Brand going to jail

■ Star guilty of one rape and three sexual assaults after 'using fame to offend'

Russell Brand has been convicted of rape and sexual assault, and is now expected to face a substantial prison sentence.

TARNISHED BRAND: the entertainer denied all the charges against him

On Thursday a jury found the entertainer guilty of one count of rape and three counts of sexual assault, following a four-week trial at Southwark Crown Court in London.

He was found not guilty of two other counts of rape, and one count of attempted indecent assault. The jury deliberated for eight-and-a-half hours.

Brand was taken into custody after the verdicts were delivered, and was refused bail. He is due to be sentenced on Monday.

high-profile

It can now be reported that Brand is also facing further rape allegations made by two women and the 51-year-old has already been questioned by officers in relation to the complaints. The Metropolitan Police said its investigation "remains ongoing".

During the trial, Brand faced allegations from six women spanning the decade between 1999 and 2009, when he rose to fame as one of Britain's most high-profile entertainers.

The women came to court to reveal how Brand used his immense fame to force them into sexual activity.

Brand, who told his wife Laura Gallacher "I love you" after entering the dock, displayed no emotion as the jury delivered its verdicts.

Afterwards he mouthed "I'm good, I'm good" to his defence counsel as he left the dock. His walk was steadily paced, and he continued to show little emotion.

The judge, Mr Justice Bennathan, told Brand to expect "a significant custodial term" after the verdicts were delivered.

The jury found Brand guilty of raping a fan after meeting her at a 2009 stand-up show at the Hammersmith Apollo.

Brand was found guilty of groping an MTV worker during a party at a Soho bar in 2004, but not guilty of going on to rape her in a toilet.

He was convicted of kissing and groping a Choice FM worker after encountering her in a corridor at the Capital Radio building in 2004 or 2005.

Brand was also convicted by the jury of sexually assaulting a Channel 4 worker in 2009 when she had been forced to give him a massage.

"birthright"

Brand was found not guilty by the jury of raping a woman he met at a cabaret show on the fringes of the 1999 Labour Party conference in Bournemouth.

Brand had claimed to be the victim of a media conspiracy to paint him as a sexual predator and insisted in court that consent was "more important than sex itself".

But he faced the compelling evidence of six women who accused him of crimes over the course of a decade.

Brand was also confronted with his own words from his 2007 book in which he claimed sex was a "birthright" and friends who revealed his relentless pursuit of sleeping with 5,000 women.

Mr Justice Bennathan ruled that Brand be remanded into custody until sentencing on Monday, when he is expected to receive a lengthy prison sentence.

The judge said "I regret the hardship caused to the children, of course" after being told that Brand would like bail over the weekend to explain the convictions to his children.

But he said Brand "has considerable resources", adding: "Whatever the good intentions of the family and the defendant today, I think there are substantial grounds to fear he might in the end not feel able to come along and face his sentence."

After the verdict, Detective Superintendent Andy Furphy paid tribute to the "extraordinary courage, resilience and determination of the women who came forward and reported what happened to them".

"Despite intense media and public scrutiny, they relived deeply personal and traumatic experiences and placed their trust in us. Without their bravery, this outcome would not have been possible," he said.

"Brand used his influence, status and fame to exploit and sexually offend against women. As his profile grew, so too did his sense of entitlement."

He added: "I hope this conviction sends a clear message that no one is above the law, no matter how famous or powerful they may be."

David Roberts, senior crown prosecutor in the London rape and serious sexual assault unit, described Brand as "predatory".

Court hears more than 4,000 demonstrators have been arrested since Palestine Action was proscribed

■ Founder petitions UK Supreme Court to overturn ban on group, which protests what it believes is genocide in Gaza

The UK Supreme Court has been told that the banning of Palestine Action had triggered unprecedented civil disobedience from law-abiding protesters in the UK

Judges were hearing an appeal by the group's co-founder, Huda Al Amori, to lift the ban on free speech grounds.

In the 16 months since the group was banned, more than 4,000 mostly elderly demonstrators have been arrested for supporting the organization in protests against what they say is genocide in Gaza.

On Monday, another 27 were added to that tally outside the Supreme Court after dozens of demonstrators assembled outside the central London court before the start of the hearing.

Several demonstrators held placards using the same wording as an X post written by the wife of a national security adviser.

Sarah Helm, a journalist and author who is married to Jonathan Powell, posted on X in October: "God help us authors who support Palestine and Palestine Action."

