Welsh First Minister quits

Wales' First Minister Vaughan Gething has announced his resignation, only four months after taking the job.

It comes after three of his Welsh government ministers and his top legal adviser dramatically released resignation statements calling for him to stand down.

Mr Gething has been embroiled in controversy since he took over in March, and has been dogged by questions over a £200,000 campaign donation from a businessman convicted of environmental offences.

In his resignation statement he denied wrongdoing, adding: "I regret that the burden of proof is no longer an important commodity in the language of our politics."

In the tense session of the Welsh assembly – commonly known as the Senedd, Mr Gething said a new leader would be in place "early in the autumn".

Prime Minister Sir

Gething: dogged by questions since he took over

Keir Starmer thanked Mr Gething for his service, adding: "I know what a difficult decision this has been for him, but I also know he has made it because he feels it is the best decision now for Wales."

Cabinet members Mick Antoniw, Lesley Griffiths, Julie James and Jeremy Miles all resigned from their positions on Tuesday morning and called on Mr Gething to quit.

All released letters on X – formerly known as Twitter.

Mr Miles, the former economy secretary, said: "The events of the last few months including your loss of the confidence vote in the Senedd have been incredibly painful. I can't see any way forward for us".

Mr Antoniw said Mr Gething was not capable of delivering stable government, while Ms James said she saw "no way to agreeing a budget".

Royal Couple visit Channel Islands

KING CHARLES signalled his comeback from recent health worries with a busy schedule of public engagements this week.

In addition to the traditional opening of Parliament on Wednesday, the monarch and Queen Camilla also found time to visit the Channel Islands, the small Crown dependencies just off the French coast, that have been part of the British Isles since 1066.

The royal couple were greeted by warm sunshine on the island of Guernsey, as the pair were escorted by Bailiff Richard McMahon, Lt-Governor Richard Cripwell and Mrs Cripwell. The Queen was wearing a royal blue silk crepe dress and coat by Fiona Clare, and complimented islanders on their Royal-themed outfits.

However, bandaged support on a sprained ankle meant she carried balance.

Presiding over a special meeting of the States, the King said that he was grateful for the warm response.

'The Bailiwick has one of the oldest connections to the Crown. It is therefore a great joy to be here among you once more today to celebrate the close and special relationship which connects us,' he said.

Golden Guernsey

Their Majesties unveiled a granite plaque in front of the crowds to commemorate their visit to the island and the King's accession in September 2022.

There was plenty of joy as islanders waved flags and cheered as the monarchs had a taste of local produce and cuisine.

The royal ice-cream choice of the day was rhubarb and ginger from nearby Le Hechet Farm, which was given Royal approval by the Queen.

She also took a liking to Guernsey Dairy's vintage cheddar, even taking

ISLAND DELIGHT: The royal couple enjoyed a joyous, sunny welcome some home.

She said it was really nice, and was pleased to take some away with her,' said Guernsey Dairy's Dave Domaille.

Locally made Rocquettes Cider was also given the Queen's seal of approval – she described it as delicious.

The feedback was reciprocated by the King when he tasted his own craft beer named 'Charles' by Little Big Brew Co.

He had a sniff of the flavours and notes before taking a sip.

The Queen was interested about the island's famous Guernseys, learning about the wool and meeting the team from leading local manufacturer La Tricoteur, while the King took an interest in the local wicker crab pots.

Earlier Charles and Camilla had also met delegates from the nearby smaller islands of Sark and Alderney.

They learned about art and literature in Alderney and the liberation of Sark on 10 May 1945.

But it was Tamsin the goat who stole the show when she was awarded a Royal title on behalf of the Golden Guernsey breed.

Labour holds 30 of the 60 Senedd seats - all opposition politicians had ruled out working with the government to agree its spending plans and the party needs help from one other opposition politician to secure a majority.

Mr Gething said he had hoped that over the summer, "rebuilding and renewal could take place under my leadership" but now recognised "that this is not possible".

