QUEEN'S TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO DAME JILLY COOPER

“May her hereafter be filled with impossibly handsome men and devoted dogs.”

Queen Camilla has paid a heartfelt tribute to her friend, Dame Jilly Cooper, after the author passed away unexpectedly at the age of 88 on Sunday.

After her agent announced her death, the Queen released a statement to express her “sadness” over her friend’s death, adding: “Very few writers get to be a legend in their own lifetime but Jilly was one, creating a whole new genre of literature and making it her own through a career that spanned over five decades.

“In person she was a wonderfully witty and compassionate friend to me and so many - and it was a particular pleasure to see her just a few weeks ago at my Queen’s Reading Room Festival where she was, as ever, a star of the show.

“I join my husband The King in sending our thoughts and sympathies to all her family.

“And may her hereafter be filled with impossibly handsome men and devoted dogs.”

Cooper is widely credited as the creator of the ‘bonkbuster’ literary genre and her books sold in the millions during her 1980s and 1990s heyday. Collectively known as The Rutshire Chronicles, they included Riders (1985) and 1988’s Rivals (adapted by Disney Plus in 2024 to great acclaim) and brimmed with tales of sex, class, rivalry, extramarital gallivanting and fine-looking toff-bonders, such as Rupert Campbell Black; unabashed Polo-playing alphas with rakish attitudes and very tight jodhpurs.

Campbell Black was rumoured to be based on Queen Camilla’s first husband, Andrew Parker Bowles – and he perhaps most encapsulated the author in the public imagination. As one British tabloid columnist put it this week: “Cooper was our cad-whisperer-in-chief. She also popularised a good-humoured, chaotic, quintessentially British attitude to sex: we might not be very good at it, but we enjoy it immensely.”

Cooper was a shrewd social observer. Bill Scott-Kerr, her publisher, said she “dissected the behaviour, bad mostly, of the English upper-middle classes with the sharpest of scalpels”. But she was also a fine comic writer, who married the word-play of Wodehouse to the foreplay of Penthouse.

Cooper’s career took off, inevitably, with a jock-strap. Born Jill Sallitt in Essex and raised amid dogs and ponies in the Yorkshire Dales, by the age of 32 and having failed to hold down a string of jobs and now married to the military publisher Leo Cooper, she found herself at a dinner party next to Godfrey Smith, editor of the Sunday Times Magazine, and told him about accidentally dyeing her husband’s rugby kit pink by putting her scarf in the wash. Smith was delighted by her chaotic ebullience and offered her a regular column.

This led to her first book, How to Stay Married, in which she passed on such useful advice as “Where marriage is concerned, cheerfulness, sexual enthusiasm and good cooking are nearer to godliness than cleanliness about the house”. Or “If you amuse a man in bed he’s not likely to bother about the mountain of dust underneath it.”

Several romantic novels followed, all given the QUEEN OF THE BONKBUSTER: Jilly Cooper’s bawdy tales of upper crust English rural life sold 11m copies and launched a new literary genre

one-word title of their heroine. It took until Riders in 1985 for her to become a publishing superstar. She sold 11 million books.

For 40 years, Jilly Cooper chronicled the comings and goings – largely the comings – of the rampant Rutshire gentry. It is a land of rotters such as Campbell-Black, and those who lust after them. She wrote with equal enthusiasm about the formidable sort of women who know how to wring a pheasant’s neck. “The male is a domestic animal,” she wrote, “which, if treated with firmness, Camilla (left) described Cooper as: “a wonderfully witty and compassionate friend to me and so many..”

can be trained to do most things.”

Cooper’s children Felix and Emily said in a statement, “Mum was the shining light in all of our lives. Her love for all of her family and friends knew no bounds. Her unexpected death has come as a complete shock. We are so proud of everything she achieved in her life and can’t begin to imagine life without her infectious smile and laughter.”

“Lack of integration leads us to a very dark place”

■ Top Tory under fire after ‘not another white face’ comment

Shadow Justice Secretary Robert Jenrick raised eyebrows this week when he told the BBC that “at the extreme levels, a lack of integration leads us into a very dark place as a country”.

Jenrick sought to explain remarks he made at a dinner in the Spring which were secretly recorded.

In an extract of his speech in March, published by The Guardian, Jenrick said the Handsworth area of Birmingham was “one of the worst-integrated places” he had ever been to.

He also said he had spent an hour-and-a-half there and not seen “another white face” during his visit, adding: “It’s not about the colour of your skin or your faith, of course it isn’t. But I want people to be living alongside each other, not parallel lives.”

The mayor of the West Midlands, Labour’s Richard Parker, said he believed the remarks were racist, something Jenrick strongly rejected.

‘lack of respect’

He’s set out intentionally to draw on a particular issue - people’s colour - to identify the point he wanted to make,” Parker said.