The protesters inserted different words instead of "authors" on their signs, including "normal people", "students" and "sons of Holocaust survivors".

Green Party politician Jenny Jones said: "These placards are actually using the words Sarah Helm used, and she's the wife of the national security adviser, Jonathan Powell.

"And she published exactly these words, and the Met Police stated that her message did not cross the criminal threshold, so let's hope we don't see any arrests."

Harry Potter actor Alfred Enoch held up a sign reading "this is democracy not terrorism" as other demonstrators were removed by police.

'FREE SPEECH ISSUE': Police arrested 27 protesters outside the Supreme Court

During often tense exchanges with the judges, Amori's lawyer Raza Hussein Qaisi accepted that Palestine Action was not peaceful because of the criminal damage its members caused to companies linked to Israel's defence industry. But he said those incidents were part of legitimate direct action stretching back to the suffragettes.

The Home Secretary's own experts confirmed the vast majority of its direct action would not constitute an act of terrorism on the basis that any damage to property is typically more minor. Common tactics include graffiti, petty vandalism, occupation and lock-ons.

The government is defending the ban and has been backed by a coalition of Jewish organisations. On Wednesday they told the judges that Palestine Action was a 'sinister' organisation that had moved its crosshairs from defence firms to British Jewish life.

The case continues with a judgment expected at a later date.

Home Secretary scraps settlement plans for migrant care workers

■ Move will reduce wait time to just five years for some, but double it for others

Home Secretary Shabana Mahmood has scrapped plans to make foreign care workers already in the UK wait 15 years to qualify for permanent settlement.

Mahmood had proposed doubling the wait for indefinite leave to remain (ILR) from five years to 10 for most migrants, with some facing a 15-year wait.

But following a backlash from several Labour MPs, Mahmood revised the policy and care workers who earn at least £25,000 a year and arrived in the UK before May 2025 would continue to qualify after five years.

The Conservatives said Mahmood's "U-turn" would cost taxpayers billions of pounds.

ILR, also known as settlement, gives a person the right to live, work and study in the UK for as long as they like and apply for benefits if they are eligible. They can also use it to apply for British citizenship.

Last November, Mahmood announced plans to delay settlements in response to concerns over the number of people approaching eligibility, in the wake of record post-Brexit net migration figures under the previous Conservative government, nicknamed the "Boriswave".

"fair resolution"

Asked whether she had u-turned on her earlier promises, she replied "I don't accept that", adding that some 500,000 people in the UK "will not now settle at five years".

"They will have to wait longer before they can achieve settlement in this country, and I've come to a fair resolution for care workers," she said.

The home secretary refused to say what the cost will be of scrapping her plans.

When she put forward the original plans in March, the Home Office used data from the committee which advises ministers on migration to forecast that the existing rules would cost £4.2bn. This was the estimated lifetime cost of the 117,000 foreign care workers expected to settle in the UK from 2026-2030. It estimated this would rise to £9.5bn once their adult dependants were factored in.

Shabana Mahmood: she giveth and she taketh away...

Mahmood claims her updated plans would save "billions", partly because workers in other sectors will still have to wait longer, but said an impact assessment detailing the cost would be released in a future announcement.

She also declined to outline whether Prime Minister Andy Burnham had told her to change tack on her proposals, which she had put forward under his predecessor Sir Keir Starmer.

Mogging named word of the year

Collins Dictionary has named "mogging" - a slang word meaning to outshine someone or something - as its word of the year.

Dictionary experts said Tuesday that the word, most often used by young people "in a playful and ironic way when someone is upstaged," has entered mainstream language and saw a 210% increase in usage in 2026.

Mogging hasn't always been used in a light-hearted way. The word is often traced back to the acronym AMOG, standing for alpha male of the group, and has been associated with bodybuilding forums in the mid-2010s, as well as the Manosphere and In-Cells.

But Helen Newstead, a lexicographer at the Collins Dictionary, said she'd been impressed by the way young people had reinvented the term.

"It did originate in these sort of smaller kind of subcultures online to do with sort of physical appearance and looks maxing, but it has spread much, much further than that and actually lost a lot of those original connotations. It's gone through a process we call semantic bleaching."

Alex Beecroft, Collins managing director, said that choosing "mogging" shows how "each generation leaves its mark on language..."It's a great example of how Gen Z and Gen Alpha have adopted a word and turned it into humorous slang, and 'mogging' the rest of us," he said.

The dictionary said that its experts monitor the 27-billion-word database, which draws from sources including social media, to create its annual list of words that reflect the ever-evolving English language.

