“The whole episode reeks of casual disrespect, and your belief that fame meant you could act how you liked, when you liked, unhindered by the rules by which decent people live.”

STIFF TERM FOR BRAND

Russell Brand has been sentenced to 10 and a half years in prison for rape and sexual assault. He was convicted last week of raping a woman at his home in London in 2009 and sexually assaulting three other women.

GOING DOWN: Rusell Brand arriving at Southwark Crown Court this week

The judge at Southark Crown Court said Brand had displayed staggering arrogance and that his status had protected him. In his sentencing remarks, Mr Justice Bernathan told Brand he was a sexual predator who had told a series of lies.

Before sentencing, the court heard victim impact statements from the four women who Brand had attacked.

One of them said: “Even now I feel that I am living with the trauma of what happened. It is something I carry with me every day and it often feels never ending. Because of who he was and the influence he held, I did not feel confident speaking openly about what had happened.

‘power imbalance’

“I did not know who I could trust or confide in. I felt that if I reported him, I would not be believed. His fame, wealth and influence created a power imbalance which made me feel powerless.”

One of the women said it was difficult to see Brand in the public eye after he’d sexually assaulted her.

“For many years, as his star was rising, it was impossible to escape seeing him all over the media, being celebrated for his disgusting behaviour against women. Like it was all a joke. There were many times I felt visibly sick at the sight of him, parading around thinking he could get away with it all.”

altercation

After the trial it emerged up to dozen other women had have contacted the investigation team both during and since the trial to provide information or report a potential criminal allegation, a police spokesperson said. “Detectives are assessing this information as part of their ongoing enquiries.”

A former girlfriend of Brand, Jemima Goldsmith, wrote on X on Monday that she had called the called the police about an altercation with him at her house in 2012, but had declined to press charges.

Since Brand adopted a Conservative political and alternative health movement on his YouTube channel, he has built quite a following in America, especially among the far right.

One of his most prominent followers, Donald Trump Jr., took to social media this week to condemn the verdict and sentence.

“He was convicted, by the way, with no forensic evidence, no DNA, no police report from the time,” Donald Jr. claimed.

What particularly angered him, the son of President Donald Trump said, was how long ago some of the crimes took place, as he offered his theory that Brand’s turn to religion and conservative views led to him being charged so many years later.

“So, when he was, like, married to Katy Perry and was one of the most famous actors in the world, no one seemed to have a problem,” Donald Jr. stressed. “No one seemed to think he was a rapist then.”

There were many times I felt visibly sick at the sight of him, parading around thinking he could get away with it all.”

Social outcast

Brand’s social media accounts on platforms owned by tech company Meta were disabled immediately following the verdict. Meta owns social media platforms including Instagram and Facebook.

But on Wednesday evening, a post appeared on his X account, which remains active. “There was never a Russell Brand, according to @meta,” it read.

“Thank God for @elonmusk,” the message added, referring to X’s owner. “Stay tuned,” it concluded.

Back in London, Brand’s public disgrace took a slightly different turn when Viktor Wynd, the eccentric collector behind the Viktor Wynd Museum of Curiosities, Fine Art & UnNatural History in Hackney, confirmed that he removed a display of Brand’s pubic hair from his collection in the wake of Brand’s legal troubles.

“I took them straight off display and have no desire to hear his name again – he has no place in my museum of horrors,” Wynd told Variety on Wednesday afternoon.

“My museum is full of disgusting things but honestly, even I have limits.”

UK economy picks up pace

■ Country on course to be the second fastest growing economy across the major G7 countries

Consultancy services and computer programming led the way on growth

The UK economy grew at its fastest rate for more than two years in the three months to September.

Between July and September, the economy expanded by 0.7%, accelerating from the previous three months, official figures show.

The robust growth suggests a far more resilient economy than expected over the summer, despite the impact of higher energy prices from the Iran war.

Strong growth in the services sector - the largest part of the economy, which includes non-physical goods such as consultancy services and computer programming as well as hotels and restaurants - helped boost the numbers.

Within services, computer programming registered its fastest growth for the past three years, helped by cloud computing and AI-linked spending.