He said recent weeks had been the most difficult time "for me and my family".

Rayner told ITV that Mr Vance had said "quite a lot of fruity things in the past"

Deputy PM laughs off "Islamist" claims of Trump's running mate

■ JD Vance said UK under Labour might be the first "truly Islamist" country with nuclear weapons

The deputy prime minister has dismissed comments by Donald Trump's running mate for US vice president that UK under Labour might be the first "truly Islamist" country with nuclear weapons.

JD Vance, the Ohio senator chosen as Trump's vice presidential candidate on Monday night, made the comments while at the National Conservatism conference in Washington DC last week.

The 39-year-old said he was "beating up" on the UK, and had discussed with a friend "what is the first truly Islamist country to get a nuclear weapon", then joked "maybe it's Iran, maybe Pakistan kind of counts, and then we sort of decided maybe it's actually the UK since Labour just took over".

The suggestion that Islamists are gaining in power in some European countries with Muslim minorities is common in some right-wing US political circles.

Angela Rayner told ITV that Mr Vance had said "quite a lot of fruity things in the past" but said does not "recognise" his characterisation of the UK.

She added that she "looked forward" to meeting him and Donald Trump if they won the US election in November.

His comments on the UK becoming an "Islamist country" were a direct criticism of Labour's approach to immigration, and he also said that the Tories "have got to get a handle on this".

Right-wing US political figures have often linked immigration to a rise in Islamism in a country and have regularly focused on the UK.

During his speech to the National Conservatism conference Mr Vance made several further comments attacking immigration.

He declared: "The real threat to American democracy is that American voters keep on voting for less immigration and our politicians keep on rewarding us with more."

In the speech Mr Vance also said "I was in London last year, and it's not doing so good" referring to both high house prices and high immigration, making a link between those.

Speaking on ITV, Ms Rayner said: "I'm very proud of the election success that Labour had recently."

"We won votes across all different communities, across the whole of the country, and we're interested in governing on behalf of Britain and also working with our international allies."

English and Irish duo become the fastest women to row the Pacific

TWO pals have become the fastest duo to row the Pacific Ocean, completing the gruelling 2,800-mile feat in just over five weeks.

Jessica Oliver, 32, and Charlotte Harris, 33, took 37 days, 11 hours and 43 minutes – beating the previous women's record by nine days.

The pair also won the female class of the 2024 World's Toughest Row Pacific Challenge outright. They finished second in the race overall, beaten only by a team of four men who crossed the finish line 24 hours earlier.

The women, known as Wild Waves, began on June 8 in Monterey Bay, California, crossing the finish line in Hawaii on Tuesday. The achievement comes after they had previously set a world record in 2021 as the fastest female pair to row the Atlantic.

Jessica, from Cheltenham, Glos, said: "It was absolutely gruelling both from a mental and physical perspective – the hardest thing we have ever done."

Charlotte, of Fleet, Hants, added: "We gave it everything and are completely broken, but it was worth it."

The pair faced 40ft waves, and a near-collision with a tanker. Jessica said: "We just about managed to get out of their course and were thrown up and down in the wake of their boat as it passed with just 10 metres to spare."

They women hope their efforts will raise £50,000 for the leading UK homeless charity Shelter.

Liquid gains: England fall short but boozers cash in ENGLAND's brave tilt at the Euro 2024 championship may have ended in tears Sunday night, but England's hospitality sector was left crying all the way to the bank as a nation of boozing fans brought a mini bonanza to the UK economy.

Those hoping for an end to 58 years of hurt descended on bars, pubs and fan zones across the country with fan zones in London, Birmingham, Leeds, Manchester and Bristol packed from Sunday lunchtime as supporters soaked up the atmosphere for the Euro 2024 final.

In all about ten million extra pints of beer were poured on the big day, resulting in a whopping £50m extra revenue for pubs and breweries, not to mention a flood of cash for sellers of England flags, shirts and other memorabilia.