“It shows a lack of respect and understanding for those communities. I doubt whether or not if he went to a largely white community anywhere in the West Midlands he’d be making a comment similar to what he made about Handsworth.”

Conservative leader Kemi Badenoch backed Jenrick and in a BBC interview the shadow justice secretary said his remarks had been prescient.

Jenrick said: “There are numerous parts of our country now where the same story is happening, and at the extreme levels, a lack of integration leads us into a very dark place as a country.

“We’re here in Manchester today, a week on from a terrible terrorist attack where a man who lived in our country for 30 years clearly wasn’t well integrated, clearly didn’t share British values because he went on to murder British Jews.”

The chair of the Labour Party, Anna Turley, argued the initial remarks reduced people “to the

JENRICK: his comments come as his party struggles to outflank Reform on immigration colour of their skin”.

Handsworth’s Independent MP Ayoub Khan said the remarks were “not only wildly false but also incredibly irresponsible”.

‘fragmented loyalties’

Integration in communities has been a big theme at the Conservative conference this week, where the party has been discussing how to respond to the threat posed by Nigel Farage’s Reform UK.

Asked if there had been a generational failure of immigrant communities to properly integrate, Badenoch said: “No, I don’t think that there’s been a generational failure.

“I think that we are a successful multi-racial country, but I can see that things are fragmenting.”

She added: “I don’t want us to become a multicultural country where different people have different communities, no shared values, fragmented loyalties.

“I think that it is getting harder to integrate people because immigration has been too high.

“This is one of the things which I have acknowledged my party got wrong. It was not deliberate.”

Angry white men have stolen the flag, claims Gary Neville

FORMER England star Gary Neville has blamed “angry middle-aged white men” for creating rifts in society.

The manager-turned-pundit claimed the public is “being turned on each other”, in a video posted on social media.

Neville, a Labour supporter who captained Manchester United, said he was worried that the Union flag was being “used in a negative fashion”.

He also highlighted the “defiant” Manchester Jewish community after the local synagogue attack.

UK must ape Trump’s policies on low-skilled migration, Tory faithful told Britain must copy Donald Trump and consign the days of mass low-skilled migration to the past, Chris Philp declared this week.

Speaking the Conservative Annual Conference, the Shadow Home Secretary vowed to deliver “sustained” negative net migration and stop foreign nationals from claiming benefits.

Mr Philp met US vice president JD Vance to see how President Trump is making it more difficult for foreigners to live, work and study in America.

They also discussed White House mass deportation plans to end the Mexican border crossing crisis.

Mr Philp told Tories gathered in Manchester: “Just one in seven of recent arrivals from outside Europe came primarily for work.

“And, of those working, around half did so for low wages. And people who work on low wages pay less in tax than they consume in services. It is a myth that mass low-skill immigration is good for the economy.

Mr Philp suggested productivity may have stagnated because some UK firms relied on low-skilled workers instead of investing in technology and automation.

He said: “Rather than import low-skilled workers, we need to get people here into work.

“Of course, we welcome limited high-skilled immigration in the tech sector, finance, scientific research or medicine.

“But the days of mass low-skilled migration have to end.

“That is why only those who are making a contribution can stay permanently and those who are not citizens cannot expect to receive benefits.

“And that is why we will set a binding annual cap on immigration, voted each year by Parliament. So we will deliver sustained negative net migration.”

The Office for National Statistics has warned migration will lead to another five million people living in Britain in just seven years.

Its statisticians predict net migration will settle at 340,000 a year from 2028.

Mr also Philp mocked Labour’s “weak gimmicks” over the Channel small boats crisis.

He said: “First they said they would smash the gangs – well, that is laughable. Then they said the French would stop boats near the coast. That hasn’t happened either.

He quipped: “Maybe one of them could have a turn at being French Prime Minister?”

Einstein first picked up a violin at age four and played the instrument for the rest of his life

Einstein fiddle fetches £860k in Gloucester auction

A violin that once belonged to Albert Einstein has sold at auction for £860,000.

The 1894 Zunterer violin is believed to have been Einstein's first and was initially expected to fetch around £300,000 when it went under the hammer at Dominic Winter Auctioneers in South Cerney, Gloucestershire.

A philosophy book that Einstein gifted to a friend also sold for £2,200.

All prices will have an extra 26.4% commission added on top, meaning the final price for the violin will be above £1m.

Auctioneers believe that once the commission is added the sale could be the highest ever for a violin that was not previously owned by a concert violinist or made by Stradivarius - with the previous record being held by an instrument that was likely played on the Titanic.

Chris Albury, senior auctioneer and historical memorabilia specialist at Dominic Winter Auctioneers, described the sale, which was completed in about 10 minutes, as a "special moment".

"We had three phone bidders heavily involved up until the very end," he said.

Mr Albury said many people were unaware that Einstein had played the violin.

"He always said that if he hadn't been a scientist, he'd have liked to have been a musician.