The boost from computer programming and consultancy services has been the biggest driver of growth so far this year.

Grant Fitzner, chief economist at the Office for National Statistics, said it was "possible growth could have been even stronger" if there hadn't been a war in the Middle East.

But he says households may still not feel better off, and that prices might soon start to rise more quickly than wages.

However, Prime Minister Andy Burnham said the figures were "welcome news".

"Despite a year where events around the world have pushed up costs here at home, our economy is growing, bringing hope for the future," he said.

Chancellor John Healey said the figures showed a "remarkable resilience" in the face of global conflicts, and hopes they "bring back confidence in Britain".

Asked about how government decisions could be the reason for growth when AI investment has been a main driver, Healey said ministers can always "help or hinder" business confidence and investments.

Although investors have recently been concerned about slower artificial intelligence development in the US and the long term viability of AI firms' business models, businesses have continued to invest in the technologies.

Sarah Coles, from investment platform AJ Bell, said that since the start of the year, "it's the less visible back-office work that has delivered, with administrative and supportive services seeing strong growth" noting that these are the areas benefitting from the increasing use of AI.

The latest figures put the UK on course to be the second fastest growing economy across the major G7 countries which also includes Canada, Japan, Germany, Italy and France.

Amid new US plane exodus, MoD insists UK airbases are safe

Downing Street has insisted that the security of British air bases is a top priority after at least 12 US Air Force aircraft were moved from RAF Mildenhall in Suffolk on Tuesday.

The Wall Street Journal reported that the move was in response to a threat from Iran. A Ministry of Defence spokesperson said it routinely did not comment on the activity of other nations.

It was the second time in as many months that the US Air Force has had to rush its aircraft out of a British air base with very little warning. In late September, it was America's long range B1 bombers that suddenly took off from RAF Fairford back to the US. Now, it's a whole fleet of Stratotanker refuelling aircraft that had been based at RAF Mildenhall in Suffolk hurriedly dispersed to other air bases in Germany, Spain and Scotland.

The overworked civil servant: fraudster charged with holding FIVE government jobs at once

A civil servant has been found guilty of nine counts of fraud after using remote working and sick notes to hold down up to five full-time government jobs at the same time.

Southark Crown Court heard that Kashim Chowdhury, who is 56, lied about his employment status to secure a string of overlapping roles in government departments and public bodies. He fraudulently earned more than £280,000.

Kashim Chowdhury relied on sick leave to deceive his bosses about his frequent absences

The court heard that in the spring of 2023, Kashim Chowdhury had five government employers, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, the UK Health Security Agency, the Food Standards Agency, the Department for Business and Trade, and the Home Office. During this period, he was contracted to work 183 hours a week, more than the number of hours that exist in seven days. He worked entirely from the home he shared with his mother, who had dementia and terminal cancer.

Chowdhury tried to cope with his impossible schedule by going on sick leave in 2023 from four of his jobs, but he carried on working at the Home Office. He told the jury that he'd been suffering from trauma and stress and didn't know what he was doing. But the prosecution argued that he'd been consistently and intentionally dishonest and had exploited the system.

A succession of his line managers gave evidence that he'd performed poorly in his jobs.

Joe Hill was a civil servant for seven years who now works for the independent think tank Restate. He says the verdict should be a very big wake up call for the government.

"I think the biggest lesson that needs to be learned from this case is that the civil service needs to manage its people much, much better. At a time when the public finances are really constrained, you can't afford to have people who aren't just underperforming in one job. They're underperforming in five of them at the same time."

Disabled should work for benefits, says Kemi

Kemi Badenoch says more people with disabilities should be encouraged into work as part of Tory proposals to cut billions from the benefits bill.

The Conservative Party leader (above) announced plans to cut £36bn pounds of benefit spending at the party's conference last month and in a speech in London on Tuesday, she set out further details on how the savings could be made, which included cutting disability payments for some children with behavioural disorders, learning difficulties or ADHD.

'damaging'

Justifying plans this week, the Tory leader told reporters: "Double amputees run marathons. People who are housebound do wonderful creative work from home. People with autism run some of the biggest tech companies in the world.