And there was a mood of keen anticipation before kick-off, with dreams of replicating England's World Cup heroics 58 years ago.

Some 15,000 headed to the O2 arena after a ballot for free tickets to watch the game on a 16-metre screen at the north Greenwich venue in South East London.

Outside the arena, choruses of Neil Diamond's Sweet Caroline and Blur's Parklife rang out as supporters shared in the build-up and posed for photos, proudly waving the St. George's flag.

But sadly it all ended in tears as fans nationwide held their heads in their hands as Spain's Mikel Oyarzabal hit the winner on 86 minutes.

Fraser Mullen, 40, from Redhill in Surrey, said: "It didn't feel like the same old England. We just came up against a better team. We defended really well. Jordan Pickford was outstanding. We made Spain look really average."

"It doesn't feel as bad as it has in the past. The talent is there."

Tik-Tokkers revive classic British dishes

TOAD-in-the-hole, jam roly-poly and rice pudding are among the classic British dishes back on the menu as the Tik-Tok generation falls in love with them.

Other retro dishes tickling online tastebuds include prawn cocktail, shepherd's pie, beef wellington, apple crumble and coffee-and-walnut cake, according to research.

A survey of 2,000 Britons aged 18 to 30 for Camp Coffee found two-thirds take cooking inspiration from TikTok and Instagram. And 86% were motivated to make an old-fashioned dish and post their results online.

However, three-quarters gave recipes a modern twist by grilling instead of frying, adding new ingredients and making the dish vegetarian or plant-based.

Katie Atkin, of Camp Coffee, said: "It's great to see that the British public is discovering, and making, classic dishes that have been around for generations."

LIVING LARGE: Marcus Rashford has a fleet of luxury cars

Rash ban for speeding

Manchester United striker Marcus Rashford has been banned from driving for six months after admitting speeding, court officials have confirmed.

The 26-year-old, who owns a fleet of luxury cars, was caught exceeding the 70mph (112km/h) speed limit on the M60 in Manchester on 12 December last year in a Rolls-Royce.

HM Courts and Tribunals Service confirmed the forward had been disqualified for six months, fined £1,666, and ordered to pay £120 court costs and £66 surcharge.

The speed Rashford was travelling at was not available on the court record.

Awarded an MBE in 2021 for his charity work, the footballer recently said he was planning to take some time to reset mentally after acknowledging he has endured a "challenging season".

He was not included in manager Gareth Southgate's squad after enduring a difficult season, scoring just eight times for United in all competitions.

He thanked fans for their support, telling his seven million followers on X he would be coming off social media to "rest and reset".

The speeding incident came three months after he was left unhurt following a car crash in September last year.

Manchester United players had returned to their Carrington training base on the team bus following their Premier League victory over Burnley at Turf Moor.

After collecting their own cars and setting off for home, Rashford - in one of his £700,000 Rolls-Royce cars - was involved in a collision with another car.

Emergency services attended the scene, but Rashford did not require medical attention and no arrests were made.

Rashford owns several Rolls-Royce cars, including a £390,000 Black Badge Cullinan and a Cullinan Blue Shadow.

He also reportedly owns a £280,000 McLaren 765 Long Tail and a £350,000 Lamborghini Urus Performante.

Adele to take a 'big break'

Adele has revealed she plans to take an extended break from music after her current run of concerts.

"My tank is quite empty at the minute," the star told German broadcaster ZDF ahead of a 10-date residency in Munich.

"I don't have any plans for new music at all," she said.

"I want a big break after all this and I think I want to do other creative things just for a little while.

"You know, I don't even sing at home at all. How strange is that?"

The star's last album came out in 2021, and she has spent the past two years playing a weekend residency in Las Vegas, recently completing her 90th show at the 4,000-capacity Caesar's Palace.

Adele's 100 show residency in Las Vegas will come to an end in November

The show is due to conclude in November, and Adele said the experience had been emotionally draining.