"He started learning the violin at about the age of four and played it every day through his life."

A bike saddle also owned by Einstein did not sell at the auction and may be re-listed.

All the items up for auction were given to his good friend and physicist colleague Max von Laue in late 1932.

Shortly afterwards Einstein fled to America to escape the rise of antisemitism and Nazism in Germany.

Max von Laue gifted them to an acquaintance and Einstein fan, Margarete Homrich 20 years later, and it was her great-great granddaughter who had now put them up for sale.

Polish woman breaks down as court tells her: you're not Madeleine McCann

A Polish woman who claimed to be the missing Madeleine McCann broke down in tears when a jury this week was told she is not the missing girl.

Julia Wandelt shouted out 'no' in Polish before rushing to the back of the dock when prosecutor Michael Duck KC said there was 'scientific evidence' she is not Madeleine.

Wandelt, 24, went on trial on Monday accused of stalking Madeleine's parents Kate and Gerry, by calling them, emailing them and turning up at their home in Rothley in Leicestershire.

The court heard that on one day alone, she called Kate McCann 60 times, referring to her as 'mommy' and claiming to have memories of the night she was abducted.

She also sent messages and pictures of herself to Amelie McCann, one of Madeleine's younger siblings, along with a message begging for a DNA test, the court heard.

'alarm or distress'

Wandelt, a Polish national, appeared at Leicester Crown Court alongside Karen Spragg, 61, of Caerau in Cardiff, who is also accused of stalking Kate and Gerry McCann causing them 'serious alarm or distress' between June 1 2022 and 21st February 2025.

Wandelt is in custody, Spragg is on conditional bail. They both deny the charges.

The court heard that from June 2022 Wandelt 'began to make attempts to persuade anybody who was prepared to listen that she was Madeleine McCann'.

Prosecutor Micheal Duck KC said Wandelt, for a period of three years, 'pursued the myth she was Madeleine McCann' and pursued Kate

Julia Wandelt has stalked the McCann family relentlessly for three years and Gerry by 'electronic communication, direct telephone calls, visits to their village and ultimately visits to their home address'.

Mr Duck told the jury: 'Her contention over the almost three years which followed was that she must have been abducted and taken to Poland where she lived with people who erroneously claimed to be her natural birth parents.'

She also claimed to have memories 'of the manner of her abduction' and of being Madeleine.

Mr Duck said those memories included, on occasions, reporting to remember growing up in the McCann household and interacting with Madeleine's younger twin siblings Sean and Amelie, now in their 20s.

'One might be tempted to think that this has some measure of credibility but can we, at this very early stage in this trial make this clear: Julia Wandelt is not Madeleine McCann.'

It was at this point Wandelt called out 'no' in Polish and broke down in tears before moving to the back of the dock where she was comforted by Spragg.

When the case resumed after a short break, Mr Duck told jurors they will hear 'unequivocal scientific evidence' that Madeleine McCann is the natural daughter of Kate and Gerry McCann and 'this lady Julia Wandelt has no familial line to them at all'.

He said there was evidence Wandelt used AI tool Chatgpt to try to back up her claims and when evidence did not fit she simply 'moved the goalposts'.

Mr Duck said: 'Why Julia Wandelt chose to pursue the entirely false claim that she was Madeleine McCann may not be a straightforward question to answer and, fortunately, it is not one which you are required to answer.'

'Because whatever belief you may hold, nothing gives you the right to pursue and stalk people just because you want them to bend to your will and do as you demand or request.'

manipulated images

The court heard she sent a message on social media to Amelie McCann along with images 'designed to persuade Amelie that there were similarities between them to support the connection they were somehow related'.

He said those images had been manipulated and features of them altered 'in an attempt to persuade the viewer that those two individuals were more alike than they were'. They were recovered from Wandelt's phone when she was arrested in February.

Mr Duck said there were 'basic facts' which showed she was not Madeleine, including that they were not the same age.

The court heard she also did not limit her claims to being Madeleine, and at one point claimed to be another missing child, German Inga Gerhicke and later Acacia Bishop, who was abducted from her great grandmother's house in Salt Lake City, Utah.

He said it was in June 2020 that she first started trying to contact the McCanns, and called the hospital where they both worked.

She got through to the hospital communications manager 'and engaged in a lengthy conversation in which said that she believed that she was Madeleine McCann'.

In April 2024 she managed to get hold of Kate's mobile number, which she has not changed since Madeleine disappeared.

During a single day in April 2024 Wandelt called or messaged Kate's telephone on over 60 occasions.

The trial, due to last three weeks, continues.

News from Britain

One of Lawrence killers finally admits his guilt - but refuses to name his accomplices

"The guilt I have carried around all these years has been a very heavy burden upon my shoulders," he said, adding that his 16-year-old victim was "completely innocent".