"If you tell a young person that their ADHD means they are ineffective and that they can't do anything, that is likely to be more damaging to their future than the condition itself."

Bigger savings, the party says, would come from reforming sickness benefit and limiting access to benefits for some foreign settlers in the UK.

Little Britain star fails with bizarre 'suicide' injunction bid

■ David Walliams revealed as star who tried to block multiple sexual misconduct allegations

David Walliams has been named as the celebrity who used an injunction to block publication of sexual misconduct allegations against him.

Several reports emerged this week accusing the Little Britain star, children's author and former judge on Britain's Got Talent of grooming girls as young as 15 and harassing women working on the ITV show and at his publisher over a number of years.

In a letter to journalists published by The Guardian, Mr Walliams said he was not a sexual predator and had not broken the law."

Open secret

Walliams was named after his exceptionally unusual attempt to gag the media forever fell apart when a senior judge last week threw out his claim that his human rights were being breached.

The battle had been an open secret for months after his confidential bid for an injunction had briefly appeared on the legal case register monitored by journalists. In court, his lawyers didn't claim that the investigation would be disclosing legally confidential or private information.

A joint investigation between ITV News and the Guardian newspaper featured interviews with multiple women who gave firsthand accounts of Walliams' conduct. One woman alleged she was sexually assaulted by Walliams at his London home when she was 15, while others accused him of grooming them when they were teens.

Walliams, 55, denied the allegations and sought the injunction claiming that publication of sexual misconduct allegations would lead him to take his own life.

children's author

The court fight delayed publication for months, but a judge rejected his injunction request last week and the protection of his identity expired late Monday.

"I am not a sexual predator," Walliams said in a letter to the news organizations. "I have not broken the law, but I am devastated that some of the women I met 10 to 20 years ago have now expressed hurt or anger towards me."

"Whilst a power imbalance is inevitable when one party is famous, abusing that power is something else entirely and it is something that I never did," he added.

Walliams is best known for comedy sketches on Little Britain, a hugely popular British TV show in the 2000s, but he's also a celebrated children's book author with some 40 published titles that sold more than 60 million copies worldwide, according to his website.

Several of them, including "Gangsta Granny," have been adapted into BBC comedy dramas and stage productions. Producers of "Fing!" - an upcoming film based on Walliams' book - said in a statement Tuesday that they had removed his cameo appearance and that Walliams "will have no involvement in the film's release or promotion."

Walliams was a longtime judge on Britain's Got Talent," before stepping down for making "disrespectful comments" about auditioning contestants suicide attempt

Walliams was also dropped last year by publisher HarperCollins after allegations were made of inappropriate behavior. Few details were published at the time, but the Guardian reported Tuesday that there were concerns about his behavior for years, including an allegation that he had an inappropriate sexual relationship with a junior female employee.

He was also a judge for a decade on "Britain's Got Talent," though he stepped down in 2022 after apologizing for making "disrespectful comments" about auditioning contestants.

The BBC said Tuesday it was removing some programs, including "Little Britain," while it carried out a review of "all material featuring and written by David Walliams on our platforms."

The literary agency Independent Talent Group also said it was dropping Walliams following the new allegations.

The court fight, in which Walliams was identified in news reports as a "famous man," drew widespread attention in Britain because it highlighted questions over public figures' right to privacy and what media can report on the basis of public interest.

Walliams' lawyer, Sara Mansoori, told the High Court that he had made a suicide attempt when he received letters from ITN and Guardian News and Media seeking his response to the allegations. He later made another attempt, she said, and he was recently admitted to the hospital for psychiatric care.

In dismissing the injunction bid, Justice Matthew Nicklin said such a legal measure would mean "an exceptionally serious interference" with the rights of the media companies.

He noted that Walliams had a "serious and longstanding psychiatric vulnerability" which must be taken seriously, and said a decision allowing the allegations to be published will substantially increase his risk of suicide.
However, he added that the evidence did not "establish that suicide is inevitable."

Bulger killer to remain behind bars

Child killer Jon Venables will remain behind bars after he told a Parole Board panel that he should stay in prison.

Venables tortured and murdered two-year-old James Bulger in 1993 after he and Robert Thompson, both then aged 10, snatched him from a shopping centre in Bootle, Merseyside.