"Even though it's a very manageable size of crowd, it's really been an emotional exchange," she said.

However, not every Vegas concert has gone to plan.

In June, Adele angrily cursed an audience member who allegedly yelled "Pride sucks"

"Did you come to my... show and just say that Pride sucks?" she scolded. "Don't be so... ridiculous.

"If you have nothing nice to say, shut up, all right?"

Asked about the incident, the star admitted she was easily riled up.

"Everything makes me angry," she told ZDF. "Absolutely everything.

"I'm 36 years old. I'm old and grumpy now."

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: You may not be dealing well with a current situation in your home arena. Listen to your instincts as it is in your best interest to sort things out. You are on the right track...stick to it.

TAURUS: You have no time to procrastinate this week ahead. Your boss Venus is in a stubborn frame of mind. The good news is that Jupiter visiting your financial area will make life easier.

GEMINI: Mercury your boss is in a mellow state of mind and now currently life should be the same for you mostly. Enjoy this time and do not forget to be thankful.

CANCER: Time to move forward in any area in the next few days. The recent new moon in your sign started a better cycle for anything in your life on hold from the recent past. Happy Birthday!

LEO: Ideally you should ideally be finishing up anything in your life that is not working as it should. Your new year is about here and it is best to clear away anything you do not need to bring with you.

VIRGO: Hopefully you have made changes on several levels lately. You are about to embark in a new journey of sorts. It's better not to worry about any area that you cannot control.

LIBRA: Jupiter is in your work area currently and for many of you that means being productive and clearing away overdue items. You can expect to get a kick start during these next few days.

SCORPIO: Your moods are likely a little melancholy of late. This is not of your making and your boss Mars will be visiting a more mellow place soon and you will find some peace of mind.

SAGITTARIUS: This is a good time to get rid of stuff mentally or physically. Your boss Jupiter is in a mellow mood opposite you in Gemini so do not over analyse anything that can be good for you.

CAPRICORN: You are in the process of making long term plans or will be soon. This will be good for you overall. Start planning ahead for the trip you really want to take.

AQUARIUS: Jupiter is visiting your financial area so that's good news. Just be aware that you should not be too generous with a friend or family member when they ask for more help.

PISCES: Saturn is visiting and will be for a long time. He tends to make you deal with what you do not want to. Just stay grounded in mind and body. It's time to get ready to be social.

Yoro seals United switch

Manchester United have signed French defender Leny Yoro from Lille until 2029 in a deal worth 62m euros (£52.18m), with 8m euros (£6.73m) in add-ons.

The 18-year-old centre-back has signed a five-year contract at Old Trafford, with the option for an additional 12 months.

Yoro, who made his Lille debut at the age of 16, had been linked with Real Madrid and Paris St-Germain, while Liverpool were also interested in him.

He played 32 times in the league last season and scored two goals as he helped Lille finish fourth and was named in the Ligue 1 team of the season.

"Signing for a club with the stature and ambition of Manchester United so early in my career is an incredible honour," said Yoro.

"Since my first conversations with the club, they set out a clear plan for how I can develop in Manchester as part of this exciting project, and showed a lot of care for me and my family.

"I know about the history of young players at Manchester United and feel it can be the perfect place to reach my potential and achieve my ambitions, together with my new team-mates. I cannot wait to get started."

Yoro made 44 appearances in all competitions for the Ligue 1 side, who reached the quarter-finals of the Europa Conference League before being knocked out on penalties by Aston Villa.

Yoro's arrival follows United's recent signing of forward Joshua Zirkzee, 23, in a £36.5m deal from Italian side Bologna and comes during a summer in which the club have been trying to bring in a central defender.

United have lodged two bids with Everton for Jarrod Branthwaite but both have been rejected.

Schmeichel signs one year Celtic deal

"Celtic is one of the world's proper football clubs ...a place of real passion and success"

Celtic have signed Denmark captain Kasper Schmeichel on a one-year deal after the goalkeeper led his country to the last 16 of Euro 2024.