ONE OF THE killers in the notorious Stephen Lawrence case has for the first time admitted his part in the racist murder – but has insisted he cannot name his accomplices.

David Norris told a Parole Board hearing he was "disgusted and ashamed with himself" for taking part in the 1993 stabbing, but said he and his family would be "at risk" if he divulged details of the others involved.

Speaking publicly for the first time about his role in the murder, which apart from the Jamie Bulger case was perhaps the most infamous crime committed in the UK in the 1990s, Norris said he was caught up in a "gang mentality" as he described punching the aspiring architect, 18, as he was crouched on the ground.

Questioned if any of the group had a weapon, he told the parole hearing: "I am not here to discuss other people, I am here to take responsibility for my part in what happened, my actions."

'no group loyalty'

Norris told the hearing there were five individuals involved in the murder, but claimed he did not see the 22cm blade which inflicted the fatal blows until they fled the scene.

The group never spoke about the incident except to say "be careful of what you say from here on in, and it was never spoken about again", Norris told the hearing.

He insisted there is "no group loyalty" or "criminal code" preventing him from naming his accomplices, adding: "There is one reason and one reason only, because I'm worried about the safety of my family."

Only two of Mr Lawrence's five or six alleged attackers have ever faced justice after Norris was jailed for life with a minimum of 14 years, along with Gary Dobson, who must serve a minimum of 15 years, in a trial that hinged on tiny traces of forensic evidence in 2012.

A panel of experts from the Parole Board must now decide whether he is safe to be released or moved to an open prison.

In a prepared statement at the start of his evidence, Norris, now 49, apologised to the Lawrence family and the entire black community.

"The guilt I have carried around all these years has been a very heavy burden upon my shoulders," he said, adding Mr Lawrence was "completely innocent".

He admitted he was a "horrible, violent, racist" 16-year-old who was "fixated on becoming a gangster" when the group targeted Mr Lawrence and his friend Duwayne Brooks in Eltham, south-east London, in 1993.

It also affected the wider community as well, especially the black community," he said.

"It must have made some, if not all, not feel safe walking around the streets of London and I want to sincerely apologise to the whole black and ethnic community for the fear I have caused."

However, Mr Lawrence's grieving mother told the panel he was an "obvious danger to society" and should not be released.

In a statement read by her lawyer, Imran Khan, Baroness Doreen Lawrence said: "I am of the view that this person is a risk to society and dangerous.

Stephen Lawrence: his brutal killing at a south London bus stop horrified the nation

"I simply can't see him walking the streets of our diverse country without thinking that he would harm someone like me – a black person – someone he described as wanting to kill and torture."

'denial after denial'

She reminded the hearing of a shocking covert police recording of Norris and Dobson from 1994, known as the Footscray tapes, in which Norris discussed how he would "kill every black c*" he knows.

He later discussed taking two submachine guns to Catford, a diverse area of southeast London.

Any person who expresses views like this and doesn't recant is an obvious danger to society and must remain in custody," Baroness Lawrence added.

She said Norris forced her to listen to "denial after denial" during his 2012 trial, adding he did not show "a hint of empathy or feeling for me or what my family had gone through".

David Norris, who was jailed for life in 2012 for his part in the 1993 murder, is applying for parole. He claims his refusal to name the other killers is solely to protect his own family

In her opening remarks, the panel chair, Cassie Williams, said Mr Lawrence's murder was an "awful crime" which had a "profound impact on society".

Referring to the judge's sentencing remarks when Norris was jailed in 2012, she said the judge noted he had "not shown the slightest regret" and had "lied to the court".

Norris, who had always denied involvement, finally admitted he was at the scene of the murder in prison. He told the hearing he was inspired to take responsibility for actions after he watched a documentary featuring Mr Lawrence's father, which touched him "deeply".

"The next day I thought I have got to do the right thing for my soul and hopefully it will give the family some peace," he said.

A bungled police investigation led to the landmark MacPherson Inquiry, which concluded that the Metropolitan Police's probe into the murder was marred by institutional racism.

Ahead of the hearing, Mr Lawrence's father said Norris should not be considered for parole until he names the other members of the racist gang.

"It's important for me because of what these people have done," Dr Lawrence said.

"This man has robbed me of so much that there is no way I can even start to think that he should be allowed to walk free."

LinkedIn: "I was driving to Salford City, going down Littleton Road seeing 50-60 Union Jack flags. Then on the way back I went down Bury New Road, which has got the Jewish community right at its heart and they're out on the streets, defiant, not hiding or in fear.

"I just kept thinking as I was driving home last night that we're all being turned on each other and the division that's being created is absolutely disgusting. Mainly created by angry middle-aged white men who know exactly what they're doing."

The sports star, who is now involved in property development, said: "Funny enough on one of my development sites last week there was a Union Jack flag put up and I took it down instantly.