UK finalizes deal with EU to remove checks from food and agriculture exports

■ Government claims the change will bring annual benefits worth £5.1bn

The UK and EU have agreed a draft deal on removing post-Brexit checks from food and agriculture exports, ahead of the UK-EU summit later this month.

A 200-page draft text for this so called "SPS" (sanitary and phytosanitary) agreement has been circulated to EU nations in Brussels for consideration at a meeting on Wednesday.

Similar texts for deals on emissions trading and a youth travel and work scheme have also been circulated alongside a 15-page draft joint statement for UK and EU top leaders.

The food deal is the most significant part of the so-called Brexit reset agreed so far, removing checks and red tape that hit exporters after the UK exited the EU's single market.

As a result of the agreement, the government claims the UK economy will eventually see £5.1bn worth of annual benefits.

Speaking during the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (Chogm) in Antigua and Barbuda, the prime minister said a UK-EU deal could add up to 0.4% extra on GDP.

The deal could have the following impact:

•Exports to the EU of fresh sausages, burgers, shellfish from domestic waters and seed potatoes would be able to resume

•It should remove the need for £200 Export Health Certificates, which confirm the product meets the health requirements of the country it is heading to

•It should also end the need for £25 Phytosanitary certificates, which show that plants or plant products are free from pests and diseases

•Inspector fees, organic certificates, some port fees and other checks for exports and imports to and from the EU could be removed

•It will bring back passports for British pets being taken into the EU

FASTER FOOD: the move is just one of many expected by the Burnham government to bring Britain closer to the EU in the coming years

In return, the UK is expected to commit to observing and adapting to existing EU regulations on plant, animal and food trade standards - a process called "dynamic alignment".

Each of the elements on the table was up for discussion under Sir Keir Starmer, and the summit would have taken place by now had Labour not replaced its leader in July.

Under Andy Burnham, Britain's approach to post-Brexit relations with the EU have shifted significantly. Sir Keir said the UK would not rejoin the bloc in his lifetime, while Burnham has said he would like to see Britain back in the EU in his.

Slave trade 'fills my heart with horror and my soul with the most profound personal sorrow'

■ Slavery was 'a shameful chapter', Charles tells Commonwealth leaders

The King has told Commonwealth leaders that the transatlantic slave trade was a shameful chapter of history that filled his heart with horror and his soul with sorrow.

He was opening the summit in Antigua and Barbuda on the last leg of his tour of the Caribbean, which has been dominated by debate about the legacy of slavery and Britain's role in it. Many Caribbean and African countries want a formal apology from the UK.

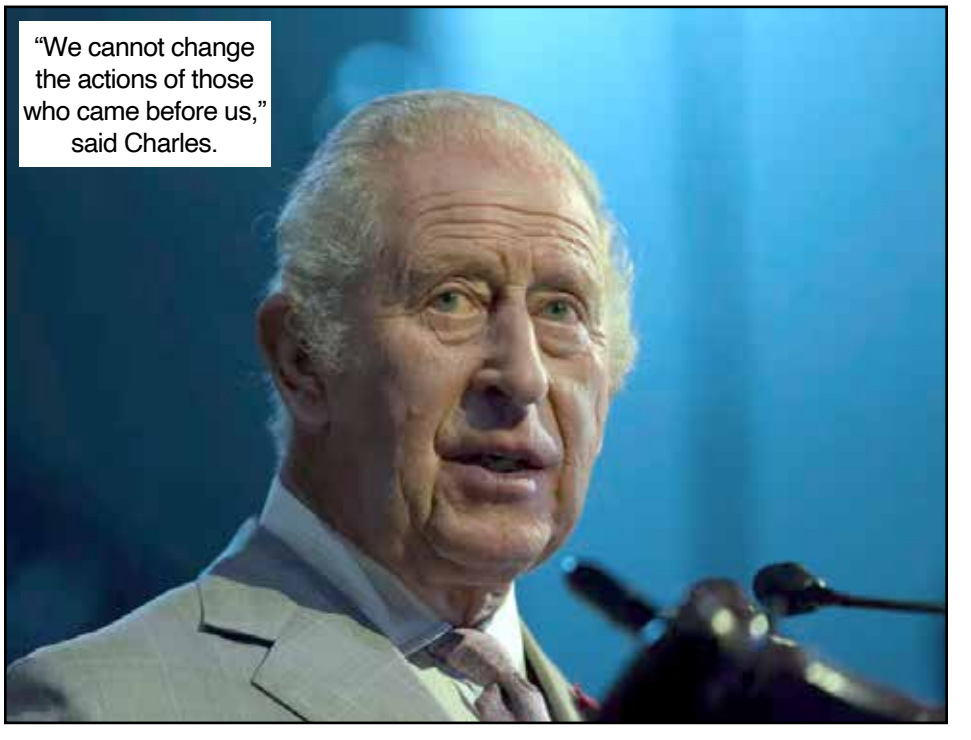

Andy Burnham was also attending the meeting, is considering it, but has ruled out the payment of any reparations.