Venables told parole staff dealing with his latest review, which took place in private, that he was not seeking release.

A summary of the panel's findings said: "At the outset of the hearing, Mr Venables submitted an opening statement to the effect that he accepted the need to undertake further offending work in custody and so was not seeking release."

horrific crime

The panel considered evidence from probation officers based in the prison and in the community, three psychologists and a psychiatrist.

All bar one concluded that he should remain in prison.

Venables and Thompson led the toddler out of the Strand shopping centre while his mother, Denise Fergus, was paying for shopping at a butchers. The two boys, who were truanting from school, led James two-and-a-half miles to a railway track where they beat him to death.

James' body was found two days later.

After a three-week trial at Preston Crown Court, Venables and Thompson were found guilty of murder.

The names of both boys were released after their trial.

In June 2001, Thompson and Venables were released on life licence

Tougher cellphone ban for English school children coming next year

■ Pupils will no longer be allowed to keep mobiles in their bags or pockets during the day

Campaigners say they welcome the changes because the current system isn't working effectively, with many pupils still TikTok-ing in the toilets.

Pupils in England are to be banned from keeping mobile phones in their bags or pockets during the school day, under tougher government restrictions being introduced next September.

The Education Secretary, Lucy Powell, said schools should be about learning and friendship, not scrolling. Teaching unions have warned that schools may need extra funding for lockers and secure storage.

Under the stricter statutory rules, "no see no hear" policies where phones are switched off in pockets or bags will no longer be allowed. Instead, schools will need to come up with their own systems to ensure that pupils cannot access their phones at all during the school day. Some schools do this already through things like lockers or special pouches or by collecting phones at the start of the day.

Campaigners say they welcome the changes because the current system isn't working effectively with many pupils still tiktok-ing in the toilets. But head teachers unions have warned that schools will struggle to implement new policies without additional funding.

At Sandbach High School in Cheshire, pupils are already required to put their phones in special pouches at the start of the day, but several of those questioned said more secure measures would be an improvement.

"Overall, I think they're a great idea because they're just not in your mind at all. You can just completely focus on what you're doing in lessons. At first, it was quite hard to get used to because it was quite a big change not being able to use your phone.

"But I think it's definitely become like a habit and routine now, and it's just put your phone in a pouch, go into school. I think people would still go on their phones like when they go to the toilet, they go on the phone, they do it in between break and lunch, even in lessons, they'd be on their phones. And I think now I don't know anyone that can go on their phone because we just can't get into the pouches."

Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland currently have no nationwide ban on mobile phone usage in schools.

"Melted down to fill the potholes" - Reform councillor convicted over 'tongue-in-cheek' post about Nigerians

Glenn Gibbins: claimed the post was a tongue-in-cheek joke

A suspended Reform UK councillor has been convicted of a malicious communication over a Facebook post about Nigerian people.

Sunderland city councillor Glenn Gibbins has been sentenced to a 12-month community order with 150 hours of unpaid work for the "grossly offensive" post made in March 2024.

It came to light after he was elected to represent the Hylton Castle ward in May 2026.

Convicting him after a trial at South Tyneside Magistrates' Court, District Judge Zoe Passfield said: "The post was nothing more and nothing less than a grossly offensive comment about members of the Nigerian community in Sunderland and Mr Gibbins' views as to their status, or otherwise, as human beings."

His legal team said Gibbins intended to appeal at the crown court later.

Gibbins' post said: "Carnt believe the amount of nigerians in town… should melt them all down and fill in the pot holes!! [sic]"

'less than human'

Police were informed about the post after Gibbins was successfully voted in during local elections.

Prosecutor Emma Dowling said the comment about melting Nigerians down implied they were "somewhat less than human, stripping people in that group of humanity".

Godwin Ejeh, a community leader in Sunderland's Nigerian community, gave evidence to say he led a protest outside the City Hall building when Gibbins should have been sworn in, hoping the councillor would apologise.

However, Gibbins had already been suspended by Reform after the post came to light and he did not attend the ceremony.