"Some people might be watching this and thinking: 'Gary you're not really patriotic.' I've played for my country 85 times, I love my country, I love Manchester and I love England, but I've been building in this city for 15-20 years and there's no one [who has] put a Union Jack flag up in the last 15-20 years so why do you need to put one up now?

"The Union Jack flag used in a negative fashion is not right and I'm a proud supporter of England, of Great Britain, of our country and will champion it anywhere in the world as one of the greatest places to live, but I think we need to check ourselves, check ourselves and start to think about bringing ourselves back to a neutral point.

"All these idiots that are out there spreading hate speech in any form and abuse in any form, we must stop promoting them."

Cocaine Paddington nothing to sniff at as copyright owners refuse to grin and bear it

The producers behind the hit Paddington films and the estate of his creator, Michael Bond, are suing the company behind Spitting Image after it depicted the beloved bear as a foul-mouthed podcast host.

The claimants, represented by law firm Edwin Coe, have filed a High Court complaint against Avalon, citing copyright and design right concerns.

While the filing does not reveal the details of the claim, it comes months after the Spitting Image YouTube show, called The Rest is Bullsh*t!, featuring the fictional bear, was released.

Avalon, StudioCanal and Michael Bond's estate declined to comment.

For those familiar with the bear from Peru, who first appeared on the scene in Bond's 1958 book, A Bear Called Paddington, the sketch is a somewhat different portrayal of the children's character.

In Spitting Image's parody, Paddington is hosting a podcast with Prince Harry, where the bear is seen swearing, reading adverts for guns and robot sex dolls and admitting to taking cocaine.

His accent has changed to a stereotypically strong South American one, as he reveals he doesn't really sound like Ben Whishaw, the British actor who voiced his character in the popular Paddington films.

The pair are seen interviewing X owner Elon

Musk and the footage also features sketches including US President Donald Trump and UK Prime Minister Keir Starmer.

The Rest Is Bullsh*t! is intended to poke fun at podcast series The Rest Is..., produced by Gary Lineker's Goalhanger productions.

A more recent episode shows Paddington make further references to his drug habit.

The Spitting Image TV show, which lampooned celebrities, politicians and royals, was a huge hit for ITV when it first ran in the 1980s and 1990s.

The Bafta and Emmy award-winning television series originally ran for 18 series between 1984 and 1996, returning

British homeowners find nothing pretty about A Loveliness of Ladybirds

Brits have been left shocked this week by a swarm of harlequin ladybirds as unseasonably warm weather has produced a record crop of the much-loved insects.

Hundreds of home 'invasions' were reported on social media and news outlets, as the beetles seek somewhere warm to spend the cold months ahead.

The collective noun for Ladybirds is A Loveliness, but judging by the online reaction, not many considered the invasion lovely.

'Anyone else get invaded by ladybirds today? I love them but this was too much,' one woman posted on TikTok.

Another wrote: 'They covered my whole living room, bedroom, all on the windows - I was petrified,' while one vented: 'My house is literally crawling with them.'

While the sudden influx might seem daunting, there's a simple reason for it.

'They are looking for somewhere to lay low over the winter,' Professor Tim Coulson, science author and biologist at the University of Oxford, told the Daily Mail.

'They sleep through the winter through in what is known as diapause, a bit like insect hibernation.

'They slow their metabolism right down to minimise energy use. In the wild they chose places like under bark in a pile of leaves, anywhere providing a bit of shelter and away from things that might eat them.

'Sometimes they might come into houses looking for a safe haven.'

Known as cluster-hibernators, ladybirds swarm because they're looking for a warm place to hibernate for winter.

Worried homeowners might be tempted to try to get rid of them but experts reassure that the beetles are harmless, and say we should 'enjoy' seeing them.

Professor Coulson said: 'Predators, like ladybirds, are incredibly important components of ecosystems.

'We should cherish our ladybirds! Definitely do not kill the ladybirds as they keep the numbers of pest species down.'

Local News

Oh, Fancy That! closing its doors after two decades of serving the local community

OH, FANCY THAT!, the long-running British import store in Reseda is closing its doors on Tuesday October 14th after more than 20 years.

Owner Heather Karasek, who took over the business with her husband Sam following the death of her mother Jean, made the difficult decision recently and at our request has provided the following account the much-loved shop's origins, history and the reason for its closure:

"It wasn't easy for Sam and I to decide to close Oh, Fancy That!

I grew up in the shop. My mom Jean Karasek from Newcastle, started the shop with one booth at the Valley Indoor Swap Meet. She eventually took on a space at the Wall Street Plaza and then moved to where we are now in Tarzana Square. Oh, Fancy That! has been in this location for over 20 years.

Jean loved her shop and she loved loved talking to her customers and supporting other Brits in the area. She was always giving out her business card and even tipped waiters with British Chocolate bars! Her favorite topics to discuss were the Royal Family, Newcastle United...and just about anything else British related! Jean always said the best things came from England.