The King arrived on Monday knowing many leaders in the room wanted an apology and reparations for the UK's role in the slave trade. Some even wanted him removed as their head of state.

None of which would happen this week. The King spoke as head of the Commonwealth, but with personal perspective too. It was the most extensive speech on the transatlantic slave trade the King had given.

He said learning from the past could 'inspire and appall us'.

"We cannot change the actions of those who came before us," said Charles. "We can, however, learn from the past. The transatlantic trade and enslaved persons still cast shadow over these islands and other members of our Commonwealth.

"As I have said before, that shameful chapter of history is one that fills my heart with horror and my soul with the most profound personal sorrow. And yet, history also teaches us that evil need not have the last word, that character and courage can combine to overcome the most monstrous injustice, as they did with the determination to end international trade in enslaved people, in which the Royal Navy played such a leading role."

As well as Antigua, the King has visited the Bahamas and Guyana on this Caribbean tour. The leadership of all three countries support the calls for an apology and reparations.

Speaking at the Commonwealth Leaders Meeting, the Antiguan Prime Minister Gaston Brown again called for change.

"We agreed that the time had come for a meaningful, truthful and respectful conversation on reparatory justice. We must now carry that commitment forward through structured, inclusive dialogue on the enduring consequences of slavery and colonialism with a determination to make progress and a willingness to build consensus," he said.

Pioneering hairstylist John Frieda dead at 75

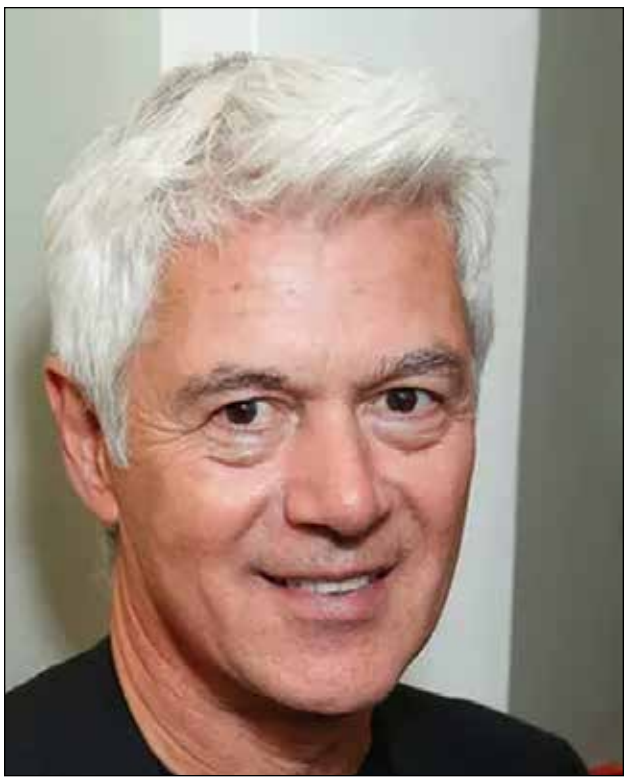

■ Legendary crimper parlayed celebrity clientele into a multi-million pound cosmetics empire