Gibbins, a divorced former salesman who runs a stall in Sunderland city centre which prints novelty gifts, told the court it was a tongue-in-cheek joke.

"It was an unreal scenario," he said. "No-one took it literally."

Teenage schoolgirl admits to killing love rival over a boy

A teenager has admitted murdering a 16-year-old girl who she stabbed to death in a pre-planned fight over a boy.

Leeds Crown Court heard that Chloe Watson Dransfield was attacked by 18-year-old Kayla Smith after going to Smith's home with her boyfriend Blake Dowling in the early hours of 28 March.

Smith had pleaded guilty to manslaughter but denied murder. She then changed her plea to guilty on the second day of her trial.

Dowling, 18, who took Chloe to the house in Kennerleigh Avenue in Leeds, and Archie Rycroft, 20, who followed Smith to the fight, are also charged with murder and manslaughter and their trial will continue.

They both deny the charges against them.

The judge, Mr Justice Cavanagh KC, said he would sentence Smith once the trial was over.

He told her the only sentence he could give was life imprisonment, but that he would need to set the minimum term she must spend in custody.

The trial previously heard that Dowling had been in a relationship with both Chloe and Smith and "knew of the bad feeling between the two females".

Dowling's mother told the court that Smith was "jealous and obsessed" over her son's relationship with Chloe.

The prosecution said Chloe and Smith had argued the previous evening, with Smith threatening to "stab her" several times.

Just before the attack, Dowling was with Chloe and spoke to Smith on the phone.

The court heard a friend of Chloe's who was on FaceTime with her that night said she heard Dowling answering his phone and heard Smith screaming: "Blake, I'm gonna smash your head in… you better not be with no girls…Chloe better not be there."

When Chloe said that she was there, the witness heard Smith say: "I'm gonna stab you in your throat."

The two girls agreed to fight, and Dowling booked a taxi to take Chloe to Smith's home.

Giving evidence on Thursday, the friend said that as Chloe was on the way to Smith's house she told her she was "off to get the fight that I've wanted for ages".

Gill Batts KC, defending Dowling, asked what she thought the fight would entail.

The witness replied: "Just themselves, nothing else," meaning there would be no weapons.

The court was shown CCTV and video doorbell footage which showed Smith emerging from the annexe in her grandfather's garden holding a knife.

Rycroft followed Smith as she left the property to fight with Chloe, with CCTV footage appearing to show him filming her.

She was heard shouting "come on big girl", and was then seen running back to the annexe with Rycroft after the stabbing.

Chloe, who had been stabbed five times in the neck and back, bled to death.

Prosecutor Mark McKone KC said Rycroft is accused of murder "by walking with Kayla Smith to the fight and by trying to film Kayla Smith using violence and by providing support to her, if needed".

and handed new identities.

A court injunction prevented their new identities from ever being revealed.

Venables was recalled to prison in February 2010 after indecent images of children were found on his computer.

He was once again freed in August 2013 - with a second new identity - and then called back in November 2017 for the same offence.

Parole judges considered his case again in September 2020.

In the latest review, a "victim personal statement which clearly conveyed the devastating impact of Mr Venables' crime and the impact of his offending" was heard by the panel.

They said there was "a need for further work in custody to address his sexual interests".

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
CHRISTINE SCOTT AKA TINA SCOTT
CASE NO. 26STPB11831

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of CHRISTINE SCOTT AKA TINA SCOTT.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by CAITLIN COGAN in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that CAITLIN COGAN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 11/23/26 at 8:30AM in Dept. 629 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

King leads the nation in Remembrance Sunday tribute

King Charles III led the nation in a solemn two-minute silence on Remembrance Sunday, this week to honour members of the armed forces who died in conflict.

On a stone-grey autumn morning, the King, 77, laid a wreath at the Cenotaph in Whitehall, in the shadow of the Houses of Parliament. He wore the uniform of Marshal of the Royal Air Force.

His wreath of open poppy petals was set on black leaves and tied with scarlet, purple and gold ribbons, reflecting his horse racing colours.