Schmeichel, 37, was a free agent after leaving Belgian club Anderlecht at the end of last season and replaces former Manchester City club-mate Joe Hart, who has retired.

The Dane has amassed 105 international caps and will join his new team-mates in the United States, where the Scottish champions are on tour.

"Celtic is one of the world's proper football clubs, a massive name and a place of real passion and success," he told the club website.

Celtic is what football is all about."

'top manager'

Schmeichel is best known for his 11-year stint with Leicester City, during which the club won an improbable Premier League crown in 2016.

Rodgers and Schmeichel won an FA Cup together with Leicester City

He would later work with Celtic manager Brendan Rodgers at King Power Stadium, where the pair claimed the 2021 FA Cup and subsequent FA Community Shield.

"He (Rodgers) is a top manager and someone I can't wait to work with again," added the veteran goalkeeper. "I will be doing all I can to keep Celtic on top."

Schmeichel began his career at Manchester City, and spent a season in the Scottish top flight 17 years ago when he was loaned to Falkirk, before brief spells at Notts County and Leeds.

After leaving Leicester, he played a season at Nice, and moved to Belgium in the summer of 2023.

He made 33 appearances for Anderlecht, keeping eight clean sheets.

Potter 'ready' to return to football management

Graham Potter says he is "ready" to return to football management amid reports he is being considered for the England job.

Gareth Southgate resigned as manager on Tuesday, less than 48 hours after England lost 2-1 to Spain in the Euro 2024 final.

Potter, 49, has not managed in football since he was sacked by Chelsea in April 2023.

The former Ostersund, Swansea and Brighton boss said he had spoken to a number of clubs but was waiting for the "right opportunity".

"Now I'm in that good place where I'm happy to be ready and looking forward to the next challenge," Potter told Sky Sports.

"I've had a great break. The journey from where I started to where I finished doesn't come for free. It involves moving three countries, with a young family, and all that comes with being a football manager.

"It was important for me to take a break, reflect and re-energise.

"It's been a good time to look at other things, other sports, other teams and visit places.

"I feel really ready, really excited to be back when the right opportunity comes."

BACK ON TRACK? Potter seemed to be on a rapid rise to the top before an ill-fated move to Chelsea in 2022 derailed his career

Greenwood hopes to rebuild career with Marseille move

Marseille have signed forward Mason Greenwood from Manchester United until 2029 in a deal worth up to 31.6m euros (£26.6m).

Greenwood, 22, was a product of United's academy but has not played for the Premier League club since January 2022 and was on loan at Getafe last season.

Serious charges against him, including attempted rape and assault, were dropped in February 2023.

The French club were criticised by the Marseille mayor after their intention to sign Greenwood was made public.

He made his competitive senior debut for United in 2019 as a substitute against Paris St-Germain in the Champions League.

He scored 35 goals in 129 appearances and won his only England cap in 2020.

In August 2023, United said Greenwood would leave the club by mutual agreement after a six-month internal investigation into his conduct.

He joined La Liga side Getafe the following month, where he scored 10 goals and made six assists in 36 appearances to revive his career.

United, who wished Greenwood well on their website, have also included a sizeable sell-on clause in their deal with Marseille.

Marseille face Sunderland in a pre-season friendly on 3 August at Bradford City's Valley Parade, with the Stadium of Light unavailable because of renovation work.

SPANISH STEPS: Greenwood was named Getafe's Player of the Season last term

Greenwood was born in Bradford and it could be his first game back in England since he was arrested in January 2022 following allegations surrounding material which was published online.

City sign Savinho

Manchester City have signed Brazil winger Savinho from French side Troyes until 2029 in a deal worth 40m euros (£30.8m).

The 20-year-old starred on loan at Girona last season as they finished third in La Liga.

Both Girona and Troyes are part of the City Football Group.