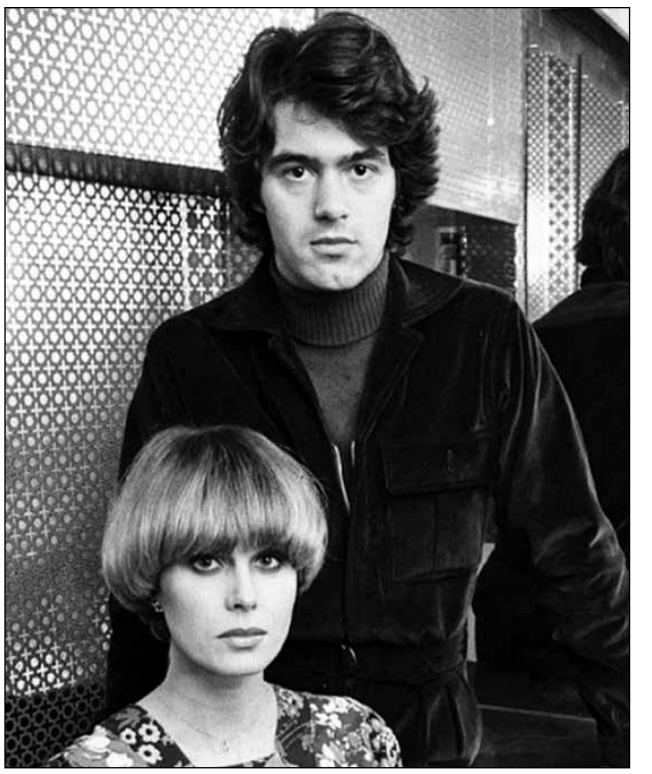

John Frieda, the legendary British celebrity hairstylist, died on Tuesday at 75 years old.

The Instagram account for his salon announced the news, writing that "John was more than a mentor to us; he was a true icon of the hair industry."

Frieda, who was born in 1951, followed in the footsteps of his father, a hairdresser who owned a salon in west London, and his grandfather, a barber. At 16, he joined all-star salon the House of Leonard and became owner Lewis Leonard's assistant, a role that had him helping style stars like Twiggy and Mick Jagger.

Frieda was 25 when he opened his own salon in 1976, where he was followed by many of Leonard's famous clientele. That year, he created the "Purdey" for Joanna Lumley's character in The New Avengers, an iconic pageboy cut that became a popular request at salons in the late '70s.

John Frieda (above) in 2011 and in 1976 with Joana Lumley, sporting her famous "Purdey" cut

When Lady Diana Spencer sat for her first Vogue portrait in 1980, taken by Lord Snowdon, Frieda styled what would soon become Diana's iconic pixie cut.

The 1980s was the decade of big hair, and that meant big money for Frieda. Following the success of a limited hair care product deal with leading high street chemist Boots, Frieda developed a product line to help anyone emulate the popular hairstyles of TV's ritziest soap operas.

"This was the time Dynasty, Dallas, big hair," he told the BBC in 2010. "And everybody wanted that look. And I had developed a technique with the use of these products, so I went Richie and Judy (the UK's top-rated daytime TV show of the time). So, the next day I got called out, because I got an order of 1.2 million bottles."

Frieda is perhaps best known for his Frizz Ease brand, which has been a fixture of drugstores and hair salons since it launched in the U.K. in 1989 and the U.S. in 1990. He promoted the product with more than 150 appearances on American TV. 12 years later, he sold his company, a multimillionaire. He never had to pick up a pair of scissors ever again.

In 1990, Frieda moved to the U.S. and opened his first salon in New York City, eventually expanding to Los Angeles, Barbados, and Ibiza.

Throughout his 50-year career, he styled Christy Turlington, Naomi Campbell, Diana Ross, Jackie Kennedy Onassis, Gwyneth Paltrow and Madonna.

Frieda was married twice - first in 1977 to Scottish singer Lulu. He married his seond wife, Avery Agnelli, in 2019

Henry Nowak killer given increased sentence

■ Vickrum Digwa given 25 year term after seeking a reduced sentence

A man jailed for life for murdering Henry Nowak has had his minimum prison term increased to 25 years by the Court of Appeal.

Vickrum Digwa was serving a minimum of 21 years for stabbing 18-year-old student Nowak with a large dagger in Belmont Road, Southampton, on 3 December 2025.

The Attorney General referred the case to the Court of Appeal on the grounds it was "unduly lenient", while Digwa also challenged his jail term as "manifestly excessive".

The Lady Chief Justice quashed the sentence, ruling the original term "did not adequately reflect the overall seriousness of the murder".

Digwa, who was also refused permission to appeal, told police Henry had attacked and racially abused him, which led to Henry, from Chafford Hundred in Essex, being handcuffed as he lay dying.

'lethal use'

The trial judge later found Digwa's accusations of racism to be a lie. Then 22, he was jailed for life at Southampton Crown Court in June.

Both appeals were heard on Thursday by Lady Chief Justice Baroness Carr, Mr Justice Nicklin and Mr Justice Wall, with Digwa appearing via video link from HMP Frankland. The Lady Chief Justice said the trial judge had been entitled to start at 15 years, as he found Digwa had not taken the knife to the scene intending to commit a crime.