The Prince of Wales and the Princess Royal were among the royals in attendance, along with military chiefs, senior politicians, diplomats and faith leaders. Big crowds squeezed behind the railings along Whitehall to watch.

two minute silence

Queen Camilla, 79, and the Princess of Wales, 44, watched from a balcony of the Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office above the Cenotaph.

At 11:00 GMT, as the first strike of Big Ben rang out from the nearby Houses of Parliament, the two-minute silence filled the usually busy streets, followed by the Last Post. The King stood with his eyes closed as the crowds in Whitehall paused for their own thoughts, a rare moment of calm in the capital.

The number of former prime ministers present reached a record high, with nine lined up to lay wreaths. Andy Burnham attended for the first time as the current prime minister. For the first time, the leader of Reform UK, Nigel Farage, had enough MPs in Parliament to qualify to lay a wreath alongside the other major party leaders.

The service was followed by a march-past of 10,000 armed forces veterans, representing about 340 military and civilian groups, from the Royal Naval Association and the Royal Marines Association to Transport for London and the Royal National Lifeboat Institution. Alongside those marching were flotillas of mobility scooters and families helping veterans in wheelchairs.

The number of Second World War veterans is shrinking as they grow increasingly frail. Twelve took part in this year’s march-past, compared with 20 last year, and the oldest was 105. Taking part for the first time was 103-year-old Annie Duplock, who served in the Land Army that helped feed the country during the war. She joined in 1940 at 16, having lied about her age, and worked on a farm in Leicestershire.

“I feel very honoured to be taking part in the parade and to represent the Land Girls. I’m very excited, although a little apprehensive as I don’t quite know what to expect,” she said. “I think it will be a very emotional day, bringing back memories of all those who didn’t return home. It will be lovely to be there and remember them.”

Prime Minister Andy Burnham said the annual event was a time to “reflect on the selflessness and courage it takes to commit your life to protecting others”.

He had earlier announced plans to tackle homelessness among ex-service personnel, to “ensure that any veteran sleeping rough is offered appropriate accommodation before Christmas”.

‘served and sacrificed’

Mark Atkinson, director general of the Royal British Legion, said: “As we come together on Remembrance Sunday, we pay tribute to all those who have served and sacrificed, from generations past to those still serving today.”

The day before, many members of the royal family attended the Festival of Remembrance at the Royal Albert Hall.

Remembrance events also took place across the country as thousands gathered to pay their respects. In Edinburgh, First Minister John Swinney laid a wreath at the Stone of Remembrance outside the City Chambers. Veterans, military personnel and cadets also marched through cities including Manchester, Birmingham and Leeds.

The Cenotaph was unveiled by King George V, grandfather of Queen Elizabeth II, on 11 November 1920 as a tribute to those who fell in the First World War. That same day, he laid the Unknown Warrior to rest in Westminster Abbey.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may visit the Internet Website address www.insourcelogic.com or call In Source Logic LLC at 702-659-7766 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000894-24-5. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Robertson about to surpass King Kenny's record

ON FRIDAY at Hampden with North Macedonia the opponent, Andy Robertson joined a very select club as he won his 102nd cap for Scotland, putting him level in the pantheon with Sir Kenny Dalglish, the football man he loves more than any other.

On Monday in St Gallen, Switzerland - all being well - Robertson will break the great man's record, a mark that has stood for 40 years.

Sitting in the boardroom at Queen's Park in the shadow of Hampden on Thursday with a phone in his hand his eyes were fixed on a video of his 19-year-old self coming off the bench in Warsaw on 5 March, 2014.

"Nervous, excited, living the dream, not knowing what road I was on," he smiled as he looks at the moment he takes his first touch in international football.

"As I was going on, Gordon [Strachan, Scotland manager] said to me, 'remember why you're here, play like you play at Dundee United, don't play safe'. The first ball, when it came to me, I just drove forward about 30, 40 yards.

"I had pretty much every emotion that day. My mum and dad were there. My brother. My aunt and uncle. My other uncle. There's a picture of me and my brother [Stephen] at the airport after the game. He had a big Poland hat on and a half-and-half scarf. He was well oiled by that point."