Celebrity clientele

During her time at the helm of the business, Jean British gift baskets for loads of celebrities including The Osbournes, The Beckhams and Lisa Vanderpump and sold British sweets to everyone from Dave Grohl, Taylor Hawkins and Slash, to Matt Leblanc, and Samantha Mumba, to name just a few. Mom loved a good name drop! She even donated fascinators to a local hospital for patients staying up to watch Harry and Megan's Wedding. Over the years she was in the LA Times, The British Weekly, on KTLA and even an episode of Tori Spelling's old reality show!

We loved to have lunch together at the Kings Head in Santa Monica. Whenever I asked her about her British Shop Competition she always said 'They're not competitors, they're a part of the community.' She also loved being connected to Brits in LA, going to the Lythgoe Family Pantos every Christmas and we always celebrated New Years Eve at 4pm at Pickwick's Pub.

Mom would ask if I wanted to take the shop over one day and I always said 'No, I'm not from England the same way you are! People love coming to see you to feel like they're back in England for a minute.' But life has a way of messing with your plans. Mom passed away from breast cancer in September 2020. Right in the middle of Covid. She was fiercely private about her whole experience with the disease so I had no idea what to do. I just knew in my heart we should keep going. Sheila, mom's best friend, single-handedly kept the shop running while I navigated my grief. Quickly, I decided to put all my savings into the shop and give it a proper go. I hunted down products that I remembered her saying she couldn't get here and listened to customer requests.

Covid + tariffs

One specific customer, Tam, seemed to know exactly what everyone always wanted! We had a Coronation party, a Flake 99 day, I made scones and mince pies from scratch. Customers quickly became a new family. Brits in LA's famous 'Mayor of Breakfast' Bernard Skibben (in his Nineties!) would check on me every weekend, helping me count down the days until my now husband arrived from England.

I have always wanted to live in England but had always said I'd never leave mom behind in LA. With her gone and life as I always saw it forever changed - I finally decided I wanted to make the move. We put the shop up for sale to see if anyone else wanted to take it on. In May of 2024 Sam and I made the move to the countryside of Somerset. Unfortunately, with the introduction of new tariffs adding to already raised post-Covid prices, having to employ full-time staff and manage from afar, it just wasn't the same. With no plans for us to return to Los Angeles permanently and no one coming forward to buy it - we made the decision it was time to close.

We will forever be grateful to the local community for being so kind to me after losing mom and so incredibly supportive of Mom, myself and my husband

HAVING A BLINDER: The Newbies (top) celebrate their win while (above) last place Dum Dum winners Team Albania were just happy to take part...

Beginner's Pluck at the Trivia...

Trivia newcomers The Newbies overcame 14 other teams to win the latest Brits in LA Pub Quiz at O'Briens in Santa Monica last Tuesday.

Join the fun there next time on Tuesday October 14 at 8pm when Sandro Monetti hosts another enjoyable contest.

There's a garden gnome trophy, free drinks and other goodies for the most successful players while the consolation prizes include a giant potato, which this week was won by Team Takagi (above).

ARIES: Now is a good time for putting your most important long-term goals at the top of your to-do list. Do not procrastinate!

TAURUS: You are likely feeling concerned about your future finances or career this coming week. This is understandable considering how many expenses you have had of late. Take one day at a time.

GEMINI: Make time to get up and get going as soon as you can as Jupiter the Santa Claus of the planets in your money house is gearing up for a while ahead. Time to get motivated!

CANCER: Your moods can change quickly now due to powerful Mars in your cousin sign of Scorpio and so it's good that you are keeping it mostly low-key. You have some unfinished business which should be your priority.

LEO: You should be starting to process and understand issues in your life from the distant past. It's becoming clear now (hopefully) that you cannot change the past.

VIRGO: Do not push too hard...just let yourself breathe and relax. You are the biggest worrier of all the signs but now is the time to show your organized side to those that need your help. Just do not forget your own needs.

LIBRA: You can expect to receive financial surprises these next few days. Mars is in your money house going forward and can bring some new opportunities. Happy Birthday!

SCORPIO: Remember to heed your intuition now. It has and continues to be your best friend. Your boss Mars in house now is very much on your side. Just know that and it's time to let go of the past.

SAGITTARIUS: It's not currently a time to be self-indulgent or downhearted. You are the free spirit of the signs. Your boss Jupiter is currently in mellow moody Cancer. Something good will transpire soon.

CAPRICORN: It's time to lighten your outlook about any current situation; your boss Saturn is going backwards now and so is bringing up unfinished business to finally complete.

AQUARIUS: It's a good time to set your intentions and be ready to move on them as soon as you can.

You are somewhat resistant to change so just try to be open - as they are coming, ready or not.