But she said a "very significant uplift" was needed because of the use of the large kirpan.

A kirpan is a religious knife which baptized Sikhs are expected to carry at all times, and the law allows it to be carried in public for religious reasons.

Digwa wore a small kirpan around his neck, but was also carrying a larger one on a belt, in keeping with an order of Sikhs known as the Nihang.

The fact that initially carrying the knife may have been lawful "does not reduce the seriousness of its subsequent lethal use", she said.

She said the original sentence had understated the repeated use of a large dagger with intent to kill, and the "deliberate cruelty, additional suffering and obstruction" that followed.

Vickrum Digwa stabbed 18 year old Henry Nowak to death with a large kirpan - a ceremonial Sikh sword which he was allowed to carry for religious reasons

"It was not only lenient, but unduly so," she said.

With time spent on remand deducted, Digwa must serve at least 24 years and 190 days before he can be considered for parole. In a statement, Henry's family called the decision "an important step towards justice" but said "no sentence, however long, can ever give Henry his life back".

They continued: "We have been given a life sentence of grief. There is no appeal for us, no reduction in our suffering and no prospect of ever getting our son back."

Norfolk town crier named world's loudest woman

A town crier who spent nearly four decades turning heads in England with her voice has earned a place in the Guinness World Records as one of the world's loudest women.

Brenda Willison, who lives in Weating in Norfolk, now holds the titles for the loudest female town crier and for having the loudest female shout.

Willison has worked as the town crier of Newmarket in Suffolk since 2013, and on Sunday proved herself not just the loudest women in England, but in the world. She took the title by reaching 105.9 decibels.

That's as loud as a rock concert, a sports stadium celebration and a chainsaw from a short distance.

But Brenda thinks she could have pushed the volume dial even further.

Brenda Willison: as loud as a chainsaw....

"On the day I had a cold, so I thought, oh gosh, am I going to make it? They wanted me to get over 100 and I did."

Brenda has competed around the globe and won the World Town Choir Championship in Niagara Falls in Canada in 1993. It was her family who first spotted her talent when her daughters submitted an application on her behalf to become a town choir in Peterborough almost 40 years ago. Brenda remains one of the few women to don the feathered crier's cap and cloak, but perhaps her success will inspire others to test the eardrums of their neighbourhoods.

Narrow-headed ants are named after the distinctive pinched look to their heads

Nest of England's rarest ant species 'stolen'

A nest belonging to England's rarest ant species has been stolen, a conservation charity believes.

Devon Wildlife Trust said the narrow-headed ants' nest was taken from its Chudleigh Knighton Heath reserve in Devon - the last stronghold for the species in England.

It claimed the surrounding ground showed "clear signs of digging with a spade" and it has reported the matter to Devon and Cornwall Police, which is urging anyone with information to come forward.

The wildlife trust's species recovery officer Julia Balfour said the removal of the nest marked a "significant loss for this species" and was "every bit as serious as illegal raids on wild bird eggs".

Chudleigh Knighton Heath is a Site of Special Scientific Interest, while narrow-headed ants are a Section 41 species, nationally rare, and near threatened on the IUCN red list of species, the trust said.

A single nest can hold between 1,000 and 5,000 ants, along with one or more breeding queens that can live for as long as 25 years.

Balfour said: "This is the last population of narrow-headed ants in England, and losing even one colony sets back years of careful work by our staff, volunteers and partners."

Laura Krusin, conservation officer for Buglife's Moor Invertebrates Project, said the removal of nests could have a "catastrophic impact on the population, putting even more pressure on an already threatened species".

She added: "Narrow-headed ants are an extremely rare species, only known from one site in Devon and a handful of sites in Scotland.

"Not only are the ants incredibly special, but Chudleigh Knighton Heath itself is a Site of Special Scientific Interest for the ants and the other species it supports.

"Any damage to the site or removal of material is criminal and should be treated as a serious offence."