UNLIKELY HERO: Andy Robertson says he's always doubted himself

Robertson says he'd have laughed out loud had you told him then what lay ahead of him - two Premier Leagues, two League Cups, an FA Cup, a Champions League, a Super Cup, a Club World Cup, soon-to-be the most capped male Scottish players in history and, by a mile, the one with the most games as captain of the men's team.

"I've never actually been confident," he says, which is a surprise admission given everything he's done.

"I've always doubted myself and that's always got the best out of me.

"I've always tried to prove people wrong and prove myself wrong. The one thing I didn't do was look too far ahead. I always just lived in the here and now and that's served me well."

Sage out at Palace

Crystal Palace have sacked manager Pierre Sage after just five months in charge, with the club bottom of the Premier League.

Former Brentford and Tottenham boss Thomas Frank is in advanced talks to take over.

Sunday's 3-1 defeat by Liverpool was Palace's fourth in succession in the Premier League.

The Eagles have won just two of their opening 10 games and also have the worst defensive record in the league, conceding 24 goals.

Palace are also 21st in the 36-team Europa League table, with one win from their four matches.

In a statement, the club said that three members of Sage's coaching staff - Jamal Alioui, Damien Della Santa and Sandy Guichard - had also left the club.

Palace added: "The club thanks Pierre and his staff for their efforts during their time in South London, and wish them well for the future.

"An update on the process of appointing a new manager will be provided in due course."

United:

2030. The former Southampton, Tottenham and Chelsea manager has a release clause of about $10m (£7.5m) and United will have to pay more to take his staff.

Carrick's departure comes with United third from bottom of the Premier League, a point behind 17th-placed Coventry, and 17th in the Champions League standings. It follows a review led by the director of football, Jason Wilcox, and a recommendation to Sir Jim Ratcliffe, who controls sporting policy. Wilcox and United's chief executive, Omar Berrada, travelled to Monaco to meet Ratcliffe this week.

Carrick's sacking was then signed off at a board meeting involving the Glazer family. Carrick turned up for work on Thursday morning – as he has done each day this week – with his fate in effect sealed.

United said: "After a disappointing start to the season, the club has come to the extremely difficult conclusion that a change is necessary in order to achieve our ambitions. Michael is, and always will be, a Manchester United legend. Just as he did as a player, he has conducted himself with the highest standards of dedication and professionalism throughout his time back with the club."

History making Harry!

NATIONS LEAGUE: Kane makes record 126th appearance as England edge Croatia, 2-1

Harry Kane celebrated a men's record 126th appearance for England with a goal as they brushed aside Croatia in the Uefa Nations League on Thursday night.

The Bayern Munich striker led the team out in front of huge tifo display celebrating the landmark, before he lifted the Ballon d'Or trophy which he won recently to crown him the world's best player.

Kane, 33, received accolades from Prince William and ex-goalkeeper Peter Shilton - whose record he broke.

But it was a slow start from Thomas Tuchel's side at Wembley and it wasn't until the 24th minute that they found the breakthrough.

Kane was involved as he dropped deep and played a chipped pass to Jude Bellingham who cut the ball back for Morgan Rogers to bundle in from close range.

Croatia grabbed an unlikely equaliser in the 59th minute after an error from centre-back Jarell Quansah, who tried to head the ball back to keeper Jordan Pickford following a corner, but left it short and Petar Sucic nipped in to poke the ball into the net.

But Quansah redeemed himself five minutes later as the defender won a penalty after he was adjudged to have been held and pulled by Ivan Smolcic at an England corner.

After a video assistant referee (VAR) check, Kane confidently put the ball down the middle for his 92nd England goal, with 27 of them spot-kicks.

Substitute James Garner thought he added a third late on but Bellingham was adjudged to have been offside before he teed up the Everton midfielder for a low drive past Dominik Livakovic.

Victory secured England's place in the quarter-finals of the Nations League, which take place next year. They will face Group 3 leaders Spain - who beat the Czech Republic 2-0 - on Sunday knowing a win over the world champions will put them top of the standings.

The match with Croatia was always going to be about England's record-breaking captain Kane.

Boss Tuchel had warned in the build-up that supporters should not expect the same performance which saw the Three Lions put seven past Croatia in the last international break and he was right as his side underwhelmed.