PISCES: Don't look backwards. just look up and at what you want to achieve most of all now. Expect news from your past, possibly a romantic renewal or gift.

"NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid on a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of the outstanding lien that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 844-477-7869, or visit this internet Web site www.stoxposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case T.S.# 88202. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale." For sales conducted after January 1, 2021: NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (844) 477-7869, or visit this internet website www.STOXPOSTING.com, using the file number assigned to this case 88202 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid; by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code; so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Disclosure In compliance with CA civil code 2924f(F), the opening bid for the foreclosure sale is based on a valuation provided t the trustee by the lender of the lender's representative. The trustee does not determine, verify, or opine on the accuracy of this valuation and makes no representation regarding the market value of the property subject to foreclosure (the "Property"). The trustee's compliance or non-compliance with CA civil code 2924f(F) shall not be construed as an opinion, warranty, or representation regarding (i) the priority of the deed of trust being foreclosed, (ii) the condition of title to the Property, or (iii) any other matters affecting the Property, Including the value of the Property. The trustee relies solely on the trustee's sale guaranty and/or information provided by the lender regarding the lien priority and title condition and does not independently verify such information. All bidders are solely responsible for conducting their own independent due diligence regarding the loan, the Property, its value, the lien priority of the deed of trust being foreclosed, and the condition of the title to the Property. The trustee assumes no liability for the accuracy or completeness of any information provided by third parties, including the lender. The valuation used to determine the minimum opening bid applies only to the Initially scheduled sale date. Any postponement or continuation of the sale does not obligate the trustee to obtain or rely upon a new valuation, nor does it alter the trustee's limited role in the process. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ANNA BOGUSLAWA LASMAN CASE NO. 25STPB11012

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the lost WILL or estate, or both of ANNA BOGUSLAWA LASMAN. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by MICHAEL ROBERT LASMAN in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that MICHAEL ROBERT LASMAN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's lost WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The lost WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 10/31/25 at 8:30AM in Dept. 29 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Why you need dental insurance in retirement.

Medicare doesn't pay for dental care.¹

As good as Medicare is, it was never meant to cover everything. If you want protection, you need to purchase individual insurance.

Early detection can prevent small problems from becoming expensive ones.

The best way to avoid large dental bills is preventive care. Experts recommend checkups twice a year.

Previous dental work can wear out.

Your odds of having a dental problem only go up as you age.²

Treatment is expensive — especially the services people over 50 often need.

Unexpected bills, like $190 for a filling, or $1,213 for a crown³ can be a real burden, especially if you're on a fixed income.

When you're comparing plans ...

- ▶ Look for coverage that helps pay for major services.
- ▶ Look for coverage with no deductibles.
- ▶ Shop for coverage with no annual maximum on cash benefits.

Simply put – without dental insurance, there may be an important gap in your healthcare coverage.

Scotland:

Angus Gunn pulled off a stunning stoppage-time save to deny Konstantinos Kareltsas.

If Scotland defeat bottom seeds Belarus on Sunday and Greece are defeated in Denmark, Clarke's men will be guaranteed one of the top two places in the group, ensuring at worst they will be in the play-offs for the finals next summer.

No-one has now managed Scotland's men in more matches than Clarke, and his 71st game tells the story of why fans have been polarized about his impact during his six years in charge.

For the majority of this qualifier, the Scots looked like they were playing with the hand-brake on. They failed to have a shot on target in the first half.

Vangelis Pavlidis somehow failed to divert into an open goal from just yards out. The Benfica striker then had his head in his hands again just after the interval when he nodded over. Giorgos Masouras flashed off target from close range soon after.

The mood at Hampden was bordering on toxic. But Scotland said no.

When they should have been at least three down, Clarke's players gritted their teeth and displayed the resilience that has taken them to two major tournaments under this head coach, scoring three goals from nowhere.

Three games down, three to go on the road to the United States, Canada and Mexico. Write these players and this head coach off at your peril.

International rugby ban for any players signing on to breakaway league

Former England centre and 2003 Rugby World Cup winner Mike Tindall is fronting the R360 project, which is planning to launch in October 2026

Rugby's leading nations have united to announce a blanket ban on playing international matches for recruits to a new proposed breakaway league.

England, New Zealand, Ireland and France are among those who currently either favour or exclusively pick players from their domestic competitions.

That meant signing up to the globe-trotting R360 itinerary was always set to put their players' Test careers on hold.

However, Scotland, Australia, South Africa and Italy - all of whom regularly pick players at foreign clubs for their national sides - have joined them in ruling out selecting R360 players.

"As a group of national rugby unions, we are urging extreme caution for players and support staff considering joining the proposed R360 competition," a statement from the nations read.

"Each of the national unions will be advising men's and women's players that participation in R360 would make them ineligible for international selection.

"We all welcome new investment and innovation in rugby, and support ideas that can help the game evolve and reach new audiences, but any new competition must strengthen the sport as a whole, not fragment or weaken it.