PLAINTIFF'S NOTICE AND STATEMENT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES
(Code Civ. Proc., § 425.115; Civ. Code, § 3294) [Hon. Gary D. Roberts, Dept. 73] Dept. 733]

TO DEFENDANT SYSTEMS TECH UNLIMITED, LLC:
Plaintiff ANGELIA MURDOCK reserves the right to seek $1,500,000 in punitive damages pursuant to California Civil Code section 3294 when plaintiff seeks a judgment in the suit filed against you, Systems Tech Unlimited, LLC.
This Notice and Statement is served pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 425.115 to reserve and give notice of the amount of punitive and exemplary damages Plaintif seeks against Defendant Systems Tech Unlimited, LLC. 28 years later, globe-trotting walker returns home to Mum

■ Karl Bushby walked from Chile to Hull

UNSENTIMENTAL: Karl told his teary-eyed mother to "behave" in front of the cameras

HULL, England (AP) — Karl Bushby embraced his weeping mother in his arms Monday as he returned to his northern England home to complete a 28-year odyssey to walk around the world.

Bushby set out from Punta Arenas, Chile, on Nov. 1, 1998, and walked 31,000 miles across four continents and 30 countries to get home. He navigated shifting ice over the Bering Strait and swam across the Caspian Sea and English Channel to avoid taking a boat or plane - or any transport - to propel him forward.

He vowed not to return until he could complete the journey on foot. It was an eye-opening adventure full of danger and drudgery that was interrupted for years at a time by the unexpected: the 2008 financial crash that sapped funding from sponsors, the 2020 COVID-19 pandemic and mountains of bureaucratic red tape to get across international borders.

On the final day of the journey, Bushby pushed his cart toward a hero's welcome at City Hall before setting off for the last stretch to see his mother.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," he joked to the crowd of hundreds who cheered his arrival. "Is that it, is it done?"

The ex-paratrooper said he looked like he was 10 years old when he left his mother's row house at the age of 29. He returned at 57 - softer, grayer and weathered, but far more worldly.

It took Bushby almost 10 years to make his way through Russia in fits and starts because of visa struggles and weather that only allowed travel a few months a year.

Bushby hadn't seen his mother in a decade, setting the stage for an emotional and somewhat awkward reunion captured amid a throng of cameras and a documentary film crew.

"Behave yourself, mother," he joked, as his mother wrapped her arms around him and wept. "Get yourself together."

He said he had long tried to imagine that moment he would return to find his mother at the gate where he left her so long ago.

In the final days of his trip, Bushby spoke of his anxiety over the trip ending, not knowing what he would do next.

"It's like stepping across the event horizon into a black hole," he said.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
CHRISTINE SCOTT AKA TINA SCOTT
CASE NO. 26STPB11831

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of CHRISTINE SCOTT AKA TINA SCOTT.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by CAITLIN COGAN in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that CAITLIN COGAN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

United can turn it around says Dalot

Manchester United defender Diogo Dalot accepts these are "really tough" times at Old Trafford but believes his team can still turn their form around.

Tuesday night's 3-2 comeback win against Roma ended a run of nine games without a victory - United's longest sequence since 1988-89.

Although the result pushed Michael Carrick's side back up the Champions League table, they remain in dire straits in the Premier League and could be bottom of the table before they face Aston Villa on Sunday.

For Dalot, a veteran of over 250 games for the club since his arrival from Porto in 2018, the story is too familiar.

"These moments are really tough, I'm not going to lie," he said.

"Unfortunately, I've had a few moments like this in the past. The only way for us to get out is by winning football games. That's the only way you can get confidence.

"Nights like this [comeback against Roma] give you an extra confidence, that make you believe you can create these moments, not just for us, but for the fans.

"It's important from everyone around the club the feeling that we care. I think we've showed, especially in the second 45 minutes, that we really want to turn this around."

As United trailed 2-0 so early in the contest, it seemed inevitable it would be Carrick's last game in charge.

The stirring fightback has bought the United head coach some time, but everyone is aware how precarious the position is.

The pressure is huge. And as Dalot points out, it is not just on the man in charge.

"It's not just the manager, everyone is under pressure," the Portugal international added.

"When you don't win games for this football club, everyone involved gets under pressure. We felt it, obviously, because we're not near good enough to what we should have done.

"Nights like this can change momentum. They can change seasons."

Celtic finally nab European win

Substitutes Callum Osmand and Camilo Duran inspired Celtic to their first Europa League win of the season, a chaotic comeback 3-2 victory against Turkish giants Besiktas Thursday night.

Junior Olaitan's goal - a rebound after Sam Johnstone saved his penalty - looked like condemning Celtic to a grim club record of five consecutive defeats in European competition.

But Martin O'Neill's side were transformed after a triple substitution just after the hour mark, when Osmand, Duran and Colby Donovan entered the fray.