Savinho said City are currently the "best team in the world" and that he is excited to work under manager Pep Guardiola, who he called "one of the greatest coaches ever".

On why Manchester City is the right club for him, Savinho said: "[Because of] everything I've seen today. I just got here this morning and I turned to my agent and stepfather and said, 'there was no way I was going to turn down Manchester City'.

"I'm a Brazilian who likes to play on the front foot, to be happy, to play joyful football.

"I like playing one against one, making assists, scoring goals too, and helping the team. My main characteristic, what I like the most, is being happy and getting fans up off their seats."

Savinho, who is also known as Savio, started his career at Brazilian side Atletico Mineiro before joining Troyes in the summer of 2022.

He never played a competitive game for the Ligue 2 side, though, as he was sent on loan to PSV Eindhoven for the 2022-23 season.

After making just eight appearances for the Dutch giants, Savinho enjoyed success on loan at Girona last season, scoring 11 goals and making 10 assists in all competitions. A debut for Brazil against England followed and he scored his first international goal against Paraguay in the group stage of the Copa America.

Southgate out; who's next?

After 102 matches at the helm, stretching eight years, Gareth Southgate has quit as Three Lions boss after defeat by Spain in Sunday's Euro 2024 final.

He will be a tough act to follow as - on top of overseeing England's run to the Euro 2024 final - Southgate has taken his country to the Euro 2020 final, a World Cup semi-final and a World Cup quarter-final.

But who would follow him? Who has the credentials and would actually want a job that is often described as hardest one in football. Here are some of the bookies' favorites:

Mauricio Pochettino: The former Tottenham, PSG and Chelsea boss was heavily linked with Manchester United - before Erik ten Hag's contract was extended - and would relish returning to work in England.

He is keen to become Southgate's successor, lives in London, and his passion for football in this country makes him a serious contender.

Pochettino is also believed to not need any break from football after leaving Chelsea by mutual consent in May.

Graham Potter: The former Brighton boss is one of the favourites among the bookmakers after impressing in three years in charge at Brighton.

His reputation did suffer a bit of blow when he was sacked by Chelsea after less than seven months in charge in April 2023, but he remains one of English football's most respected coaches.

There is a major question mark about whether he would want an international job over a club role though, and he rejected a chance to manage Sweden in the past before discussing moves to Ajax and Leicester.

The England job would surely be too big to turn down though and it is thought Potter turned down Leicester earlier this summer, with half an eye on a future England role.

Thomas Tuchel: Another highly rated manager who is looking for work this summer.

A legend at Chelsea for helping the club win the Champions League in 2021, he left his job at Bayern Munich at the end of last season, despite talks to persuade him to stay.

Tuchel, who has also managed at the likes of Paris St-Germain and Borussia Dortmund, would relish a return to English football and is believed to be open to talks with the FA about being Southgate's successor.

He reportedly came close to replacing Erik ten Hag at Manchester United before they stuck with the Dutchman after his FA Cup win.

Sources close to Tuchel say he remains interested in the England job, but knows he is considered an outsider given the position of the other candidates.

Eddie Howe: Another English manager well fancied by the bookmakers.

The Newcastle boss has long been talked about as a potential England manager since impressing in charge of Bournemouth.

He has further enhanced his reputation at Newcastle - leading them in the Champions League in 2023-24, although they will not play in Europe next season.

The 46-year-old is tied to a long-term contract, understood to be until 2027, but it might be hard for Howe to turn down the opportunity if England came calling.

But speaking on Tuesday, Newcastle chief executive Darren Eales said the club would fight to keep their manager.

"We're on an exciting

journey and, as far as we're concerned, Eddie is the man to lead us on that," he said.

Jurgen Klopp: Another big-name manager out of work. If the FA was minded to go down the route of attracting a name from abroad, Klopp would surely be on its list of contenders.

The former Liverpool manager is unlikely to be available right now, having stepped down at Anfield and wanting a break. But - should the FA be willing to wait - Klopp could come into the reckoning.