"R360 has given us no indication as to how it plans to manage player welfare, how players would fulfil their aspirations of representing their countries, and how the competition would coexist with the international and domestic calendars so painstakingly negotiated in recent years for both our men's and women's games.

"These are all issues that would have been much better discussed collaboratively, but those behind the proposed competition have not engaged with or met all unions to explain and better understand their business and operating model.

"The R360 model, as outlined publicly, rather appears designed to generate profits and return them to a very small elite, potentially hollowing out the investment that national unions and existing leagues make in community rugby, player development, and participation pathways."

The Welsh Rugby Union (WRU) did not put its name to the statement because of the current consultation into Welsh professional rugby.

However, it said: "The Welsh Rugby Union supports this statement, and we are considering changes we may need to make to qualification rules in Wales as part of ongoing analysis following our recent consultation process.

"As we continue to analyse and understand the proposals, we reserve the right not to select men's and women's players for international duty if they participate in this competition."

The statement is a blow to R360 organisers whose pitch to players had included the promise that the tournament would be scheduled away from international action, leaving open the possibility of combining the new tournament with their Test careers.

R360 plans to launch in October 2026, offering players hefty contracts and a slimmed-down playing schedule to represent new teams in a series of events in major cities around the world.

Reacting to the unions' statement, R360 said: "Our philosophy is clear - if players want to play for their country, they should have that opportunity. Why would the unions stand in their way?"

Rampant England maul the Welsh

■ Tuchel's men stroll to 3-0 friendly win at Wembley

England delivered another exciting attacking display to outclass an out-of-sorts Wales and stroll to victory in a friendly at Wembley on Thursday night.

Head coach Thomas Tuchel kept faith with the squad that secured the best win of his reign when beating Serbia 5-0 in the World Cup qualifier in Belgrade in September - and they delivered in style once more.

England ran Wales ragged in the opening stages, establishing a three-goal lead inside only 20 minutes.

Aston Villa's Morgan Rogers built on his excellent display in Serbia by turning home the opening goal from Marc Guehi's cross after three minutes, with club team-mate Ollie Watkins making the most of his chance to deputize for injured captain Harry Kane by doubling England's lead from close range eight minutes later.

Bukayo Saka then became Arsenal's highest England goalscorer with a spectacular strike, curled high past Wales keeper Karl Darlow with his left foot. It was his 13th goal for his country.

Rogers also hit the woodwork after the break and, while Wales improved as England's tempo dropped, this was a routine and impressive win for Tuchel's side.

The Three Lions now move on to face Latvia in their next World Cup qualifier in Riga on Tuesday while Wales host Belgium in Cardiff on Monday.

England's emphatic win must be placed in the context that it came in the face of a desperately poor Wales performance, Craig Bellamy's side giving every impression that their attention was focused on Monday's crucial World Cup qualifier against Belgium.

This was still another resounding victory, however, the platform set by an opening characterised by the intensity and attacking variety that was missing in the early stages of Tuchel's reign.

Much has been made of Tuchel's decision to exclude Real Madrid's Jude Bellingham, despite the player's wish to be included, but in his absence Villa's Rogers justified that choice with another fine performance.

He scored the opener, his first for England, had a hand in Watkins' second, then also hit the woodwork before being substituted after 69 minutes.

Watkins will also have been delighted to get on the scoresheet, although he went off at half-time after colliding with the post after missing another opportunity.

It was also a big night for Everton goalkeeper Jordan Pickford, who beat his and Gordon Banks' record of seven successive clean sheets for England, ensuring he achieved that record with fine second-half saves from David Brooks and Chris Mepham.

Tougher tests lie ahead for England, starting against Latvia in Riga on Tuesday, but this was another very satisfactory night for Tuchel.

Resilient Scots notch unlikely comeback win

Scotland took a significant step towards securing a World Cup play-off place on Thursday as Lewis Ferguson's first international goal helped secure an unlikely comeback win over a dominant Greece at Hampden.

In a record-equalling 71st game for head coach Steve Clarke, the Scots were aiming to avenge the Nations League relegation inflicted on them by the classy Greeks at this stadium in March.

For over an hour, Clarke's men were timid and outplayed again by their visitors, who should have been at least three up by the time Roma left-back Kostas Tsimikas drilled in on the rebound just after the hour.

There were loud boos from the Tartan Army, but Ryan Christie quickly equalised in the aftermath of a corner - an effort which survived a lengthy VAR check - to stage a remarkable fight-back.

And when Ferguson slashed in from close range after a scrappy free-kick with 10 minutes left, the disgruntlement among the home fans turned to euphoria as Clarke's resilient side went on to claim a price-less victory.

That was only amplified when Lyndon Dykes capitalized on calamitous goalkeeping from Konstantinos Tzolakis to smash in a third, just moments after