Osmand and Duran scored three times between them, and Osmand also grabbed an assist in a chaotic final half hour during which Celtic came from behind to lead, and were then pegged back, before Duran won it on 87 minutes.

Just 43 seconds after Osmand entered the pitch, Callum McGregor read a pass into midfield by Besiktas and pinched possession, before feeding the 20-year-old substitute.

Osmand drove up to the edge of the box and drilled the ball low past Alexander Nubel to level the game.

From there, the previously flat crowd roared into life and Celtic's intensity completely changed.

Osmand was not done yet, as he then teed up Duran, who stayed calm to round Nubel and slide the ball home.

Then, came an unexpected twist. Orkun Kokcu wrestled momentum back for Besiktas with a belting strike from the edge of the box which flew past Johnstone.

However, Celtic's response was almost instant. Kieran Tierney drove forward and scuffed his shot, but it fell for Duran to side-foot home from close range and - after a check for offside - Celtic Park went berserk.

out of Kane's reach.

Shearer scored 260 goals in 441 Premier League matches for Blackburn Rovers and Newcastle United. Kane scored 213 times in 320 league games for Spurs.

With Kane still 47 short of Shearer's record, it would need a spectacular late-career flourish for him to eclipse the Geordie icon's tally to write another entry into the history books, which also have him as England's highest scorer with 91 goals from a record-equalling 125 caps.

What will be of huge interest to Thomas Tuchel - the coach who took him to Bayern and now leads England - is that Kane has delivered a clear indication that Euro 2028, to be played in the UK and Ireland, is firmly in his sights.

Emery close to new Villa deal

■ Midlands club eager to extend Spaniard's tenure at the helm, after four years of improvement and a major trophy

Aston Villa head coach Unai Emery is close to agreeing a contract extension at the club - which will hand him even more responsibility for long-term development.

The Villa boss held talks with the hierarchy on Wednesday to discuss the club's future, with all parties keen on extending his time at Villa Park.

Emery would relish the opportunity to play an even bigger role in developing the club for the long term, with talks ongoing about the fine details, the finances, and the length of the new deal.

The plan is to announce the new contract once all details have been agreed, which is unlikely to be before the weekend.

Emery, whose team won the Europa League in May – Villa's first major trophy in 30 years – celebrated four years at the club last month.

In his time at Villa he has transformed the side, from a group who were in a relegation fight to one who have qualified for European football every season under his management.

The Spaniard has been linked with a move to Manchester United, who Villa play this weekend at Old Trafford, should they sack boss Michael Carrick.

Emery, though, who was already under contract until 2029, is now close to signing a new longer-term deal.

On Wednesday night, Villa released a statement saying a meeting had taken place between Emery, club chairman Nassef Sawiris, executives Roberto Olabe and Damian Vidagany.

The club said: "The discussions focused on jointly planning the club's long-term strategic direction, with positive discussions establishing a clear commitment beyond 2029 for the joint development of the club under the sporting leadership of Unai Emery based on the shared ambitions and common goal to reach excellency and keep growing during the next years.

"The objective is clear: to build an ambitious, competitive Aston Villa capable of taking on the biggest challenges and achievements."

KANE STILL ABLE: The England captain has signed with Bayern until 2029

Kane extends Bayern stay

Harry Kane has signed a new deal with Bayern Munich - one which carries heavy significance for the Bundesliga giants, who have been celebrating his status as a Ballon d'Or winner, but also for England and the Premier League's record books.

Bayern have acted swiftly to secure the 33-year-old on a deal taking him through to 2029 after he was crowned the world's best player, ensuring England's captain and record goalscorer will spend the final peak years of a magnificent career at Allianz Arena.

Kane has written himself into Bayern legend since joining from Spurs for £86m in August 2023, scoring 102 goals in 102 Bundesliga matches, winning two league titles and three successive Golden Boot awards.

It is why Bayern could not contemplate his departure as other clubs eyed his next move - and why the announcement Kane is staying casts ripples far beyond Munich.

Kane's new contract expires shortly before his 36th birthday, certainly raising the prospect the player who left Spurs as the highest scorer in their history with 280 goals in 435 appearances may never grace the Premier League again.

His consummate professionalism, and apparent ability to develop into the complete player with age, means this can never be discounted.

The notion of an emotional return to Spurs at some point has often provided background noise, but now looks increasingly unlikely.

What it surely means is that Alan Shearer will remain the Premier League's highest scorer - who knows what will happen with Erling Haaland as Manchester City await punishment after being found guilty of breaching financial regulations they deny - and
